

FOR HAY FEVER.

Peruna is Sometimes Used With Excellent Results.

A CASE IN POINT.

MISS MAYME E. SMITH, 444 East Mound St., Columbus, Ohio, writes: "Have used Peruna for catarrh and hay fever. The results being remarkable, I can highly recommend it to all who are suffering with the above diseases. I am happy to be able to say it has helped me wonderfully."

What is known as hay fever is in reality endemic catarrh, a catarrhal condition of the nose, throat, sometimes the bronchial tubes, induced by some local irritant.

The irritation is generally due to vegetable emanations of some sort. Hay has been suspected as being the cause of this malady, hence its name, hay fever. It has been attributed to rag weed and other vegetation also. It is a very capricious disease, coming and going. A medicine that will help one case may not help another. Such treatment has always been very uncertain and unsatisfactory.

Peruna helps some cases without a doubt, although it is not claimed to be an infallible remedy for such cases.

NO FLATFOOT "COPS" FOR SAN FRANCISCO

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, Sept. 2.—If a man has not a nicely arched instep, he need not apply for appointment as a policeman in San Francisco. This is the edict that has disappointed many aspirants for the force who are now under going examination for their fitness to join the "city's finest." One thousand candidates have applied for places and a corps of doctors is working over them to put these men through their paces.

The physical requirements are taken directly from those of the U. S. army and the slightest defect in manly proportions is sufficient to disbar a candidate. One of the tests requires the men to stand upon a glass plate under which a mirror is so arranged that the bottoms of his feet are revealed.

PORTLAND DOCTOR PRAISED

FOR KINDNESS TO HORSES

From the Capital City one can drive in many directions and not find a public watering trough for horses in a distance of 25 miles. This is remarkable when it is remembered how many springs there are running and how many farmers have running water on their places.

It is not creditable for the reaction through which such roads run that no one has enough public spirit and humanity to put up and maintain a watering place for horses and dogs and people. For instance, when last driving over the road, we could not find a place to water horses between Salem and Sheridan.

So it is a pleasure to hear of a public spirited man in Portland who has restored a watering trough that was torn out by county officials, and any such man is entitled to favorable mention in the press. Such a man is entitled to the good will and thanks of all who drive the road, as well as of lovers of horses the state over.

Dr. Andrew C. Smith of Portland has recently rebuilt the celebrated Barnes road watering trough and the farmers of Washington county, those going to and from Cedar Mills and Mt. Calvary cemetery and all others who have traveled this thoroughfare and used the trough for many years to water their horses are rejoicing.

Dr. Smith repaired the pipe which leads from a spring on his place, Tully Villa, and has made other improvements to the trough and its surroundings. An entirely new trough was put in. Several men were at work on the job several days. Dr. Smith made all the arrangements for the repairs, personally saw that everything was properly done and then he paid money out of his own pocket for the work.

Several months ago the county commissioners started to make certain improvements to the old trough which had done service for many years. For reasons of his own Dr. Smith objected to the actions of the commissioners.

But now the trough has been put in better condition than it ever was before and Dr. Smith himself is responsible for the improvements. The new trough will accommodate thousands of persons and animals in the course of a year's time by affording them a handy place to water when traveling along the Barnes road.

FIVE ARE DROWNED ON SLOOP

Deer Island, Me., Sept. 2.—Searching parties are dragging Penobscot bay today in an effort to recover the bodies of five persons who went down when seven were drowned through the capsizing of a sloop in command of Captain Haskell yesterday. Two of the dead and three survivors were taken ashore last evening by rescuers. There seems to be little hope of recovering the bodies as they probably have been carried away by the tide. It was possible to reach the bottom with grappling hooks near the place where the sloop upset but the wreck is practically useless.

VETERANS

who, in his speech accepting the nomination himself called attention to the fact that he lacked the usual qualification of presidential aspirants—that of having faced death on the field of battle—was lustily cheered by the grizzled soldiers of battle as they passed before him. If the members of the Grand Army think the loss of Taft for not having been a soldier, they did not show it today.

Old Soldiers in Line.

The great parade was a proud and pathetic sight. The full tide of patriotism that swelled in the crowd and the fire of heroism that flamed up in the hearts of the spectators, aroused great enthusiasm, but the sadness of the spectacle has an equally deep effect. The realization that this comparatively small body of men is all that is left of the vast army of which it was a part and the fact that many of these will be gone before another encampment, apparently impressed everyone.

The old bullet-torn and smoke-blackened banners; the ragged uniforms, saved carefully for more than 40 years to recall the service they have seen; the sturdy old boy with an empty coat sleeve thrugging side by side with the gay old veteran who is "stumping it" on a wooden leg—the tottering old fellow who will march this last march if he drops dead on the way, and would ask nothing better than to die in the ranks—all these tempered the enthusiasm of the crowd, but the cheering and applause was not decreased. This evening there will be a great electrical display extending for four lines along the Maumee river and there will be many entertainments for the veterans. The business session of the organization begins tomorrow.

Other women have found out that shades that crack are really unnecessary.

If a silk waist cracks you know the silk is no account. You remember the make and avoid it.

Poor silk cracks because it is "loaded" with zinc. Opaque shades crack because they are "loaded" with chalk. They are made of a flimsy material, "starched" stiff with chalk to make them keep out the light and to hang straight.

BRENLIN, the new window shade material, is strong, closely woven, without filling of any kind. It has a natural body which makes it hang straight and smooth. It won't crack, won't sag, won't fade.

BRENLIN is only one of the new things we have gotten this spring for progressive home-makers. If you're interested in freshening up your home a bit, our store will be particularly helpful.
