

NEW IDEAS IN WINTER FASHIONS

Inexpensive Models of Cashmere and Net--Evening Coats and Capes--Fur Ruffs and Rug Muffs--Smart Fur Coats

Very pretty and what is better, comparatively inexpensive evening dresses are this season made of cashmere in white, pale pink, blue or lavender. This fabric drapes beautifully and is handsomely trimmed with satin bands, silk braid, or braided effects in ribbon or velvet. Black of white point d'Esprit net is another excellent material for the modest evening gown.

Wraps for Evening.

Long loose coats of broadcloth with flowing sleeves are worn a great deal for evening. These are lined with satin of white or pale colors and are lavishly trimmed with silk braid of the same shade as the material. Very pretty evening wraps also take the shape of capes of pink, pale blue, red or tan broadcloth, cut with a high military collar trimmed with gold braid and having the front set off by a few brass buttons. More expensive evening coats are made of satin or Ottoman silk.

The above designs are by The McCall Company, New York. Patterns may be obtained at any McCall Agency.

run to keep the ruff upright and close around the neck. This is finished with a rosette and long ends of satin ribbon or a bunch of fur tails. Again the ruff is made of white bengaline, edged with mink and fancifully trimmed with tails at the closing which can be worn either at the front, one side, or the back. A little ruff of pony skin is pleated and stands up around the face like the neckwear shown in portraits of Queen Elizabeth. A very handsome ruff of ermine has a big effect of the fur in the front to cover the V shaped opening shown in most of the new coats. It is further trimmed with bright green velvet ribbon and set off by a jabot of lace. Extremely pretty also, and what is better comparatively inexpensive, is a ruff of dyed muskrat that fastens in the front by slipping one end through a loop of fur and forms a four shells effect.

Stoles are still worn; but this year they are made flat without any padding. Muffs are very large and are made felt in rug style, in the conventional almost square shape in vogue last year, or in the new Directoire model which is about 22 inches broad but has a shir string by which it can be drawn up at top giving it a sort of triangular effect.

Fur Coats.

Persian broadtail is used for a garment 36 inches long in semi-fitting style and fastens with cut steel buttons. Another attractive coat is made of muskrat, dyed by the new process so that it is an exact copy of sealskin. This is in a long, loose shape that comes down nearly to the bottom of the skirt. It has a satin sash in front and long sash ends brought across the back in Empire effect and finished with tassels.
