GIBSON POINTS OUT DOCTOR TO BLAME FOR SWEETHEART'S DEATH

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—Dr. G. W. O'Donnell, a physician of San Francisco, was appointed out by young James H. Gibson of Coos, Oregon, on the witness stand in the coroner's office today as the surgeon, who under the name of "Dr. J. J. Black" performed the operation that is alleged to have resulted in the death of his sweetheart Vesta Van Vlack.

"The doctor I saw, and the man who promised not to do anything to hurt my sweetheart, was Dr. J. J. Black," declared Gibson, endeavoring to suppress his emotion. "And that man is seated here in the courtroom," he cried pointing his finger dramatically at Dr. George W. O'Donnell, who was sitting on one of the wooden benches in the inquest room.

Detective Sergeant Ed Wren was called on to substantiate the boy's statement. The detective said that when he went to arrest "Dr. Black" the boy pointed out Dr. O'Donnell to him and the surgeon was taken into custody.

"Do you wish to say anything doctor?" asked Coroner T. B. W. Leland.

"I do not," was the response of Dr. O'Donnell.

The youth's identification of the San Francisco physician at the conclusion of his tale of his relations with the girl in the Oregon town, their endeavors to right the wrongs both had committed and of the death of his sweetheart which sent him to the city prison and has divided the medical fraternity in this city.

MAYOR RODGERS ISSUES A STATEMENT

FAVORS ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS AND LIBERAL EXPENDITURE OF MONEY FOR PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT.

To the People of Salem:

To be mayor of Salem is a personal sacrifice and public service which people generally do not appreciate. I do not seek the place, but if the people desire me to continue in office it is but fair that they know what course I intend to pursue, so that my election will amount to an endorsement or my defeat a rejection of my policies.

In the first place it is not for an executive to say which laws on the statute books are good and which are not good. It is for him to enforce all laws alike. This I purpose to do to the utmost limit.

If I am not given a police force that will carry out my orders I will hire one of my own at the expense of the city.

If the city refuses to back me up, I will resign. If you give me the reins, I must insist on driving.

If we have unwise laws the people should insist upon their repeal. Wise and unwise laws will be enforced. The people have no right to exact an oath from an executive to the effect that he will enforce the law, and then scout him as a crank when he endeavors to live up to the letter of his pledge. I do not believe in bow-knot oaths. Mine must be of the square knot variety, with loose ends to pull free.

Merchants and property owners must comply with laws governing private property, public thoroughfares and sanitation. Building joints must close. I will not have a lot of tin-horn gamblers taking off the community and setting off the law, nor will I raid them single-handed. It is the business of the police, law-defying saloons, get no protection. A man who is intoxicated man a drink is sometimes worse than the frog, and in such case, is the victim and not the saloon man the criminal.

I shall continue to be for spending plenty of money for public improvements and taxpayers who want trenchment will not find a more sive servant in me. If I could boast of spending more money in any previous administration I spent, I would consider me a failure. The country is forging ahead and Salem must keep awake respectfully.

LAW SUIT BECAUSE DOG CAUSED RUNAWAY
Justice of the Peace Webster will convene court at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning for the purpose of hearing a damage suit instigated by J. W. McDaniels against the Long State street feed store. McDaniels asks judgment from the Long Brothers in the sum of $75 for injuries to himself and damage done to his buggy through a certain dog of the Long Brothers frightening his horse near the feed store and causing it to smash things up generally.

COURT HOUSE NEWS

- Krebs Sue Livesley.
A complaint was filed in the circuit court this morning by the Krebs Hop company against T. A. Livesley Hop company for damages amounting to $7000 incurred through a breach of contract which the plaintiffs allege to have entered into with the T. A. Livesley company. In the complaint T. A. Livesley & Co. are alleged to have contracted with the Krebs Bros. for 500,000 pounds of prime Oregon hops, to be delivered at a certain point on the Willamette river, but upon informing the Livesley company that the hops were in order for shipment, the Livesley people were in no notion of taking the amount contracted for and called the contract void. The complaint also alleges that the price of hops at that particular time was 7c per pound, and therefore are entitled to damages in the above sum. Carson & Canno appear as attorneys for the plaintiffs.
