Great Public Improvements.
All the way from South Africa come J. S. Schoeman and Mrs. Schoeman to study for the benefit of their own country what is being done to reclaim the arid regions of the United States. They find in progress here the greatest work of reclamation and irrigation ever undertaken by any government in ancient or modern times. It is a work which President Roosevelt has justly said comes next to the homestead act in its importance to the American people. Sixteen states and territories are benefited by this tremendous improvement, and thousands of families have founded homes on the lands already redeemed from the desert.

Great and beneficent as this work is, it is but a feature of the general policy of Republican administrations from the period of reconstruction and especially within the past twelve years—to do the best possible for all the people and for all sections of the Union—to make the United States, east, west, north and south, a country worth living in, and to develop to the utmost the resources of the soil, of the forest, of the mines and waters of every region within the bounds of the republic.

The present political campaign will decide whether this policy is to continue, whether the nation is to go ahead or to halt, whether we are to have progress and prosperity under Taft or reaction and ruin under Bryan. The very platform on which Bryan stands and by the language of which he has repeatedly declared himself to be bound denounces Republican expenditures in general, including those for irrigation, as "unnecessary and wasteful." Bryan, if elected, would be as much bound by the platform as he is in the campaign, and this mighty undertaking, by which arid portions of sixteen states and territories are being converted into thrifty farms, would undoubtedly suffer.

The people of those states and territories are not the only parties interested in preventing such a calamity as stoppage or delay in the work of reclamation. Every patriotic and broad minded voter in the United States ought to be and will be influenced in his attitude toward the presidential contest by a determination that not only the reclamation service, but every other great scheme of national betterment begun and carried on under Republican administrations, shall continue and that the work shall not be handed over to the avowed enemies of progress. A vote for Taft and Sherman will be a vote for the earnest prosecution not only of the task of redeeming arid lands, but of every public improvement directed by federal authority.

Taft's Election Means More Work.
A member of New York Typographical union No. 4 is quoted as having said at a meeting of unemployed that the voters among them could help to solve the problem by voting for Taft and the development of business under Republican guidance and thereby opening new chances for employment.

The advice given was in accord with the general opinion of business men and of wage earners employed and unemployed. The election of Taft and Sherman is looked forward to as certain to bring a period of active and prosperous business, and it is said that many orders have been given to manufacturers subject to cancellation after election—meaning, although there is no mention made of candidates in the orders, that should Bryan be elected the orders would be canceled for reasons that every one with any foresight understands.

The problem of the unemployed can be solved only by employment. The election of Taft means employment. The election of Bryan would mean more unemployed. While there may be some ground for the old saying that misery loves company, it would be very poor consolation to the workless worker to have others brought into the same predicament. It would be much more satisfactory to get work and see others at work too. The election of Taft and Sherman and the continuance of Republican policies under a Republican administration will bring work.

From "The Recorded Sayings of William Jennings Bryan": "The friends of free silver have not been vanquished; they have simply been overcome. Let the roll be called for the next engagement." The bludgeon of the repudiator has not been cast away; it has simply been hidden back of the owner's coat-tails.

The only important act of congress with which Mr. Bryan's name is associated is the Wilson-Gorman tariff, which put the American woolgrower out of business and drove his sheep to the slaughter house.

Mr. Bryan is said to be very fond of music. His favorite song this year seems to be, "If You Ain't Got No Money You Needn't Come Around."

The Republican plan of campaign is on the firing line, and every shot tells.

DO NOT WANT ENEMY OF "REDS" IN ENGLAND

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Lisbon, via Badajoz, Oct. 20.—Startled by Dowager Queen Amelia's large transfers of money from Lisbon to London, British royalty has delicately hinted that it hopes her majesty is not going to move into England. The objection to the queen is purely political. The Portuguese "reds" hate her as bitterly as they hated King Carlos. King Edward fears further attempts on her life, and does not want them to materialize in England. The task of protecting her would be a source of constant worry to the government.

Wanted to Hear Old Bryan Speeches.

An enthusiastic supporter of Bryan owns a phonograph. Recently he ordered some records containing late speeches of the peerless leader, and when they arrived he invited in a Republican neighbor to listen to them. However, what the Bryan supporter intended to be fun at the Republican's expense turned out the reverse, for the Republican at once began to call for free silver speeches and free trade speeches and government ownership speeches and all kinds of Bryan speeches of a few years ago which are no longer "canned," being considered not fit for use this year. The Bryan man finally became exasperated and set the machine away.

The Wilson-Gorman tariff act, which Mr. Bryan helped to prepare and carry through congress and which President Cleveland denounced as "a creature of perfidy and dishonor," closed American factories, lowered American wages, brought the people to hunger and want and caused a deficit in the treasury. Mr. Bryan is today urging further tariff legislation of the same character. If the people prefer paralysis to prosperity, he is their man.

Mr. Bryan declares that "the United States senate is a place where every predatory corporation has found a bulwark." Mr. Bryan has not liked the senate very well since he failed to get there in 1904 by the use of the $20,000 donated by Thomas Fortune Ryan to carry the Nebraska legislature for Bryan.

Mr. Bryan was also going to "drive from the party" in the same manner as he threatens Haskell one Roger Sullivan of Illinois. At last accounts Mr. Sullivan was still in the party and seemingly on excellent terms with the candidate.

"Fearless in relentlessly warring against evil wherever it may be found" is a description that makes Mr. Taft the ideal champion of uprightness in American politics.

WHOLESALE WANTS LIQUOR LAWS OBSERVED

The Coos County Protective Association, an organization of the liquor dealers of this section, met in Marshfield last week to discuss the trade and business conditions. A number of the twenty or so dealers represented delivered addresses, the tenor of which was that the association should see that every dealer in the county comply with the letter of the law and the regulation, and that if any dealer should refuse to do so after he has been warned of violations, the associations should aid the officials in punishing him. Reports showed that the dealers have been complying closely with the law for some time. The next meeting of the association will be held in North Bend the second Tuesday in November.

Would Mortgage the Farm.

A farmer on Rural Route 2, Empire Co., W. A. Floyd by name, says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured two worst sores I ever saw, one on a hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weight in gold. I would not be without it if I had to mortgage the farm to get it." Only 25c at J. C. Perry's drug store.

The presidential campaign is developing much humor. For instance, Bryan is accused of being worth a million, and a boss besides. What makes it funny is that the accusations come from Republican leaders.

A painter, giving the name of R. McLain, tried to pass a check, drawn on an Iowa bank, for $1200 on a Hillsboro bank. The note was forwarded for collection, but, before the check was returned marked "no funds," the painter had disappeared.

More Than Enough Is Too Much.

To maintain health, a mature man or woman needs just enough food to repair the waste and supply energy and body heat. The habitual consumption of more food than is necessary for these purposes is the prime cause of stomach troubles, rheumatism and disorders of the kidneys. If troubled with indigestion, revise your diet, let reason and not appetite control and take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be all right again. For sale at Dr. Ston's drug store.

Two propositions for crossing the Willamette at Portland are before that city, the laying of a sub-way, at a cost of $8,000,000, or the building of a draw bridge, costing $1,500,000.
