more serious change set in, and it has baffled the skill of physicians and the soothing effects of the milder climate, which it was hoped would help her. Mrs. McDonald was a woman of lovely Christian character and leaves hundreds of friends to mourn with the bereaved family. She leaves a little daughter six years old, a sister in the city, Miss McIntosh, and a number of cousins in her old Canadian home at London, Ontario, whence she removed to Salem seven years ago with the family of A. McGill, partner of Mr. McDonald in the Oregon Nursery Company. The remains were brought to this city on the train today for burial.
"Gambirinus" Freed—Charley Winkler, the well-known farmer north of this city, was greatly perturbed yesterday when he found, after transacting business here for a short time, and was ready to return to his farm, that his much-respected dog, "Gambirinus," was missing from his accustomed post under the wagon, and after scouring the city over in search of his lost doggie, he found him locked up in the city jail. Officer Welch had mistaken the rustle of an unlicensed variety around town, and put him under lock and key, but upon being informed by Charley as to Gambirinus' place of abode and general pedigree, the four-legged prisoner was allowed to go free.

Study Course Revised—Superintendent of Public Instruction J. H. Ackerman has just completed the revision of the courses of study for the elementary and high schools of Oregon, which will be ready for distribution to the county superintendents in a few days. Several important changes have been made this year, among which may be mentioned the two-year commercial course designed for the eleventh and twelfth year pupils, and the teachers' training course, designed to be of assistance to high school students, who intend to follow teaching, but who feel that they cannot afford to leave home to fit themselves for that work. A change has also been made in the classification of high schools. Hereafter the high schools will be classed according to the courses adopted and the number of teachers devoting their entire time to the teaching of high school subjects.

TWO DEAD

ty rocked as if shaken by an earthquake. Hundreds of windows of the beautiful buildings about the scene were shattered, furniture was upset and countless valuable exhibits shaken from their places and ruined. A tremendous crowd had gathered to witness the ascension, as Lovelace has been giving aerial performances at the exhibition with great success. The monster balloon was being inflated, and the crowd gathered close to see the work of the apparatus. A bystander lighted a match, in violation of conspicuous placards warning spectators against smoking, and explaining the danger of fire. Instantly the gas was ignited and the terrible explosion sent the spectators tumbling backward over each other in a confused jumble of humanity. The framework and structure used in inflation of the balloon were shattered and the trappings of the monster airship were scattered over the whole exhibition grounds. Most of the persons in the crowd were blinded by the gas and smoke, if they were not badly burned, and the wildest panic followed the explosion. The excited and temporarily insane crowd stampeded. In the excitement they ran each other down. Women and children were trampled upon and scores were badly injured. Captain Lovelace, badly injured and in a serious condition, was, perhaps, the calmest person on the scene. It was through his efforts that order was restored after the panic, and he superintended the treatment of the injured, and the rescue of those who were caught in the wreckage. Miss Hill was missing for some time, and it was hoped she had escaped, until, in clearing the wreckage, her body, horribly burned, was discovered. She evidently had been killed instantly, and had been crushed under the debris. The body of a man was also taken from the wreck. Those who saw the explosion from a distance say that the flames of the ignited gas shot out in a great sheet of fire about the spot where the balloon had been fastened, and covered the entire crowd. Ambulances were rushed to the scene, and the victims taken to hospitals. At least three of the injured cannot recover, and a number of others are in a critical condition. The balloon shed was ignited by the gas flames and totally destroyed. The inflation was nearly completed when the match was lighted. The identity of the man who caused the explosion has not been learned, but a rigid investigation is being made. Captain Lovelace collapsed after the work of rescue was completed. He is broken hearted and almost insane with grief. His burns, while extremely painful, are not thought to be serious. Many people in the vicinity of the explosion thought the shake was caused by an earthquake. Lovelace of New York. New York, Aug. 14.—Captain Lovelace is a resident of New York. He went to London with Dr. Jullian H. Thomas, a New York aeronaut, representing the Aero Club of America. In a trip with Dr. Thomas, in the German balloon Pommern, which won the international race from St. Louis, Lovelace climbed from the basket and scaled the netting on the side, reaching the top of the gas bag. He then took up his position on the very top of the great sphere in order to better direct its course during the voyage from New York to Philadelphia.

CONVENTION CITY WILL BE OMAHA

(United Press Leased Wire.) Seattle, Wash., Aug. 14.—Early indications point to the selection of Omaha as the city for the next grand aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. All other cities have practically been eliminated, and the vote which is being cast today, will, undoubtedly, be decided in favor of the Nebraska city. The grand aerie was called to order at the usual hour this morning. The ballot boxes were prepared, and the voting will be in progress for grand officers until 5 o'clock this afternoon, when the ballots will be counted. The nominations will undoubtedly be elected as outlined yesterday. This afternoon a barbecue and baseball game is on tap for the entertainment of the delegates who vote early.
