

Old Coughs

Keep in close touch with your family doctor. No medicine has ever made that could take its place. Trust him at all times.

Old coughs, desperate coughs, rasping coughs, extremely perilous coughs, coughs that shake the whole body. It takes a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine, to master such coughs. A great many people rely on Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

INDUSTRIAL CONCILIATION IN ENGLAND

The new scheme of industrial arbitration, in which Churchill is interesting himself, does not in any way depart from the voluntary and permissive character of the conciliation act of 1896. The recent Trade Union congress seemed to show that a feeling in favor of arbitration is growing among the unions, but Ben Tillett's motion in favor of compulsory arbitration, on the lines of the New Zealand conciliation act of 1894, was rejected by the congress by 1,099,000 votes to 645,000. It may be interesting to point out that the furthest advance yet made in the direction of compulsion is to be credited to the boot and shoe trade. A special feature of the settlement of their dispute in 1895 was the deposit by each party of £1000 with trustees as a financial guarantee for the performance of agreements and awards. Much may reasonably be expected from Mr. Churchill's new departure. But after all, the ideal reform is to establish trade boards for each of the industries which do not at present possess them.

The fourth section of the conciliation act, 1896, to which the side note is, "Power for Board of Trade to aid in establishing conciliation boards," provides as follows:

"If it appears to the board of trade that in any district or trade adequate means do not exist for having disputes submitted to a conciliation board for the district or trade, they may appoint any person or persons to inquire into the conditions of the district or trade, and to confer with the employers and employed, and, if the board think it, with any local authority or body, as to the expediency of establishing a conciliation board for the district or trade."

I do not think much has been done under this section. In 1906, apart from local boards formed in the building trades under their national scheme, only five trade boards came into existence. This seems to me to be a direction in which, I respectfully submit, the energy of the new president of the board of trade might fruitfully be turned.

In conclusion, it has been suggested that a really big trade dispute will never be settled by arbitration. No doubt there are many questions on which disputes arise (e. g., the employment of non-union labor, the restriction of piece work, etc.), where there is no common agreement as to principles, and the nature of a particular case, may put limits to the applicability of arbitration as a method of settlement. In fact, under the terms of settlement of the dispute in the boot and shoe trade in 1895, drawn up at the board of trade, certain classes of questions (e. g., the employment of particular individuals, the adoption of piece work or time work, etc.) were exempted.

It may, however, be pointed out that a precisely similar objection is urged against international arbitration. Yet that great cause continues to make enormous advances, and so it will be with industrial arbitration. —London Leader.

NOTHING ELSE SO GOOD FOR YOUR STOMACH

Every family here ought to keep some Diapiesin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of indigestion or stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and take one tripartite after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapiesin is a certain cure for all stomach misery, because it will take hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmacist waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

AMERICANS WITHOUT A COUNTRY

I think it is from the ranks of the fastidious and indifferent that the confirmed expatriates are generally recruited. The newly rich are less tempted to abandon America altogether. They rush to Europe the moment they can, as seen in all the smart hotels, make the fortunes of dressmakers and jewelers, and then come home, because mere wealth is much more of a power on this side than on the other. The real expatriate despises and avoids them; they jar on his sensibilities too rudely. He and his fellows have, as a rule, much to say of the refined interests, the uplifting surroundings which they can cultivate and enjoy abroad; yet any intimacy with them leads to the conviction that those who are not professional workers take but slight notice of the treasures of art or thought or nature by which they are surrounded. They are really people who want to lick all the jam off life without ever getting to its crust. The American expatriates who have distinguished themselves can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Most of the others form a non-producing class, deteriorating in quality as it increases in numbers. The expatriates draw their income from American sources, contribute nothing but abuse in return, and are as unprofitable to the country of their adoption as to that of their parentage. With the exception of the few American women who have married happily abroad and who have had the wisdom to heartily espouse the country as well as the husband, the expatriates are aliens wherever they may be. They hobnob lustily with other aliens and abuse the institutions of their chosen residence with a virtuosity only suppressed during their rare visit to America; they openly condemn the religion, the politics, the national institutions of the country where they have established themselves, contribute nothing toward its defenses or its development, and die, after 40 or 50 years' exile, in profound ignorance of all that is best in their surroundings. If they behave themselves they are regarded with amused tolerance by the social world of their alfenship, used unscrupulously when they are willing to pay for its fads, and forgotten the moment anything of real importance is in hand. Why not—Mary Crawford Fraser in Scribner's.

