M'GINN WOULD HAVE JUDGES LOOK WISE

Hon. Henry E. McGinn attacked the self-multiplying predatory habits of office-holders last night, by arraiging the circuit court of Multnomah county for working under a very impressive system of sitting in bank and hearing four cases a day when many of the judges of the court run-over a whole docket in a few hours. The judicial lottery and faro bank methods got one of his warmest grillings, and he was especially caustic at the expense of Judge Cleland, who, he said, was the inventor of the impressive procedure that transacted as little business as possible and was clamoring for additional judges. Mr. McGinn has alone and single-handed taken up this fight, taking the position that most of the lawyers are prone to hustle for whatever the man on the bench says he wants; Mr. McGinn would quadruple the working capacity of the bench instead of putting more ornaments on the bench at $4000 a year. He also opposed the idea that the circuit judges down there were any more entitled to $4000 a year than the country judges who got but $3000.

Some of the Proceedings.

A bill to increase the number of circuit judges from four to six caused an excited throng to attend the committee hearing last night. The Multnomah delegation was incidentally present, at which ex-Senator Malarkey made a few eloquent remarks on the advisability of the increase. There is always a pressing demand for more judges—at the expense of the taxpayers, as they are always a choice lot of talented gentlemen doing a law 'business' in Oregon who can be persuaded to take a better job. Malarkey seemed to want it understood that he was addressing his remarks to Henry McGinn. Brady wanted to pull him off, but Selling said 'sick 'em.' According to Malarkey suing one another is the principle business of a large part of the population, and anyone starting a suit has to arrange for his administrator to appear at some time after his demise. If that official is not much past middle life. Mr. McGinn said that the particular pet of the legislature, the circuit judges, held a sinecure. Four gentlemen sat on a bench and lided away their time doing something which in other districts was done by one man. No lawyer would think of doing anything that a circuit judge did not want him to do. He would not do it himself. He was a judge once himself and had not enough to keep him warm. There was no responsibility in the present court sitting in banco—six weeks of legal holidays and each one a professor in a law school. The cumbersome machinery now in vogue was the invention of one Judge Cleland. He was to have no other business directly or indirectly. He produced a mining advertisement of a page in the Portland papers of the greatest placer mining, offering 200 per cent dividends, of which Judge Cleland was president, and drawing $1000 a year as professor of a law school. Instead of calling the docket they set four cases for trial and, if for any reason, they are continued, then the judges do nothing all day. Business men no longer went into court with their differences. He left the impression that he did not want more judges but less. One good country judge alone and single-handed would clean up that docket in 60 days. Mr. Bernstein did not agree with McGinn that there was any loafing on the Portland bench. The men who sat on the bench worked hard—holding it down. A man could not be heard in a Multnomah county court unless he hollered his head off. Mr. Bernstein wants more judges.

Hurt At the Mill—

Mr. Adam Frohman, an employe of the Spaulding Logging Co., met with an accident at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon while pulling logs at the boom. He was struck near the groin and was removed to his home at 911 North Front street and Dr. Byrd attended him.

Signed Many Petitions —

The county commissioners were the busiest officials in the court house today, checking up petitions recommending new road supervisors. In several instances the commissioners found errors in the petitions, but most of them were those which had been signed twice. On a petition coming from road district No. 33 1/2, near Melham and Mills City, A. A. Richard's papers were filed along with F. E. Woodward, of the same district, and, after checking them up the commissioners found that Richard could only be entitled to eight signers, while Woodward was given seven, due to the taxpayers signing both petitions.

Are You One of Them?

The house wife who has been induced to buy a phosphate baking powder by grocers or canvassers will be somewhat chagrined to learn that this character of goods is made from burned bones mixed with diluted oil of vitrol. It seems that there is no law compelling these long-shot boys to print the ingredients on the can, and hence the consumer is easily deceived. Goods of this class cost very little to manufacture—about 3 or 4 cents per pound not much more than the price of the bone or alum from which they are made. We find upon investigation that the only real baking powder is made from cream of tartar and soda and a small per cent of starch to add to its keeping qualities. All the good brands have the ingredients printed on the label. 1-13-09

LOSES SUIT AGAINST MT. ANGEL MARSHAL

The time of the circuit court yesterday was taken up by the suit of Fred Fogel against Antone Peoplin, the city marshal of Mt. Angel, for arresting and holding him, as he alleges, without reasonable cause. Fogel is alleged by the testimony today to have forcibly entered the home of Michael Ackerman, a resident of Mt. Angel, and making threats toward his daughter, and was persistent in his demand that she should marry him, though this was contrary to her wishes and those of her father. The testimony also showed that Fogel was the cause, mainly, in driving Miss Ackerman from the city of Portland back to her home in Mt. Angel, in order to procure the necessary protection from fogel, who, it is alleged, made dangerous threats against the young lady's life if she refused to take into consideration his affection and love for her by marrying him. The defense stated their case as being strictly according to law on the part of the city marshal of Mt. Angel, and as Fogel was acting badly, the marshal was compelled to put him behind the bars.

The plaintiff, Fogel, on the other hand, testified to the effect that he was invited to Mt. Angel by the young lady, and was asked to visit the home which he did with no intention of committing any crime, but in a friendly manner. The other allegations made by the defendants were denied by Fogel.

In making the final address to the jury, Attorney Caron for the defendant, grew very caustic and painted Fogel up in various brilliant colors regarding the alleged actions charged against him, and dwelt considerably on the nationality question, Fogel being a Hungarian. Attorney Bingham, for Fogel, in response to Caron's speech, told the jury to compare the plaintiff, Fogel, with Attorney Brown, another one of Peoplin's counsel, and draw their own conclusions in relation to feature and other likely points. This comparison drew smiles from both the jury and spectators, as Attorney Brown resembled Fogel in no way at all. Bingham's main reason, however, for asking the jury to consider this question, was based on the allegations made by Attorney Caron saying Fogel looked the part of a degenerate and a cigarette fiend.

Judge Burnett cautioned the jury in giving them their instructions, not to draw any inference on the nationality question, as the present case had no bearing upon whether or not Fogel was a Hungarian or any other foreigner. The court also advised the jury to be careful in weighing the evidence in regard to whether Fogel was acting in a manner to warrant his arrest by the officer, and committing a felony not personally witnessed by the defendant. The court held that in case of a crime committed by any person, whether it be under the observance of the officers or not, that person can be arrested and prosecuted without the officer taking out a warrant before the arrest. The jury handed in a verdict in favor of the defendant. Caron & Brown appeared as counsel for Peoplin, and George C. Bingham for the plaintiff.
