YOUNG MEN LEADING POLITICS

Washington, July 24.—The old politicians in Washington, with the glory of many campaign fights upon them, are more than vexed at the call being given young men in the choice of leaders for the approaching presidential contest. It's awful, they think.

The probability of the selection of Ollie James, the big Kentucky congressman to manage the campaign for William Jennings Bryan has added to their irritation over the selection of Frank H. Hitchcock, as chairman of the Republican National Committee. Old men do not have a chance these days, they say.

They point out that James is but little more than a kid. The truth is that he would be the youngest campaign manager ever selected by a big political party. He is only 37 years old, but, due to the uncertainty of Democratic victory in Kentucky, he has had a finger in nearly every political campaign in that state since he appeared on the terrestrial scene, and during the last few presidential contests he has made a reputation for himself in a subordinate capacity. They enlist their followers in their babyhood in the Blue Grass state and the result is the production of a precocious politician, when the subject can stand the strain.

Friends of James are fond of referring to his congressional career. He is now serving his third term, and at the last election a Republican could not be found to run against him. As a result he had 10,000 majority out of 14,000 votes cast, some 2000 voting for the prohibition candidate. Incidentally, it is noted that James has never been a drawing card among the Prohibitionists, although the Kentuckian has grasped every opportunity in congress to talk for prohibition.

The brilliancy of James is pointed out by his rapid rise from page of the Kentuckian legislature in the session of 1887 to his present position. In that year Ben Johnson was speaker of the house. Yet James had been in congress for two sessions before Johnson rose to the height of commanding a seat in the lower house of the national law-making body.

James won attention as one of the attorneys for Governor Goebel in his celebrated contest for governor of the state of Kentucky, just before his assassination at the state house.

Hitchcock is several years older than James, yet Hitchcock, at 41, is counted a young man. They are opposite types. Calm, reserved, and not the least talkative, Hitchcock stands out in contrast with the fuss and feathers, radicalism and talkativeness of the Kentuckian. But the later has been able to deliver the goods quite as successfully as the Republican chairman.

SKELETONS OF BIG BEASTS ARE FOUND

Washington July 24.—The Black Hills region and the adjacent country have been noted finding places for the remains of strange animals of ancient America. Throughout this region, ages ago, in the Cretaceous period, there were vast swamps and bodies of open water, connected by a network of water-courses that were constantly changing their channels.

The intervening spaces, which were but slightly above the water level, were covered with an abundant vegetation, and through this region roamed many beasts whose bones were here and there embedded in the mud that, now become solid rock, preserved to the geologist skeletons that are treasured in many museums.

Among these were the Ceratopsia, an order of reptilian creatures which are the subject of a technical description in a volume just published by the United States Geological Survey.

The Ceratopsia comprise many genera and species, but the most striking, perhaps, was the genus called Triceratops, a three-horned animal of huge size, now represented in the United States National Museum at Washington by a skeleton nearly as big as that of an elephant. An immense bony frill that covers the upper part of the neck, a pair of horns like those of an ox, a smaller nasal horn like that of a rhinoceros, and a snout like that of a turtle, give the head of Triceratops a unique and striking appearance.

The Ceratopsia found their food in the vegetation of the swamp region they inhabited, and the agencies by which they became extinct are not certainly known.
