GEORGIA HARPER COMING

Seinkiewicz' "Quo Vadis," one of the most widely read novels of later years, which was translated from Polish and dramatized into a play of much magnitude, will be one of the feature productions in the repertoire of Georgia Harper during her engagement here in the city next week.

The story relates the incidents during the turbulent times of Nero's reign. The atmosphere is of course Romans, and draws out some forceful and dramatic characters. Lygia, the principal character of the story (which is a love story) gives Miss Harper ample opportunities and is one in which she has made much success.

Lugia is the daughter of an old warrior who dies and leaves her in the care of friends who are devoted Christians, she grows up into womanhood and meets Marcus Vincinius, a soldier in love with her. About that time a great religious war takes place between Nero and the Christians. Nero swears death to all who believe in an almighty power. Christians are murdered by the thousands. Nero's followers set fire to Rome hoping to rid themselves of their hated enemies. Lygia who displeases Nero by her faith is imprisoned and afterwards tied to the horns of a madden bull, but is rescued by Ursus, the giant, who restores her to Vincinius, the war is ended and the Christians triumph. Nero is dethroned and meets his just punishment. It is a strong dramatic story expertly told by one of the greatest writers of his day.

The production will be on a scale of regal magnificence, the costuming historically correct and handsome to a marked degree. The scenic equipment will be elaborate and beautiful as ever carried by a traveling company, including the burning of Rome, Nero's palace, the great arena scene are all features and masterpieces of the scenic artist's brush, being reproduced from correct photographs.

Miss Harper will be supported by Joseph Detrick and a company made up of some of the best talent in the profession.

Other plays to be presented by Miss Harper during her engagement here will be "Nell Gwynne," "Lady of Quality," "Trilby," "Mysterious Mr. Bugle," "Little Minister," opening with the great problem play, "Magda."

CARNIVAL A BIG SUCCESS

American Amusement Company at the State Fair Next Week.

The American Amusement company, which will exhibit here next week has this season been out four months and has been very successful in California and Oregon. The company travels on its merits.

Ben Ferguson, the agent and general manager, brings good recommendations from Ashland, Medford, Grants Pass and Roseburg. The five pay shows are all good, and are surely worth the price of admission.

The company of 40 people all eat and sleep out, as there are no cook or sleeping accommodations on the ground. It costs the company about $100 a day for the necessaries of life, so the town people benefit that much whether they take in a dollar or not.

The free act of Kid Mangels, which takes place every night is a dare-devil, thrilling event and free for all to see.

The Electric theater changes pictures every night and is featuring the grand film of the "Black Princess," and many others. The "Dixie Land," Venetian Glass Blowers, " "Crazy House" and "Australian Wild Girl" are excellent attractions. The company will be here all week during the fair and have a separate space near the grandstand Plenty of innocent fun and amusement.

See the show and have a good time and join the merry crowd.
