

WHAT IS WORN AT LENOX

WHAT IS WORN AT LENOX—THE ECCENTRICITIES OF FASHION—THE SHEATH GOWN NOT POPULAR—TOILETTES OF CREPE-DE-CHINE, METEOR SILK OR TUSSAH—SLEEVES ARE SMALLER—SILK COATS FOR AUTOMOBILE USE.

The woman who is interested in pale pink silk against another of the fashions has only to come to pale blue or green and sometimes one of black.

The Fashionable Sleeve Fits Closer. One thing is very evident from the dress parade which can be seen here that the fashionable sleeve is a good deal tighter than it used to be. In all coats of the really dressy type the sleeves possess a certain severity which formerly belonged only to the

For Afternoon Wear.
For afternoon wear and what are termed demi-toilettes of all sorts, meteor silks, tussahs and crepe de-chines are extensively used by fashionable women. Many of these gowns are made with heavily embroidered silk marquisette or Italian lace yokes, their designs outlined with the finest gold thread.

The prevailing pompadour color idea is shown in the embroidery of the plain net yokes used with some of the chiffon broadcloth and satin striped voile gowns. At the very top of the collars of these yokes there often appears a tiny line of tailor made. They fit quite closely and are formed of overlapping folds running around the arm, each fold falling smoothly one above the other. On the other hand the sleeve used with the new directoire gown is not so tight fitting and does not outline the arm, but is sufficiently large for comfort. Many of the imported frocks of satin, cloth and foulard have plain chiffon sleeves extending well over the hand.

A Coat for Motoring.
Smartness personified is what one can properly call many of the silk coats and wraps for motoring.

Of leaf brown rajah silk was a garment of the sort worn by the fair chateaine of a famous country house in the vicinity. This coat was cut circular, the back laid in a double box pleat which ended under a circular berth of the silk edged with an inch wide band of pale blue silk braid. The long and very full sleeves of the coat were opened up the back to show narrow panels of pale blue silk crossed by narrow brown silk braid that formed downward turning V's.

Another very smart automobile coat was of natural colored pongee with cuffs and collar of black taffeta and narrow straps of very light green and black Persian embroidery running down each side of the front.

Silk Traveling Gowns.
Most of our fashionable women are this summer wearing dark pongee or tussah silk for traveling, as these materials are much cooler than woolen and look equally as smart. The majority of these frocks are made in what is called the three-piece style but it should be properly two-piece, for skirt and waist are usually joined together in princess effect and worn over a washable guimpe. To complete the costume is a coat of silk, usually of the loose variety. Cream and ecru laces, mulls and muslins are used in preference to white tulle guimpes and they look smart when as simply made as possible.

The latest vogue in belts is of those of satin or silk with a wide, Every day's advice is to shorten the belt in the back and this naturally requires a wide belt.

OIL KING SAVED TWO PEOPLE

SAYS THE GATEMAN

Cleveland, O., Aug. 6.—John D. Rockefeller can call at Andrew Carnegie's front door today and justly demand a medal for saving lives, if the story told by the watchman stationed at a railroad crossing near the oil king's home, is true.

A party of automobilists were crossing the tracks of the Cleveland & Pittsburg tracks, when the gateman started to lower the gates to allow a train to pass. One of the heavy arms was about to fall on the party when Rockefeller, according to the watchman, leaped from his automobile and caught it. Otherwise, it is said, the gate must have killed one or two of the occupants.

MRS. SAGE TO FOUND SCHOOL

New York, Aug. 6.—It is reported here today that Mrs. Russell Sage shortly will send a representative to West Point to learn of the attitude of the officers of the government military school toward the establishment of a preparatory school on Constitution Island, in the Hudson river, opposite West Point. She plans to have the world's greatest military school erected on the island to prepare the boys for the West Point examination. It will be designed for boys who come from far-away points, and are unable to enter West Point at once. President Roosevelt is understood to be favorable to the plan.

THINKING DEMONS AFTER HIM COMBATS SUICIDE

San Francisco, Aug. 6.—Believing that he was pursued by demons, William Lettery, an 18-year-old youth, drank carbolic acid in a vacant lot at Harrison and Fremont streets, where his dead body was found early today. He left several rambling notes. One was addressed to his mother, and, after bidding her goodbye, he declared an attack was made on him by evil spirits. He said he knew he was going to be killed, and was afraid to go home. He wrote his sister, Ella Lettery, that the demons were going to drown him in the bay, and then put his body in the lot where it was found. He also appointed four of his friends pallbearers. He signed a letter of identification, saying his name was William Lettery, and his address 223 Harrison street, for the benefit of the coroner's deputies.

An empty bottle which contained carbolic acid was found by the body.

YOUNG BURGLAR KILLED

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 6.—Scott Tounds, aged 19 years, who lived at 813 1/2 Eighth street, South Seattle, was shot and killed early today by Policeman M. T. Arey. Ray C. Baird, aged 18, who claims to be the son of the Standard Oil agent at Seattle, a companion of the dead youth, is under arrest for burglary.

The killing and the arrest were the culmination of an exciting chase for three blocks, after the two boys, the police charge, had been discovered in the act of robbing a saloon at Fifth and Mission streets. Arey heard a noise in the saloon, and entered through a door from which the glass had been removed. As he did so the boys dashed out of the door and ran.

The policeman gave chase and ordered the boys to stop. They refused to do this, and he fired at Tounds. The shot pierced his stomach. The other burglar hid in a barrel, where he was found later. He told the police that he and the dead youth came from Seattle some time ago and could not find work.

QUEEN OPPOSES DUKE'S MARRIAGE TO AMERICAN

Como, Italy, Aug. 6.—Enschede palace, near Stresa, on the Italian lakes, was shocked today when Queen Margherita put her royal foot down very decidedly upon the proposed marriage of the Duke de Abruzzi to Miss Katherine Elkins, despite the preparations being made for the nuptial ceremony. An intimate friend of the dowager says that if the young couple persist in their intentions, and the marriage actually takes place, the queen will cut both the duke and his bride from her list of acquaintances.

The dowager declares she has no great objection to Miss Elkins personally, but she firmly believes the duke should wed a European princess. She even goes further and suggests several who would be desirable wives, and Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, may not enter European royalty after all.

CONFESSES ATTEMPT TO WRECK CALIFORNIA TRAIN

Watsonville, Cal., Aug. 6.—Southern Pacific railroad detectives are making a vigorous search in this vicinity today for three lumbermen, following a statement made by Ann Richardson, a notorious woman, implicating the men in an attempt to wreck the Santa Cruz flyer last Sunday night at the Pajaro river bridge.

The Richardson woman was arrested on suspicion of having knowledge of the plot. Subjected to a sweating by the detectives, she finally made a partial confession to the effect that the plot to wreck the train was concocted in her house during a drunken orgy, in which a number of men participated.

Suspicion of the detectives was aroused by the sudden and mysterious disappearance of the woman immediately after the attempted wreck. It was learned that she went to San Francisco, and had later started back to Watsonville. She was taken into custody on her return. When confronted with the damaging evidence in the possession of the sheriff the woman broke down and told of the plot.

She will be subjected to a further examination to secure from her, if possible, a complete story of the alleged crime.

In carrying out their designs, the train wreckers had fastened a number of fish-plates to the track on the high Pajaro bridge, in such a way that the train would be thrown into the river.

If the obstruction had not been observed in time by the engineer a great many lives would have been lost, as the train was crowded with returning Sunday pleasure seekers.
