CHIEF OF POLICE

GIBSON WILL RUN

The present city marshal and chief of police, popularly known as "Doc" Gibson, will be a candidate for re-nomination. He has served this city for two terms and there are many business men who believe the city could do no better than to keep him in that position for another term. He expects some opposition and has already had some, as any man must have who does his duty without fear or favor.

A good many people speak out when there is no one around to hear them.

SELLING LIQUOR TO MINORS

CASES IN CIRCUIT COURT

Gus Schrieber, who was indicted by the late grand jury of selling liquor to minors, is on the stand today in the circuit court and is proving to be quite an interesting case.

On the Fourth of July last, the indictment charges Schrieber of selling liquor to minors, they being Johnny Summer, age 20, and Harry Weston, age 20. This charge was brought against the defendant by Alderman H. S. Radcliff, who was at the time a member of the police committee. John Summer was the first witness to take the stand and testified to the effect Schrieber was behind the bar of his saloon, and handed him (Summer) and his friend Harry Weston, out beer which they paid for and drank. He also testified that while they were purchasing their beer, a boy of minor age by the name of Phomander entered the saloon followed by Radcliff, and that Radcliff informed Schrieber he was selling liquor to boys under age. Harry Weston's testimony corroborated with that of Summer when he was called upon the stand next. H. S. Radcliff was then requested to testify. He did while passing the Schrieber saloon he by chance glanced in and saw one of the boys standing in front of the bar with a glass of beer in his hand, and went in and informed the proprietor that the boys were under age, whereupon Schrieber questioned the boys who gave their ages from 21 to 23 years old. Schrieber, the defendant, was then called to the stand and told of how he was setting in a chair behind one end of the bar unable to move about comfortably owing to a severe lame back and that the Summer boy and Weston boy came in the saloon and bought beer and that before they could drink it, Radcliff entered and told him he was selling liquor to minors and he at once threw the beer away refusing to trade with them. At this juncture Attorney Kaiser for Schrieber requested the court to narrate to the court whether or not he gave instructions to his boys regarding the sale of liquor to minors, but Walter Winslow, who was appearing for the state, objected on the grounds that he was refused permission of an answer from the Moore, mother of Johnny Summer, one of the principals in the case who took the stand before Schrieber and was asked to tell the court she had given her son permission to drink, the court holding the permission was not in accordance with the usual testimony in the case. Attorney Kaiser cited several cases in which decisions were handed down relative to the present question asked the defendant, and it was found that on several occasions the defendants in several violations of the liquor cases, that the proprietors in the case is not held totally responsible for a violation of the law by his servant or helper whom he has given explicit and best directions, and that the seller of liquor to minors at his own risk. He was informed by his employer to do so. The court permitted Schrieber to answer the question and he said he had given strict orders to his helper, John Hamilton, not to sell liquor to minors. The court then adjourned until 1 o'clock.
