Sullivan, Ind., July 27.—After fighting for their lives with three drunk-crazed maniacs, while clinging to the tender of a passenger engine going at the rate of 40 miles an hour, Alex. Davy, of Terre Haute, and Ed. McCoy, of Progress, Ind., he dying in jail here today. The men were rescued from their perilous position this morning when the train arrived here, and were taken to the jail unconscious. According to Davy, who told the story when he regained consciousness on his cot at the jail, the two men, together with Albert Condell, of Evansville, and two other men, who are unknown, were steading a ride on the tender of the engine from Terre Haute to Evansville. The two strangers and Condell demanded that Davy and McCoy take a drink of whiskey, and, when they refused, attacked them with clubs. Davy and McCoy were unarmed, and were terribly cut and slashed with the knives of the maniacs. The five men wrestled together screaming and crying on the back of the tender for 40 miles, when the engineer finally heard the noise of the strange battle above the roar of the train. When the train was brought to a stop at Sullivan the two unknown men escaped. The engineer had blown his whistle to attract attention, and the marshal caught the two wounded men just as they fell fainting from the tender of the engine.
