COURT HOUSE NEWS

Mrs. Helena Yannek was given a decree for divorce by Judge Galloway last night, after she and a few other witnesses submitted testimony. A satisfactory settlement was arrived at between the two parties, by Mrs. Yannek receiving $3000 in money, in addition to considerable property rights.

Jessie M. Crossan appeared before Judge Galloway this morning with a request for the dissolving of her marriage ties with her husband, L. E. Crossan, on the grounds of desertion. The judge granted the decree for divorce, after hearing the testimony of Mrs. Crossan and her mother.

In the case of State vs. Kincaid, Judge Galloway postponed the matter until a later date.

In the quiet title case of the City of Salem against the Salem Dray and Hack Co., Judge Galloway handed down a decree in favor of the plaintiffs.

A Gentleman's Resort— "Dad" Geier, one of our most enterprising business men, at an expense of about $3000, will open tonight a first-class billiard and pool room over the Salem Hardware Store on North Commercial street.

This place of amusement, offers to the public what has long been lacking in Salem. The location could not be better, and will be conducted in a way making a pleasant resort for both ladies and gentlemen. It has been fitted up in a very tasty manner, with modern fixtures, and eight new billiard and pool tables, thus giving one the impression of refinement. Mr. Geier is certainly up-to-date in managing a place of this kind, as shown by the following invitation: "Every Wednesday afternoon, from 1 to 5 p. m., the use of the tables are free to ladies, and also gentlemen accompanied by a lady." The hall has been richly decorated, and everything is new, and Mr. Geier intends to conduct it in a manner suggestive to the best people as the very best place to invite your friends these long winter evenings and your lady friends on Wednesday afternoons. Let us all join with The Journal in wishing Mr. Geier extraordinary success.
