Although several men are in jail, the identity of the dynamiters is not known.

CLAGGETT SUED FOR DIVORCE AND PARTITION OF PROPERTY

W. D. Claggett's recent series of legal embroglios came to a climax this morning when his third wife, who was formerly Mrs. Elizabeth McFarland of Turner, filed a suit for divorce in the circuit court Thursday.

The complaint alleges that Claggett entered upon the present matrimonial venture at Turner on September 22, 1902, and that since that time he has treated his wife in a manner justifying divorce. Mrs. Claggett claims that her husband is of a sullen and morose disposition and he is penurious to such an extent that he has refused to provide decent clothing for his wife and family and that he has offered Mrs. Claggett refuse meat for her food.

Moreover, the complaint alleges, Claggett has used blasphemous language to his wife whenever she has mentioned to him the present state of affairs. According to Mrs. Claggett, he not only refuses to buy food and clothing for his family, but he will not even buy himself respectable clothing. One time, the complaint sets forth, when Bill was in sore need of a new shirt, Mrs. Claggett bought one and presented it to him. Whereupon Claggett went into a fit of rage, telling his wife that it was none of her damned business whether he wore a shirt or not, and calling her names too vile to be set down in print.

For three weeks, the complaint states Mrs. Claggett has been on the verge of starvation. This, she says, the defendant knew, and although he was possessed of ample property, he refused to provide for the plaintiff the common necessities of life. And all this time, the paper further states, Bill was boarding around at the various restaurants in the city and at the houses of his relatives. He also took his two daughters to the restaurants that they might obtain a square meal while his wife remained at home starving.

But, according to the complaint, Bill was not satisfied that his wife should remain at home in the empty pantry. He wanted her to vacate the place absolutely. To this end he removed all the furniture to one of his farms. He even took with him the kitchen range. This action was the more lamentable when the plaintiff reminds us that she bought the furniture with her own money.

Through three pages of fine print the bad side of Bill's character is set forth in detail. Then follows five pages and a half telling how rich Claggett is, about a dozen different farms or other pieces of property being designated, and the document concludes with the prayer that when the marriage bonds are dissolved one third of these lands shall go to the plaintiff.

Carson and Brown are the attorneys for the plaintiff.

GIRLS FORGED FOR EMPLOYER

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 7.—Two girls are in serious trouble today as the result of the death of John G. Lund, who committed suicide Wednesday, after losing his fortune through the 5-cent rise in the wheat market. Alberta Logan and Liela Race, the girls involved, while stenographers in Lund's office, are alleged to have been induced to sign bogus mortgages, upon which their employer was able to raise the money.

Lund killed himself to escape prison, say his creditors. He had been having bad luck in the market for several months, and, as a last resort, it is alleged, employed dishonest methods to save himself from misfortune.

For the Last

Sixteen years W. T. Rigdon, undertaker, has shipped more cases East than anyone in Oregon, outside of Portland, and has never yet had a complaint. Embalming in the hands of a competent man never fails. Fail ure only comes from careless or incompetent work. Hot weather is no bar against shipment, as good embalming is not affected by warm weather. W. T. Rigdon.

RIOT IS CAUSED BY GOWNS DIRECTORIES WORK BY MODELS

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 7.—Spokane is today recovering from the riot created yesterday afternoon by the spectacle of two living models jauntily attired in directors' gowns and pacing to and fro in a window of a big downtown store.

Perspiring policemen in squads not less than a dozen were kept busy in preventing the crowds from breaking in the window. Finally the riot became so big that some one turned in a riot call, and more policemen arrived in a patrol wagon. Perspiring themselves in second-story windows across the street, on drunks, wagons and automobiles, they their anxiety to get a glimpse.

At length the proprietor of the store was compelled to withdraw the models and put in their place placard announcing police interference.
