AND ORGANIZES FOR BUSINESS

SOME IMPORTANT EVENTS

○ Kaiser Wilhelm has complied with the wishes of the people and will hereafter obey the constitution.
○ Mrs. Mily Craig Chadbourne, society leader of Chicago will probably lose two art paintings, valued at $70,453, for smuggling in some dutiable goods for Mrs. "Jack" Gardner, also of the upper circles.
○ Senator Elkins is planning the removal of the federal employee who gave out the information that the ruby sent by Duke d'Abruzzi to Catherine Elkins had been seized and would be held until $1800 duty had been paid.
○ President Roosevelt, at his dinner to the labor leaders last night, made many inquiries and is said to be planning better labor legislation.
○ Bryan announces that conditions may force him to run for the Presidency again.
○ Taft, it is said, will change his entire cabinet on the advice of Roosevelt.

The discussion was general, and all present seemed to unite upon the subject of securing mountain water for the city and state. Gov. Chamberlain said the state was in a position which required prompt action to secure a better water system of its institutions, and hoped a plan could be evolved whereby the city and the state could join in bringing in the best of water from the mountains for both, and thus avoid the necessity on the part of the state for constructing a new system of its own.
Upon motion an executive committee composed of the president and secretary and three other members was authorized to formulate plans and name standing committees. The chair named as such committees Aug. Huokestein H. W. Meyers and Judge Bushey.
The following permanent officers were elected: President, Governor Geo. E. Chamberlain; vice president, Hon. T. B. Kay; secretary, A. F. Hofer.
The executive committee will meet tomorrow and announce the standing committees.

THREE DEAD IN WRECK

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 18.—Three deaths indirectly due to the floods caused by recent heavy rains occurred here when three cars and the engine of a freight train, caught in a washout, rolled down a 40-foot embankment.
The fireman, engineer and brakeman were carried to the foot of the bluff and crushed to death in the wreckage. Owing to the automatic action of the air brakes, the remainder of the train was held on the rails through the breaking of the couplings forward.

on labor to congress. The invitation, if one has been sent, has not reached Denver.
The morning proceedings of the convention today were given over chiefly to jurisdictional squabbles. An acrimonious debate was precipitated by the report of the committee on adjustment which suggested that the dispute between the international association of machinists and the elevator construction workers be referred to the executive board for final adjustment.
Delegate Feeney bitterly protested against this action and James O'Connell, president of the machinists replied with the declaration that he had been charged by his own association with "laying down" whereas he had really done his best to prevent the bringing into the convention of the dispute.
"But if these people want trouble, we are here to give it to them," he shouted.
Resolutions urging every labor union in the United States to hold a special celebration in honor of the Lincoln centennial in 1909 was adopted by a unanimous vote.

JACK GOODE'S HOME BURNED

The home of Jack Goode in North Salem was burned to the ground today about noon, the origin of the destructive blaze not being exactly known although a defective flue is said to have been the cause. Little of the furnishings were damaged, and no one was injured. The fire department was called in due time to save the dwelling had there been water in any reasonable distance, but, as no water was available, the fire fighting crew were helpless in any attempt to quell the flames. The loss of the house, which was the property of Jack Goode's father, Councilman J. F. Goode, amounts to about $500. Insurance covers the loss.
