GIANT CHERRY TREE IS SIXTY YEARS OLD

(Corvallis Times.) Probably the biggest cherry tree in the state is a Royal Ann on the farm of J. H. Edwards, near Bell-fountain Benton county. Its circumference measurement at the ground or three feet above the ground, is 11 feet and 1 inch. It has a spread of 63 feet. It has on occasions produced 25 measured bushels of cherries in a season. It was planted in 1848 by Mr. Reeves, on what was then his donation land claim. Its producing power, as a result of its three score years of age, is not as great as formerly, but it is still able to yield enough cherries to "skin" all comers. Mr. Edwards, its owner, is now taking advice from the O. A. C. orchard experts in the hope of restoring this cherry giant to its original fruitage capacity.

Oregon Doings.

Portland, Or., Aug. 31.—(Special Correspondence.)—"Advertising Oregon" is the title of a page in "Printers' Ink" of July 8th, one of the most widely known of advertising journals. And it is no wonder that the state's work along these lines has attracted this attention, for no portion of America is circulating the attractive literature that burdens the mails of Oregon every day in the year. Now that the colonist rates are to be in effect—and they begin tomorrow—every citizen of the state should feel it his duty to advertise the fact in his personal correspondence, to send information about his community to eastern acquaintances and to aid in every possible way the commercial organizations which are working to increase the state's population.

Portland is to act as host to the American Bar association today, and delegates who attended the convention at Seattle this past week say that many members of the association plan trips through Oregon before returning to their eastern homes.

The United Chambers of Commerce of Japan have extended an invitation to the representative business men of the cities along the Pacific coast to participate in an excursion which will leave San Francisco on September 25th. Those preferring to go by another route, however, will join the party in Japan—the entire trip will consume about three months, and the visitors will see the famous chrysanthemum at their best.

There is every indication of a most cordial co-operation on the part of the commercial bodies of Oregon and Washington in advancing the interests of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, and in every other movement having for its purpose the upbuilding of the north Pacific coast. An evidence of this is a recent interchange of visits by the active officers of commercial bodies in Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and other Northwestern cities. Co-operation of the same character exists between the livestock associations of the different sections, and through their working in harmony there is assurance that, beginning with the first meeting this fall, the finest horses from the best stables of the entire country will participate in the events planned for Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

The most elaborate book ever published on Oregon is in process of preparation by a firm whose books on other sections of America are in a class by themselves. They have enlisted the services of Benj. A. Gifford, of The Dalles, in securing hundreds of choicest views for this use Mr. Gifford's collection of Columbia river photographs which adorn the convention hall of the Portland Commercial club have been responsible for many tourists taking this river trip.

SURPRISE-BIRTHDAY-WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On Friday afternoon at the hospitable home of D. K. Brannan in West Salem, occurred one of the most enjoyable anniversaries possible, being Mrs. Brannan's birthday and Mr. and Mrs. Brannan's 34th wedding anniversary.

Neighbors and friends to the number of 90 or more met together and proceeded in a body to surprise the couple. They met Mrs. Brannan at the gate just starting out to celebrate her anniversary by calling on some friends.

She was politely told amid much merriment that she had better stay at home to celebrate.

The guests carried conspicuous looking parcels of all shapes, sizes and descriptions, which on being opened proved to be many of the best of good things, including fried chicken for the inner-man.

When greetings, good wishes and congratulations were given and received Mr. and Mrs. Brannan were called into the dining room. Mrs. Bedford immediately stepped forward and on behalf of the assembled guests, in a few words presented them with a daintily gold-trimmed china dinner set laid in pretty array upon the table. Host and hostess were visibly affected and graciously replied, Mrs. Brannan declaring that if she had had the least suspicion of what was coming she would have been ready with a long speech.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent in social intercourse, music and songs until 5 o'clock when supper was announced.

It was served on the lawn with Grandma Walters, Mrs. Brannan's mother grazing the head of the table.

Many were the expressions of love and good will heard on all sides and the friends departed for their homes feeling that one more red letter day had touched their lives.

BILLY MCGILCHRIST AND HIS CATSUP GEYSER

Billy McGillchrist, the Adonis of the White House restaurant, knows more about some thing than he did at this time yesterday. Last evening Billy undertook to open a five-gallon keg of preferred stock tomato catsup. It was a nice fat little keg, and looked as harmless and innocent as a Salem girl at a band concert.

Billy tackled it with a lach auger
