Press Club Banquet.—The Salem Press Club is to give a banquet tonight at the Elite Cafe, as the last sad rite over a departed member, or rather a member about to depart to make his home in California. Mr. Albert Michelson, who has been city editor of The Capital Journal for several months past, is the poor unfortunate who has chosen to leave the banks of the beautiful Willamette for the fogblown city of graft and earthquake, and it is in his honor that the banquet is given. Among those expected to be present are R. J. Hendricks, R. McK. Hofer, Wm. Babcock, Don H. Upjohn, A. W. Prescott, Willard Wirtz, Carl Abrams, Charles E. Hicks, J. S. Wyant, M. D. Morgan, Lester Davis, and all other members of the club.

Just the Gift.—There is a book for you to give to any relative or friend that will convey exactly your message of love and good will—of whatever nature. Nothing else will do this. All the new books to choose from at Pattons' book store.

Students Expelled.—Alleged to have been implicated in the "dolings" Tuesday night, when the corner stone of Eaton Hall disappeared, just previous to the day it was to be laid; when a cow was found in the University chapel, and when tricks were played with stove lids, three students were yesterday notified by the discipline committee of the Willamette University that their presence was no longer desired at that institution. They are George E. Lowe, of Montana, student of medicine; Clyde Vincent Nelson, of Tacoma, senior in liberal arts, and Lewis Hohson, junior in liberal arts.

Hains Murder Trial. Flushing, L. I., Dec. 18.—The trial of Thornton Jenkins Hains, charged with the murder of William E. Anns, was delayed today by the discovery that exhibits and papers important to the prosecution's case were locked in an old-fashioned safe, of which the combination had been forgotten.

Assistant District Attorney Darrin was forced to send an expert safe breaker to open the safe. The exhibits consisted of two revolvers and the bloodstained bathing suit of Anns.

Frederick Storm, a Bayside real estate dealer, was cross-examined today by the defense regarding his supposed knowledge of the whereabouts of John Tonning, a Swedish boat man, whose testimony, it is believed, will aid in acquitting the defendant.

Herbert L. Funke testified that Hains approached him before the shooting and asked: "Where is Anns?" Funke said that he replied, pointing toward the yacht in which Anns was nearing the Bayside float. Hains then asked him if he knew Jesterson, to which Funke said he replied in the negative.

The witness declared that he watched Hains as he approached the yacht.

that a legal separation of both parties be granted, providing a satisfactory allowance is made for the support of the plaintiff can be arrived at.

"It is admitted by the defendant that he is worth $50,000, but the court is of the opinion, after hearing all the testimony, and taking into consideration the value of realty in and near Salem, the defendant is worth nearer $100,000, none of which in equity should go to the children of the plaintiff, as they had no part in acquiring this estate, but the plaintiff should be provided for during her natural life, or while she remains single, at the expense of the defendant.

"The defendant voluntarily entered into marriage relations with the plaintiff, taking her for better or worse as long as they lived, and as evidence shows, she has kept house for him and cared for his minor children as a mother should for nearly six years preceding the commencement of this suit.

"The plaintiff alleges cruel and inhuman treatment and accuses the defendant of not properly supplying the household with necessary provision and the family with sufficient raiment. From all the testimony that has been shown and from bills for supplies produced as exhibits in this case, it is shown that the cost of living in this family of six, two of whom are young women, is less than $850 per annum. While the court would not wish to find that defendant had starved his family, yet it is the opinion of the court that economy was practiced to the danger point.

"But for the fact that a decree for the plaintiff would carry with it one-third of the realty of the defendant, the court could readily pass upon a divorce if proper arrangements for alimony could be arrived at. But, as the court has said, the children of the plaintiff are not entitled to any interest in this large estate through their mother, the court asks the counsel, with their clients, to arrange the property rights, and the court would pass upon the divorce proceedings; until then he will hold the matter under advisement.

ADVOCATE AN AMERICAN CARDINAL

(United Press Leased Wire.) Rome, Dec. 18.—Advocates of the creation of an American cardinal are trying to see something hopeful in the postponement until 1909 of the Consistory which was to have been held late this year. Their idea is that the delay was decided on to give time for consideration of the United States claims. In spite of these hopeful expressions, however, a majority among the best informed clerics don't think things look bright at present.

The candidate most discussed are the archbishops of New York, Boston, Chicago and St. Louis. The first and second on the list are considered the strongest probabilities. Most of the Americans who have discussed the appointments here have been supporters of the archbishop of New York, but the Vatican is said to be rather more favorable to the head of the Boston archdiocese.

However the Americans may fare, there will be some cardinals created at the Consistory. Those most likely to receive red hats are: Monsignor Mendez Bello, present patriarch of Lisbon, who is considered entitled to a place in the sacred college under the terms of the "concordat."

Monsignor Granito Di Belmonte, now legate at Vienna, for whom a vice is needed inasmuch as conditions in Austria make it undesirable for him to remain in his present post.

Monsignor Bisleti, now first major domo of the Vatican.

Monsignor Giustini, secretary of the congregation of Sacraments.

Monsignor Lugari, assessor to the holy office.

Despite frequent report that Archbishop Bourne of Westminster is unacceptable on account of supposed tendencies toward modernism, there is a general impression that his chance of elevation is also excellent as a reward for his work in making the Eucharistic congress in London so brilliant a success.

ESCAPED PRISONER.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Chicago, Dec. 18.—Terribly emaciated and apparently starved, Chas. Verman, 55 years of age, told the police today that he had escaped from the stockade of the New corn Products plant, at Argo, where, he said, he had been kept prisoner, with other workmen, for four months.

He declared that, after three months of confinement, he made a request to leave. This request, he said, was flatly refused, and he was ordered to go back to his work, under conditions which became intolerable.

Finally, in desperation, he said that he took a chance and made his escape. He hid in a load of dirt, with only his head protruding. In this way, he said, he eluded the vigilance of the sentries. When the wagon reached a point outside of the stockade, where he thought it was safe to leave it, he wriggled from his temporary grave, and, jumping out, made his escape without being caught.

The officers of the Newcorn Products Company are expected to appear this afternoon at the meeting of the federal grand jury, which is investigating the charges made by its employees. They will probably deny Verman's sensational story.

SPECIAL PIANO SALE END OF YEAR SALE

GEO. C. WILL HAS HAD SUCCESSFUL SELLING PIANOS

Having had a very successful year in selling a large number of pianos, and to make this showing as large as can possibly be made, I have decided to give the people of Salem and vicinity a chance to buy pianos cheaper than they ever bought pianos before. This is to sell a lot of pianos in a short space of time and to make the number of pianos sold a record number this year.

Why do I say you can buy pianos cheaper than ever before. The reasons are, if you will investigate, that I purchase my pianos cheaper than any other dealer in the state of Oregon. No consigned pianos in stock. Also on account of the fact that we do most of the work ourselves much less than others bear. Also, the shipping of pianos in car load lots, without boxes, as we do, makes a large saving to you, in the prices of the boxes and the freight on them. Then, with the large reductions I
