WILLAMETTE VALLEY WHEAT IS GOOD

It appears as though farmers raising large acreages of wheat in this vicinity are much more fortunate than the Eastern Oregon grain raisers, who have been visited by the smut fungus to an alarming extent. After a careful inquiry of farmers raising large tracts of wheat in different sections around this city concerning the spring grain, no serious infections have been observed so far in the growth of the wheat proper, but in several fields vetch has sprung up and owing to the vetch seed being about the same size and weight as a wheat berry separating the two will be somewhat difficult. Smut and rust have not showed up so far, and the "black plague" as it is called, will not disturb the farmers in this vicinity this season, as the grain at present has growth sufficient to overcome the lanky substance, and the rust, which is not so disastrous as the smut, will hardly show up unless there is a rainfall followed by very warm sunshine, which condition tends to crack the stalk of the grain thus stopping the flow of sap to the wheat head. Smut is probably the most destroying fungus in existence. It not only destroys the wheat for milling purposes, but it can get such a start as to cause stock to turn away from their feed.

California, visited his cousin, P. H. D'Arcy, of this city, yesterday, and left today for Seattle and British Columbia.

C. D. Minton is a Portland visitor today.

IRRIGATION DOING THINGS FOR EASTERN OREGON

"Hermiston is all right I want to tell you," said Col. H. G. Newport yesterday evening to a Tribune reporter as he replied to an inquiry as to what is doing in the irrigation town down the Umatilla.

"There is no doubt about our having the best irrigation project in the west and the best 20,000 acres of land now being developed in this part of the country. Within five years neither Hood River nor Yakima can hold a candle to use in the matter of producing early strawberries and other fruits and vegetables. And it makes a difference whether you get into a market along with other sections of the country or ten days earlier. And we will skin them both by that much at least, one year with another.

"It is a little dull there right now, but it is everywhere in July. We are just beginning. A man who has small patch of ground under ditches was telling me yesterday that he wants to kick himself for not having a little more foresight. He said he planted some corn in the early spring but the season was so cold and backward that after the first cultivation and irrigation he abandoned it as no good but in spite of neglect it has made a fine growth, and several times he has brought in a lot of roasting ears each time selling them readily for $3 and several times has sold lettuce that has grown splendidly in spite of its abandonment. He says next year will not catch him napping like that. He is now persuaded that there is no place anywhere that will surpass Hermiston in the production of all kinds of early fruits and vegetables and its season will be a long one as well."

Col. Newport has 100 acres in alfalfa and is still sowing seed for more. Some people in that district are now planting late corn believing that on that sandy soil with water it will mature a crop. He and H. M. Skinner are in Peadleton for the purpose of purchasing furniture for the new Masonic hall which has just been completed. Hermiston has a lodge of Artisans, Red Men, Pythians, Odd Fellows and Masons.

Orchard and Garden.

Continue to cultivate the straw berry bed. Keep out all weeds and cut off all surplus runners. The care given the patch now determines next season's crop.

Still keep a watch for pear blight, and cut out and burn infected branches promptly.

How about barrels, baskets, etc. for the coming harvest? Better secure a supply now.

MRS. TEAL HELD TO ANSWER

New York, July 31.—Mrs. Teal, wife of the well-known theatrical manager, and Harry Mousley, private detective, were held over to the grand jury today by Justice C. Rigan. Both are out on bonds of $500, which must be renewed.

The prisoners are charged in an affidavit filed by a young miller several days ago with having conspired to manufacture evidence against Frank Gould to prevent the hearing of his wife's divorce suit against him.

DESIRE FOR CHINESE Dainties Diminishing

An appetite for Chinese dishes, including chop suey, which recently cost Chicago over $20,000,000 a year, now is rapidly diminishing. Four of the big chop suey restaurants, which bore the oriental names of "King Yen Lo," "Joy Yen Lo," "King Joy Lo," and "Woo Ying," have closed their doors within a few weeks and others are on the verge of it. According to a common report the "suey" sauce is either imported or made from imported Chinese sea-beans, but an essayist discussing the lack of a national taste in food in America, declared that the "oriental" sauce, like many other curious specialties is made at the stock yards in Chicago. The sudden change of fickle fancy has left the quod chop suey men puzzled and with some highly decorated and expensive furniture and furnishings on their hands, some being elaborately inlaid with mother of pearl.

Concerning the matter of food the essayist said: "American taste in food has been depraved because of the cosmopolitan population. The chop suey habit, so-called, is the most recent manifestation of American degeneracy in food. Chinese food is not bad, it is scientifically better cooked than the American sausage, but it forms one more link in the chain of the degenerate American appetite."

LUNATIC OUTRUNS GIBSON

J. K. P. Farrens, a farmer, residing in this city, who has recently been examined three different times by the lunacy commission, and each time declared sane, created considerable commotion when he displayed another streak of insanity on the streets this morning.

Farrens was loitering about under the approach of the steel bridge on Center street about 9 o'clock this morning, when he suddenly developed into a raving maniac. He began to tear up the ground with his hands and feet, and those who saw him while the fit was on say that he actually ate small sticks of wood. He also brandished a knife, and threatened to murder any one who came his way.

A woman living in that neighborhood, who saw the lunatic going through his performance, telephoned to the police, and Chief Gibson immediately started to the scene of action.

As the chief approached Farrens fled, and the officer started in pursuit. A chase through town followed, and the crazy man outran the officer. The last glimpse Gibson got of the mad man he was running past the depot, headed for the Turner road. The speed of Farrens was too much for Gibson, who finally gave up the chase.

It is probable that Farrens will be haled before the county judge and sent to the asylum.
