CRATER LAKE WONDER OF WORLD

Crater lake is the world's greatest natural wonder and can be made Oregon's greatest attraction. Thirty thousand tourists from all parts of the world can be brought to Oregon annually to view this most picturesque and beautiful wonder spot.

What is needed to attract this travel is a good auto road, wide enough for teams to pass, continued Colonel Jackson. The state of Oregon should aid in the building. The road would probably cost $150,000 to the forest reserve and the government can be depended upon to do its share in its reservation and park. The road should run from Medford to Klamath, and it should be made possible for tourists to come in one way and go out the other, a five-hour trip from Medford to the lake.

Medford and Jackson county and Klamath Falls and Klamath county and the entire state are equally interested in this highway and all together should provide the funds. I intend to bring the matter before the Good Roads association meeting in Portland next week and will endeavor to have the association concentrate its efforts upon building the first of the proposed state roads to the lake. I am willing to do all in my power to help advance the proposition, for I think the state has a fortune in this lake.

Medford and Jackson county should organize at once to build this road. City, county and state should work together and begin work at once. Colonel and Mrs. Jackson were taken to Jacksonville and given a ride through other parts of the valley by Mayor Reddy. Both are enthusiastic over the lake and over the Rogue River valley and its future.

FOUGHT INDIANS HERE IN 1808

In the death of Enoch Wimberly, which occurred at the family residence in North Roseburg at about 7 o'clock last Friday morning, Douglas county has lost another honored pioneer, a man whose life was ever intermingled with good deeds, and a man whose acts while on this earth will long stand as a monument to his memory.

Mr. Wimberly was a native of Mississippi, having spent the first 15 years of his life in that state working upon a farm owned by his father. When a mere lad of 16 he became enthused with the western spirit, and a short time later in company with Nicholas Schrum and family, commenced the westward journey, traveling the entire distance with an ox team. Arriving near Salem he secured a position which he held for nearly two years, when he enlisted as a U. S. volunteer in a campaign against the Cayuse Indians, who were at that time causing no end of trouble in the Walla Walla valley. Returning in October, 1848, he remained in the vicinity of Salem for about a year, when in company with several acquaintances, he went to California, lured to that state by the glittering accounts of the gold mining fever which was at that time raging in all sections of the United States. After remaining in the southern clime but a few brief months he became sickened by the summer heat, and shortly after left San Francisco by boat for Oregon, arriving near the mouth of the Columbia after 51 days, during which time the unseaworthy craft in which he embarked was nearly wrecked, encountering one of the worst storms ever known on the Pacific ocean.

The Defect in British Athletics.

The fact is, the British athletes have never trained intelligently. Forty years ago the amateur trained his muscles at the expense of his nervous system, just as professionals did, and, in fact, do now. It became so much of an abuse that Wilkie Collins wrote a book about it— "Man and Wife"—in which he read a lesson to such amateurs by dramatically showing the effect of such training. In the experiences of one of his characters, Geoffrey Delamain. Curiously enough, as his book was published to the world, there was an object lesson in the death of one of a celebrated Canadian crew in the boat—Renfrew—under precisely similar circumstances and training. The effect in England was a revolution. Now the teaching is that there should be such moderation in training that health and life are not endangered. But until it is shown that the American system now obtaining is productive of evil results such as came out of the old system it is not subject to criticism or condemnation. Such results are not the consequence of the American system. Our athletes do not develop their muscles at the expense of their nervous system. Our amateurs are neither brutalized nor retired broken down cripples after a career in athletics. They mix brains with their work. And herein is a hint to British amateurs.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davidson, of No. 379 Gifford avenue, San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness, and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at J. C. Perry's drug store, 50c.
