MRS. HAINS WANTS HUSBAND HANGED

TAFT BEGINS FIGHT WITH PLEA FOR VOTE OF "SOLID SOUTH"

GOVERNMENT ASKS FOR REHEARING OF STANDARD OIL SUIT

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Counsel for the government today filed a petition for re-hearing by the United States court of appeals in the case of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, in which Judge Landis assessed the famous fine of $29,000,000, his decision being reversed by the higher court. The action for a rehearing is taken at the direct order of Attorney General Bonaparte, after a conference with President Roosevelt. The case is to be vigorously contested by the federal attorneys.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 21.—"The judge who cannot see the Standard Oil company of New Jersey in the Standard Oil company of Indiana, and who cannot see through both of these legal fictions to the real owners and real offenders, John D. Rockefeller, H. H. Rogers, John D. Archbold and others, is either blinded by prejudice or an unfortunate disposition to obscure the merits of controversy by strained and irrelevant technicalities," is the phrase with which Attorney General Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri terminated a ringing attack upon the recent reversal of the Standard Oil company decision by the United States circuit court. The address was made before the convention of the National Association of Attorney Generals in session here. Hadley is president of the organization.

"To assert that men may, by the organization of a puppet corporation, escape the proper measure of punishment for their wrong-doing," said Hadley, "is to give to the legal fiction of the corporation greater rights, privileges and immunities

CAMPAIGN FOR PUBLIC UTILITIES AT COTTAGE GROVE MEETING

Cottage Grove, Aug. 21.—(Special Dispatch to Journal).—The fight being made throughout the state for better roads, free locks, water rights and other matters of benefit to Oregon centered at Cottage Grove yesterday. Among those who spoke were Judge Scott, State Engineer Lewis and Oswald West.

The Proceedings.

President H. O. Thompson, of the Cottage Grove Commercial club, introduced the speakers and there was a fine representation of business men present. The club rooms are large and commodious. Cottage Grove has had a building boom this year, putting up fine brick blocks.

Scott Well Received.

Judge Scott was given a very cordial reception by the business men of the little Lane county mining metropolis. He outlined the grater Oregon good roads campaign and stated that it was the intention to build one great state highway to connect California and Washington. He predicted that thousands of tourists would come to Oregon in the summer. Many large hotels would be built to accommodate them. They spent three millions annually in southern California alone. American tourists spent $12,000,000 annually in France—money Oregon can get.

Four large convict camps would be established and convict labor would be employed to prepare material for roads, which would then be distributed, giving employment to teamsters and laborers to place the material on the roads. It meant a great deal to property and to schools and churches to have first class roads.

The New Water Code.

This was presented by State Engineer Lewis, who argued that three-fourths of the state had to have irrigation. Even the Willamette valley was awakening to the value of water for farm crops. Title to water, which represented the greatest value of land, was uncertain and not well defined. Stealing a horse or graft was a crime, but stealing a man's water and destroying his crop, was not a crime. It was a basis for litigation. Twenty years of litigation had ended in worthless decrees that could not be enforced. A man who buys a water right now buys a lawsuit and that an endless one.

West on Land Grants.

Oswald West handled the railroad wagon road land grants in a masterly manner. He showed that 7,000,000 acres had been given away to encourage such corporations—a territory as large as two New England states. Half of the acreage of these grants was still in the hands of these corporations. He showed that these lands had paid almost no taxes for 25 years, or less than $75,000. Since 1902 $500,000 was paid.

Sales of lands would net the railroad company $50,000 per mile. He made out a hard case against the wagon road land grants. They had dodged taxes and blocked development. These grants should be broken up. The roads they pretended to build were a fraud and a graft. They

SAYS BOTH SHOULD BE PUNISHED

CAPTAIN'S BROTHER "ARCH-FIEND"

(United Press Lensed Wire.) Boston, Mass., Aug. 21.—"My husband and his brother are rascals. I hope that they will both be strung up. Thornton J. Hains is an arch-fiend."

This is the statement of Mrs. Claudia Libbey Hains, wife of Captain Peter C. Hains, who killed William E. Annis. Her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Libbey, were present at their home in Winthrop, as she continued:

"Those scoundrels are capable of anything. In my husband's absence Thornton Hains tried to make love to me and I hated him. Then he poisoned my husband's mind. I was beaten, starved and crazed until I signed some papers (her alleged confession). They may have been blank for all I know. My husband is a brute but I would have borne with him for my children's sake. He beat me many times. He would have shot me, too. I thought he would seek me out and kill me. The rascals, I hope they will both be hanged. My poor babies! What will become of them?"

Hains Breaking Down.

New York, Aug. 21.—Refusing food and muttering constantly of his wife's alleged downfall, Captain Peter C. Hains, U. S. A., is bordering on a collapse in his cell today. He is under the constant care of a physician but little can be done for him. His mind seems to rest constantly on the events which led him to shoot William E. Annis last Saturday.

In marked contrast is Thornton Jenkins Hains, his brother, who is in an adjoining cell, is calm and cool and apparently unaffected by the charges against him. He is composed, eats regularly and sleeps well. He seems to have no nerves. Occasionally when the captain's voice rises in his lamentations Jenkins calls out to him cheerfully: "Brace up, old man! We will come out all right yet."

An interview given out by Mrs. Hains last night at Winthrop, Mass., in which she detailed alleged mistreatment at the hands of her husband and said she feared he would kill her, again denying all his charges, caused considerable consternation among Hains' friends here today, but it is believed the majority of the army officers remain loyal to the prisoner.

