for a time quite the wonder of Europe. She used white papers for her cuttings, placing them over a black surface, so that the minute openings made by her scissors formed the "light and shade."
The czar, Peter the Great, and others of high rank paid her honor. One man high in office vainly offered her 1000 florins for three small cuttings. The empress of Germany paid her 4000 florins for a trophy she had cut, bearing the arms of Emperor Leopold, crowned with eagles and surrounded by a garland of flowers. She also cut the emperor's portrait, which can now be seen in the Royal Art gallery in Vienna. A great many people went to see her, and she kept a book in which princes and princesses wrote their names.
After she died, which was when she had lived 65 years, her husband, Adolph Block, erected a monument to her memory and had designed upon it the portraits of these titled visitors. Her cuttings were so correct in effect and so tasteful as to give both dignity and value to her work and constitute her an artist whose exquisite skill with the scissors has never before or since been equaled.

A SCISSORS ARTIST
The Wonderful Feats Performed by Joanne Koestren.
More than 200 years ago a little girl was born at Amsterdam, Holland, whose name was Joanne Koestren. She was a peculiar child in that she cared nothing whatever for play and sport, but found her greatest delight in making copies of things about her, imitating in wax every kind of fruit and making on silk with colored floss exact copies of paintings which were thought wonderful.
But after she had become very accomplished in music, spinning and embroidery she abandoned all these for a still more extraordinary art—that of cutting. She executed landscapes, marine views, flowers, animals and portraits of people of such striking resemblance that she was

Knew His Business.
The Leroy Reporter tells this story about John E. Watrous of Burlington, Kan., one of the deputy collectors of internal revenue:
Traveling along a country road, Mr. Watrous was attracted by frightful screams coming from a little house not far from the road. Hastily tying his horse, he ran to the house and found a little boy had swallowed a quarter, and his mother, not knowing what to do, was frantic. Mr. Watrous caught the little fellow by the heels and, holding him up, gave him a few shakes, whereupon the coin dropped to the floor.
"Well, mister," said the grateful mother, "you certainly know how to get it out. Are you a doctor?"
"No, madam," replied Watrous. "I'm a collector of internal revenue."

GETS RELIGION AND CONFESSES MANY CRIMES
(United Press—Leased Wire.)
Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, Oct. 26.—A man giving the name of John P. Gamble, sits in a cell here today wondering if the law will show him any leniency because he got religion yesterday and confessed to several crimes, which he said he committed in Coeur D'Alene and Spokane.
Gamble arose in a gospel meeting and declared that God had forgiven him for "some of the blackest crimes that a man ever committed." Later, after he had been taken into custody by the police, he said he was the highwayman who shot H. E. Ayers in an attempted hold-up, attacked three other men on the streets Saturday night in Coeur D'Alene and since Sept. 1 has held up not less than 40 persons in Spokane.

The shortage in the treasurer's office in San Francisco has increased from $25,000 to $60,000 and one of the clerks has been arrested.
