A baby being carried by Mrs. Siefert at the time received a few shots in the arm, but was not seriously wounded. Mrs. Siefert saw her husband reach for the gun, but before she could escape from the room he had fired. The attending physician are of the opinion that both Seifer and his wife will die.

PROGRESS MADE IN EDUCATIONAL WORK

Negotiations are under way for a German edition of W. M. Davis's Physical Geography and also of his Practical Exercises in Physical Geography, both of which are published by Ginn & Company. The great publishing house of Teubner in Leipzig is to bring out the German editions. Professor Davis is this year a Harvard exchange professor at Berlin, and recently was given an interview by the German Emperor.

One of the oldest and best known college professors in the country, John Williams White, has just resigned his position at Harvard where he has been teaching Greek since 1874. Professor White was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university in 1868 and three years later received his A. M. degree there. After that he studied at Berlin and Harvard, where he received a doctor's degree in 1877. He has been the recipient of several higher degrees and many notable honors in the past 30 years. Probably he is best known to teachers and pupils through his "First Greek Book," published by Ginn & Company. From available statistics, it is estimated that 80 per cent of the high schools and academies where Greek is taught use this book.

The educational Museum of Teachers College, at Columbia university, has opened an exhibit of material collected in various parts of the world by Professor David Eugene Smith to show the historical development of mathematics. The growth of number systems is illustrated by several Babylonian cylinders, by magic squares on stone and in Chinese silk, and by Greek, Persian, Egyptian, Roman, Arabic, Chinese, Japanese and Hindu mathematical materials.