Maid Springs Scandal.

Another sensation developed today in the Hains' case, when Marie Louise Sulmande, a French maid, who has had charge of the two children of T. Jenkin Hains, declared that Jenkins is the father and she is the mother of one of the children, both of whom were supposed to be the children of the deceased wife of Jenkins. Mrs. T. Jenkins Hains died in Washington in 1906. The Sulmande woman alleges that her baby was born in December, 1907, in a Brooklyn hospital. She says that her employer promised to marry her and that her fright following his arrest in connection with the killing of William E. Annis by Captain Peter C. Hains caused her to make the statement.

APPEALS FOR VOTE OF SOUTH

IN OPENING SPEECH OF CAMPAIGN

(United Press Lensed Wire.) Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 21.—William Howard Taft in his address to the Republicans of Virginia, who gathered here to meet him today, appealed to the "solid south" to break away from the Democratic column, he said:

"Every one having the interest of the country at heart would rejoice to have the solid south, as a Democratic asset in every national campaign, broken up. It would be better for the states themselves and for the country. The Republican party is not sectional, which the fact that the south always supports the Democratic party would indicate.

"The Republican party has improved the waterways by building the Panama canal; has started a movement for the redemption of swamp lands; the conservation of forest and water resources and is taking many other steps for the development of the south. The growth and development of the mining and iron industries of the south are directly due to the laws enacted by the Republican party. No attention has been paid to partisan proclivities in appointments in the Philippines, Porto Rico and Cuba.

"The reason that the south has such little influence in the executive branch of the government is that the south has always been considered by the Democracy, especially by the northern Democracy, as a part of the country certain to support the Democratic ticket. Therefore, where the Republican party is in power, it is neither natural nor to be expected that it should summon to its executive positions, leading men from the opposing ranks in the south.

"The only cure is by independent action and support of the Republican ticket. I know the south is conservative. By tradition, its attachment to the Democratic party is firm but a party represents principles and when principles change, though the name of the party remains the same, it would seem that after a while traditional attachments would rest lightly on an intelligent community.

Taft referred to the Spanish war as having done much to weld the north and south and remove sectional feeling. He said:

"So, too, the south has not the slightest sympathy with the spirit of the Democratic platform, favoring the disruption of certain industrial interests for the purpose of stamping out evil in their conduct, rather than their regulation with a view toward bringing them within the law. They know and understand the threat against the property of the country involved, in placing in power the Democratic party, under its present leadership."

In another portion of his speech, Taft replied to Bryan's speech of acceptance, particularly to the charge that the people do not rule and that the Republican party is responsible for corporation abuses. Taft pointed to the overwhelming majority given McKinley and Roosevelt, the maintenance of the gold standard and the protective tariff. He declared the conduct of the present

ENTERTAINS ANOTHER'S HUSBAND

SUIT FOLLOWS FOR $250,000

(United Press Lensed Wire.) New York, Aug. 21.—Declaring that she found Mrs. Lizzie Hastings Holme entertaining her husband, James E. Dunn, formerly manager of the Savoy hotel in San Francisco "in pink pajamas, drinking whiskey and smoking a small cigar," a suit for $250,000 damages for alienating her husband's affections, was filed today by Mrs. Sarah Stella Duckste Rosenbaum Rogers Dunn of San Francisco.

At the same time Mrs. Dunn caused divorce papers to be served upon her husband, Mrs. Holme, who is the wife of former City Judge Leicester Holme, is wealthy.

Mrs. Dunn has been continually in the limelight lately. She made a spectacular attack upon Dunn and Mrs. Holme recently when she found them together on the board walk at Atlantic City. At that time she exclaimed to Mrs. Holme:

"You have been stealing other women's husbands for years. I'll make you pay for stealing my husband."

Upon her return to San Francisco she went to the saloon of Dan Dean, former steward at the Savoy, and wrecked the place, after giving Dean a severe drubbing. Mrs. Holme is made the defendant in the damage suit filed today.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Duckste Rosenbaum Rogers Dunn is well known in this city, where her varied matrimonial adventures have caused notoriety for several years.

After an unsuccessful marriage to her first husband and a sensational divorce suit, she became interested in a young man named Rogers and married him six months after she had parted from Rosenbaum. Less than four months later she secured a divorce from Rogers, declaring that her second matrimonial experiment had cost her $60,000. Shortly after that her path crossed that of James E. Dunn and became the object of her third nuptial conquest.

Mrs. Dunn furnished the money to purchase the Savoy hotel and established her husband as proprietor. A few months ago he suddenly disappeared, leaving no explanation. Mrs. Dunn followed him east and found him one day at Atlantic City in company with a woman. Two weeks ago Mrs. Dunn again appeared in this city in search of her fugitive husband. Not finding him she vented her wrath on Dan Dean, former steward of the Savoy, whom she accused of knowing the whereabouts of her husband. Dean entered an action in police court against her for personal damages, complaining that she had severely beaten him.

Joseph Meddill Patterns, son of the editor of the Chicago Tribune, has given a grand expose of society people in his book entitled "Little Brothers of the Rich."

King Leopold's reign of blood in the Congo ended yesterday when the Brussels chamber of deputies passed the annexation bill, making the Congo part of the government.

Cecilia Marcuson, a 21-year-old girl of Seattle, committed suicide by taking poison yesterday because she had been suffering from a toothache for three weeks.