A Home Remedy That Reduces Fat.
Would you like to have a nice firm figure, but escape the tiresome, bone-breaking exercise or the soul-sickening diet of the old-time plan of reducing excess flesh?
Then go to the druggist and ask for this inexpensive mixture: 1/2 ounce Marmola, 1/4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 3 1/2 ounces Syrup Simplex. Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, and in a few weeks you can be as fit physically as a fawn. Mix these ingredients at home if you wish, but see that you get the Marmola in a sealed package. When fresh it acts quicker.

There Was a Difference.

A bright little woman was recently overheard lecturing her husband as follows:
"Now I'll tell you why I wouldn't go into the restaurant and have a cup of coffee with you while we were waiting for the train. I didn't like the way you asked me. Not half an hour before you said to Mr. Puffer, 'Come let's get a cigar,' and away you went holding his arm and not giving him a chance to decline."
"When we met John Howdy on our way to luncheon you said: 'Just in time, John. Come take lunch with us!' And then tonight, when we had to wait an hour for the train, you looked at your watch, turned on me and said in a questioning way: 'Would you like a cup of coffee?' And I did want it. I was tired and a little hungry, but I would have fainted before I would have accepted such an invitation. And you went away a little bit vexed with me and had your coffee and bread and butter by yourself and didn't enjoy them very much. In effect you said to me, 'If you want a cup of coffee, if you really want it, I will buy it for you.'"
"You are the best husband in the world, but do so nearly as all the best husbands do."

LIVES WITH BULLET IN HIS BRAIN

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Glenn Ellen, Calif., Oct. 28.—The chances of recovery for Natalfie Pucel, a wine merchant, who was shot from ambush near his home and who has lived two weeks with a bullet in his brain, are brighter today. The surgeons believe that he will recover although it will be impossible to extract the leaden pellet. Pucel has a second bullet in his arm which has not been removed for fear that the resulting shock might prove fatal.

Ettale Bianchini is being detained by the authorities on charges of shooting Pucel.

Pie With Knives.

George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and James Monroe, the first five presidents, each ate a pie with his knife. It was not until John Quincy Adams entered the White House that the substitution of the fork for the knife seems to have occurred to any citizen of America. "He contracted the habit while in France," said Mrs. Adams in an apologetic tone to some of her guests, "and he finds it difficult to break himself of it since we returned home." So the first great general of the American army, the sturdy patriot of Massachusetts, the author of the Declaration of Independence, the chief advocate of the federal constitution and the originator of the Monroe doctrine, all ate pie with the knife.—Utica Observer.

Had a Close Call.
Mrs. Ada L. Croon, the well-known proprietor of the Croon Hotel, Vaughn, Miss., says: "For several months I suffered with a severe cough, and consumption seemed to have its grip on me, when a friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery. I began taking it, and the bottles affected a complete cure. The fame of this life-saving cough and cold remedy, and lung and throat healer is world wide. Sold at J. C. Perry's drug store, 59 and 61 N. Trial bottle free.

"Why do you men seem to dole out things to your wives when you fairly throw them to the men you know? Why didn't you invite me heartily as you invite men? Why didn't you say, 'Come, let's have a little coffee and something' and take me straight away with you?"
"You wouldn't say to a man, 'Would you like me to go and buy you a cigar?' Then why do you always issue your little invitations to treats in that way to me?"
"Indeed, if men would only act toward their wives as heartily, cordially and frankly as they do toward the men whom they meet they would find cheerier companions at home than they could at the club."—San Francisco Chronicle.
