Good Clothes

(See Court Street Window). The difference in clothes; it's the easiest thing in the world to buy poor clothes; they prevail to a much greater extent than the well-tailored individual and distinctive kind. The poor kind is easier to make, and the profits thereon are larger, but when it comes to satisfaction, that is wearing quality, perfect workmanship and faultless fashioning—only the good clothes make a return on your investment, and these are the features we can conscientiously claim for the clothes we sell. You can't get anything but good clothes at this store, even though you spend as little as $12.50 for a suit; our $12.50 suits, for instance, contain the best quality of fabric and workmanship that has ever been produced in this country for that sum of money; the patterns are as diversified as the higher priced lines.

O'COATS

As smart and stylish garments as you'll ever set your eyes on or put your frame into. "Hart, Schaffner & Marx" made these overcoats for us, and for you, if you say so. A long, easy overcoat with patch pockets and a general air of distinction. You'll find lots of other good overcoats here, too. They're all wool and all right.

Shoes With Style to Wear

Our already large shoe business is opening this season with a big increase of up to the minute styles of shoes for ladies, men and little folks. Feet don't get too big or too small, or too wide or too narrow, but what we have just the shoe that will fit. The correct ladies' shoe for fall is the high-cut tan lace.

George J. Common, now an auctioneer in Seattle, but was one of the foremost men in the race horse world here years ago, arrived this morning to spend a vacation and take in the state fair. is the second trip Common has made to Salem during his racing career here long ago. He has a host of friends in this city, and is well known for his prominence in the race track events.

Must Improve Station—

The Railroad Commission has issued an order requiring the Southern Pacific Company to make several improvements on their Jefferson street depot in Portland. Instead of patronizing the home grocer, who carries him over the dull season of the year by giving him credit, many will do their trading direct with the houses in the East.

"The present post system is conducted at a loss to the grocer. The establishing of the parcels post system would cause a still further deficit. In a small country, as Switzerland, for example, the system might work successfully. To distribute merchandise throughout the United States, in Nevada, where there are but few railroads, would mean an enormous expenditure of money for a comparatively small return."
