TIMMONS SHOWS NO EMOTION

Dr. Morse's report on the condition of C. Y. Timmons, the self-confessed murderer of his 19-year-old wife shows the chances for his complete recovery to be the best possible. He passed a very good night and today he is in fine shape. Up to the present time Timmons has shown no sorrow or regret whatever of the crime he so horribly committed, and notwithstanding a few complaints regarding the nature of his wound he seldom talks of the deed. With the exception of a few minor complications which may result from the man's serious injury, he will in all probability live to be tried for his crime.

Three of the woman's children were slightly injured by the storm but the youngest, a babe in arms, escaped without a scratch.

when the disastrous fire occurred on the 17th of last month, is preparing today to defend himself against the charges of neglect and improper conduct that is held by the navy department to be responsible for the deaths of T. G. May, a chief machinist attached to the submarine boat Grampus and Paul Martin, a local peddler.

Lieutenant Dodd is held to be responsible because he allowed the crew of the Grampus to pump 75 gallons of gasoline into the bay alongside the quay wall when the boat should have gone into the middle of the stream to discharge it.

The presence of the gasoline on the bay made the water a seething mass of flame when the gasoline on the barge exploded and it was into the mess the men plunged to their deaths.

The case will be begun Monday. Captain John B. Milton of the receiving ship Independence will act as police court martial. Lieutenant Dodd said today that he would set up the defense that the yard facilities at Mare Island are so inadequate that the Grampus was unable to leave the quay wall to pump out her gasoline.

The equipment department, he said, was busy in charging the batteries of the boat and flushed but a few minutes before the boat was ready to enter the dry dock. Lieutenant Dodd is one of the most popular officers here.

STEAMER RAIDED BY PIRATES

San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 23.—The British steamship Strathford which arrived here today from Chile, reports a successful raid by Chilean coast pirates on the German steamship Serato in the harbor of Antofagasta on the night of Sept. 28. The cutting-out expedition was done almost under the eyes of a Chilean gunboat. Pursuit was given but the bandits took to the hills back of Antofagasta and escaped.

The German merchantman was anchored in the harbor loaded to the hatches with a cargo and prepared for sailing on the following morning.

Out of the darkness the pirates leaped on the vessel's decks, and in a twinkling, the watch was bound and gagged.

The noise of the struggle awoke the captain, who grasped his revolver and rushed on deck. The pirates crept into the shadow as the captain appeared. He was struck from behind with a belaying pin and fell unconscious.

By this time the crew was awakened and as they appeared on deck the pirates attacked them. A pitched battle with knives followed in which several of the crew were badly injured and the remainder bound and gagged.

The Chileans then sacked the vessel from stem to stern loading their loot on lighters they had brought with them.

Early next day a Chilean gunboat entered the harbor and the plight of the Serato was discovered. A landing party was sent in pursuit of the pirates who had several hours start and were safe in the hills.
