A MIX-UP MUSICAL COMEDY

Direct from an all-citizens' run at 25 prices at the New Amsterdam theater, New York, comes Geo. M. Cohan's latest musical comedy hit, "The Honeymooners," with the unchanged metropolitan production. Mr. Cohan has done nothing more entertaining or musical than "The Honeymooners," which comes to the Grand theater next Monday. It had to be a "knockout" in the parlance of the stage to score such a decisive hit in the summer months on Broadway and the tour on the road is a triumph. "The Honeymooners" is a typical Cohan song show with a score of catchy, breezy up-to-the-minute musical numbers, two score pretty girls who can both sing and dance, a brilliant cast and a plot that really tells a story. The action takes place in the little town of Tigerville, Vermont, and in depicting types of village character Mr. Cohan has in this instance exceeded the late Chas. H. Hoyt in illuminating but kindly satire. Cohan sees deep into the heart of things American but in his composition of the humor of our national life there is not a tinge of bitterness; rather his views are rosy colored and buoyant. Much of his amazing popularity is no doubt due to this buoyant optimism. In the town of Tigerville, John Tiger is running for the mayoralty on the Prohibition ticket. He has just returned from his honeymoon after marrying a charming woman who however neglected to inform him that she was a widow with a strapping son in college. She has nothing on Tiger for he has forgotten to tell her that he is a widower with a charming daughter at school. The college and the seminary are near together and unknown to the parents the young people have met and fallen in love with one another. They return unexpectedly to visit their parents and find them married. Each for a time attempts to conceal the identity of the offspring and the result is a delicious series of misunderstandings and domestic entanglements worked out with true Cohan dash and fun. There are a score of other characters and the snappy farcical plot moves with delightful speed. The scenery and costumes are superb. In the powerful cast are many Broadway favorites.

I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c at J. C. Perry's drug store.

doubtful and that California will give Taft slightly under 16,000 majority. "Taft will get his share of the San Francisco labor vote," said Wheeler.

"Bryan's bank guarantee plank is unpopular in the West," he continued. "I heard of no unemployed laborers in California while I was there. The West is prosperous and I can see no reason for Bryan's election."

California grape growers report a slackness of business owing to the immigration of 600,000 Italians in the East, who use cheap foreign wines. Crops are good but these influx of Europeans and the temperance movement has hurt the sale of Western wine.

that an answer to the question is not due the President but is due to Hisgen.

The Hearst candidate declares the question demanded an answer because the people are wondering who contributed so large an amount and why.

"Proof pointed to the Standard Oil company," continues the writer, "and, rather than explain this situation to the people, Mr. Mack finally stated to the newspaper men that he had made a deliberate misstatement about the $300,000 and that he really did not have it.

"Now, Mr. Bryan, how is the President to know why your friend and campaign manager is telling the truth and when he is telling a falsehood? Either Mr. Mack's statement that he had the money is a falsehood or the statement he did not have the money is a falsehood. Which is the falsehood? How is the President to know? How is the public to know?"

"You say that you made a false statement and you apologize for it. That is right. But must the president apologize because your friend Mr. Mack makes a false statement? The President is not responsible for Mack nor for Mr. Mack's falsehoods. You are responsible for Mr. Mack, Mr. Bryan. You are singularly unfortunate in your friends, Mr. Bryan. Here is Mr. Mack, your intimate friend, slated as a member of your cabinet in the close, who probably admits that he is a falsifier. The only question, is not whether Mr. Mack lied, but when he lied."

Hisgen then goes on to review the Haskell charges and declares that the Oklahoma governor withdrew his suit against his accuser through fear.

He classes Mack and Haskell as "bad eggs out of the same bad basket" and closes by advising Bryan that the Democratic standard bearer is "unfortunate in his choice of friends." In naming them he refers to Senator Bailey, Senator McLaurin, Roger Sullivan, Thomas Taggart and John W. Kern.

Bryan has denied emphatically that such a fund ever existed or that any such donation was ever made. His denial has been corroborated and supported by statements from National Chairman Norman E. Mack and various other Democratic leaders.

"The Rogue river near Gold bay," said Sachs, "is one of the finest fishing waters I ever had the pleasure of casting a line over, and some of the trout I hooked fought like demons. They run large, and I feel safe in saying that when the big fish that are hampered by obstructions in the river will have a chance to ascend the great water course, there will be a

REFUSE TO DISCUSS SALE OF FLOUR MILL PROPERTY

When questioned this morning regarding the probability of the Portland General Electric company purchasing the Salem Flouring Mill company's holdings in North Salem, W. P. Babcock, agent of the properties here, stated he was in no position to talk of the matter, although he did not deny or affirm the report. The Salem Flouring Mill property is the most valuable for development in this city, as arrangements already constructed by the present holders and the many splendid sites also belonging to the water power proper, makes development easy. With proper handling, the North Mill Creek will develop 1800 horse power. The consideration which is placed upon this land and power by the company is $56,000.
