THE GAS METER EXPLODED

San Francisco, Dec. 21.—Nathan Simonoff, clerk, is declared to be dying from burns he received yesterday, caused by the explosion of a gas burner in his room. When the burner exploded Simonoff was hurled across the room, and was struck by the ledge of a marble mantle. The result: a fracture of his skull. The noise of the explosion brought other occupants of the house to his aid. Simonoff was found lying partly under the mantle ledge with his clothing ablaze. He was taken to the German Hospital. The blast demolished the furniture and plaster on one side of the room. The cause of the explosion could not be learned.

CORNERED EXPERIMENT
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Roseburg, Or., Dec. 21.—Three boys, who acted as human targets for each other, are today suffering from bullet wounds, each having been hit once.

The lads were practicing with their air guns yesterday when one of them suggested they stand off a few paces and shoot at each other. This sounded like good sport to the other two, so the shooting began. Now two of the youngsters have bullet holes in their legs and the third has in his back what may prove to be a serious wound.

GET RELIGION

BY PHONOGRAPH
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Bellingham, Wash., Dec. 21.—"Canned" sermons, prayers and hymns will henceforth be the rule in the little church at Deming, a small town ten miles from Bellingham, for the congregation has been unable to have a minister to fill the pulpit regularly on Sundays. The new custom was inaugurated yesterday with marked success. The congregation listened to a sermon preached into a phonograph by a Bellingham minister and to hymns sang into by a choir. The deacons of the church are practically assured of a good attendance at church on Sabbath day, when two services instead of one will be held in the future.
