REVOLUTION EXPECTED IN HAYTI

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, July 25.—Haytian affairs have reached such a critical state that officials here today declared that they would not be surprised to hear of a serious outbreak at any time. Preparations are being made to act with decision when the time comes.

Advice received from the American minister, Henry W. Furnish indicate that there is a decided unrest and that among foreign residents there, especially, there is a feeling that disorders may occur at any moment. The United States warship Paducah is in Haytian waters to look after the United States interests and will also temporarily relieve the French ship Chasse-Loup Loubat from duty in watching over the foreign inhabitants.

The situation is an outgrowth of the unsuccessful revolution last winter, which was suppressed largely because the United States stopped shipments of arms intended for the opponents of the Nord Alexis government. Dr. Firmin, an ex-president of the little republic, is said to be leading the revolutionary movement. The fact that President Alexis is 40 years old and very feeble is considered favorable to the rebel leaders' plan.

HEARST WOULD NOT ACCEPT NOMINATION

(United Press Leased Wire.)

New York, July 25.—William Randolph Hearst arrived here today from Europe on the liner Lucania. "Under no conditions will I be a candidate for President of the United States," he said when pressed by newspaper men for an answer to the quest that is worrying the delegates to the Independence party's convention in Chicago.

Hearst declared that he would not accept the nomination for the presidency even if the delegates to the Chicago convention brought pressure to bear on him. One of the newspaper men asked Hearst if this pledge referred to the future and he laughed heartily, leaving the question unanswered. Hearst declined to discuss the statement made by Gompers that the Hearst cable from Paris had not been prompted by a letter from the labor leaders. "I have been out of touch with political matters during the past week," he explained.

Favored by Committee.

Chicago, July 25.—The national committee of the Independence party which is to open its first convention here Monday, today ratified the reelection of William R. Hearst as temporary chairman made by the subcommittee of arrangements yesterday.

The city is filling up with delegates from all portions of the country and the convention promises to be enthusiastic. It has been decided that the convention will be opened Monday night and that nominations will be made Tuesday. In addition to the Hearst boom, which is not suppressed by the leadership announcement that he will not accept, there are booms for Thomas L. Higen, of Massachusetts and M. W. Howard of Alabama, as presidential candidates.

Roadless America Transformation.

From the maledictions scattered broadcast in the mire of roadless America by despairing bicyclists 15 years ago hopes of better things have taken root. So writes C. F. Carter in the August Technical World Magazine. No gift of prophecy is now required to foresee a time when these hopes will have so far materialized that a team, if it a good one, will be able to haul an empty wagon over the gumbo roads of the Mississippi valley in spring, and the public highway of the South will be so well bouyed that light-draught automobiles may navigate them in comparative safety.

From every part of the country comes the same encouraging news. Sixteen states now have highway commissions that are trying in various ways to supply the greatest need of the nation, which is good roads.

Tasmanian Rabbit Industry.

Consul Henry D. Baker writes from Hobart under date of April 28th that during the last few years the rabbits on the spot and cart them assumed considerable proportions. His particulars follow:

Rabbits for export are trapped only in the winter months, when their fur is at its best, and the industry affords remunerative wages for a number of men and boys at a time when agricultural operation are dull. The trappers disembowel rabbits on the spot and cart them to the nearest railway station for dispatch to the freezing works at Hobart or Launceston. The rabbits are graded as to size, and packed in crates holding from 24 to 30 rabbits, according to size, which are then stored in a freezing chamber. Periodically a steamer calls and takes a consignment of frozen rabbits to England. The season is just now approaching, and appearances seem to point to a busy time for the trappers. The total Australian exportation in 1906 of frozen rabbits and hares was valued at $2,291,563, and of rabbit skins $2,323,510.

Claim Discrimination—

The railroad commission this morning received a letter from a creamery proprietor at Brownsville, calling attention to the disparity in express rates in favor of the larger creameries. The letter states that it is cheaper to ship cream than butter to Portland, the rate on 100 pounds of butter being 27 cents, and the rate on a 65-pound box of butter, 40 cents. The rate from Brownsville to Silverton, which is more than half the distance to Portland, is 23 cents, and the same rate is charged from Silverton to Portland. All this, the letter states, is in favor of the large creameries of Portland, and makes it hard for the smaller creameries in the country towns to exist. The railroad commission has begun an investigation of all the express rates in the state, and the cream and butter rates will be taken up during the investigation.

At one extreme in New York, which, in 1905, voted to expend $50,000,000 in building roads. Under the plan adopted the state will build and maintain 3332 miles connecting the principal cities and pay one-half the cost of 4700 miles of local roads to be built by the counties.

At the other extreme is Iowa, the third state in the Union in extent of road mileage, where the use of the public highways is so vast that 12 teams enough could be assembled to do in one day all the traveling done in the state in a year the line would reach once and a half around the earth, which does out an annual appropriation of $5000 to defray the expenses of the state college faculty while acting in the capacity of Highway Commission. With this introduction the author writes to what is being done and what can be done to transform roadless America, and the articles are illustrated with fine photographs.

Asquith's Surrender to the Suffragettes.

That intellect of "tempered steel" which W. T. Stead ascribes to Prime Minister Herbert Henry Asquith did not fall the head of his majesty's government when he faced the other day a deputation of members of the Commons who approached him on the subject of woman suffrage. Mr. Asquith, all Britons are assured by the alarmed London Spectator, surrendered. Five months have not passed since Mr. Asquith defied the ladies in the presence of a lovelier but less influential deputation that approached him over his garden fence and climbed in his front window. The London Times is free to confess, it says, that "quite apart from the particular merits of this question" it preers his former answer, when suffragettes were under escort to the lockup, to what he has just affirmed to Liberal politicians subjected to feminist suasion. More than one gentleman in the Commons deputation had been embarrassed by ladies who refused to stop ringing his front door bell at inconvenient hours. On the previous occasion Mr. Asquith defended the refusal of the government to grant the prayers of the suffragettes on the ground that "such an important constitutional change as this should be referred to the opinion of the country deliberately expressed." Not the least doubt exists even in the mind of the unfriendly London Times that Mr. Asquith was considering at that time solely and simply the attitude of the ministry of which he was a prop. At this day he is found affirming that his government will not "collectively oppose" woman suffrage. But it must be "perfectly obvious," insists the British organ, that the permission by a government to allow an amendment in a woman suffrage sense to an impending bill on the franchise is indistinguishable from complete surrender to the suffragettes.—Current Literature.

When Wilson Cabpelle of New Britain went to his attorney to secure a divorce today from his wife he was surprised to learn that she didn't need it as he had never been legally wedded; reversal of feebility, then took place and Chappelle married his wife, Miss Ellen Steel, instead of divorcing her.
