

SOCIAL AND DRAMATIC EVENTS OF THE WEEK

SOCIETY

The usual quietness and lull in social activity that precedes the Lenten season, has been noticed the past week, and no large or formal functions will be given in the days preceding Ash Wednesday, the 24th. The past week interest has centered around the centenary celebrations of Lincoln's birthday, every political, religious and social organization honoring his memory in some manner. Some entertaining will be done next week, mostly of an informal nature. Interest centers principally among the young folk around the Valentine dancing party, to be given by Miss Sherman in the armory Monday night.

Students Here.

Although no formal entertaining has been done for the students from the University of Oregon, their presence here the past week has brightened many homes. Among them are Rex Turner, who entertains Harold Hunt at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Turner; Miss Jennie Fry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Fry; Ralph Moores, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Moores; Miss Adele Goff, Arthur Van Dusen and Dean Hayes, being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown; Miss Peggy McNair, guest of Miss Elene Fawk; Miss Francis Nelson, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Bishop; Harold and Ormond Bean, sons of Judge and Mrs. R. S. Bean; Gerald Eastham, who spent a day with his brother, Prof. Eastham; Harvey Slater, son of Judge and Mrs. W. T. Slater; Robert Hendricks, guest of friends and relatives; Carl Gabrielson, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Gabrielson; Miss Madeline Walker, with her mother, Mrs. C. M. Walker.

Men's Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Club of the Baptist church was held last Tuesday evening, in the church parlors. The club is made up of members of the church, and business and professional men, who discuss practical subjects at a supper which the ladies of the church serve at 6:30 o'clock.

Miss Adams' Recital.

Miss Adams, assistant instructor of the College of Oratory of Willamette University pleased a large number of friends in a recital in the chapel of Willamette University last night. Miss Adams appeared in dialect numbers, select poems and selections from well-known classics. One of her most pleasing numbers was a comedy, in which she impersonated six characters in an imitable man-Schumway, Marguerite Mers and Paul Anderson, vocalists.

Class Party.

The third and fourth year academy boys of the University entertained the girls of both classes in Websterian hall Wednesday night. An informal time was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Birthday Party.

Miss Gladys Bartholomew, of Yew Park, gave a delightful party to 12 of her little friends on Saturday, February 13.

Miss Gladys was remembered with many beautiful presents. The young ladies enjoyed the afternoon with various games and selections from the Harmony, after which luncheon was served, and each of the guests received little heart-shaped bon bon boxes as a souvenir of the day.

They then departed wishing Miss Gladys many more happy birthdays.

Miss Nina McNary's girls' class of the Sunday school of the Baptist church entertained all the classes of the school last night in the church parlors. A program of readings and songs was given in commemoration of Lincoln's sesquicentennial, and was followed by a social time. A feature was the singing of the men's chorus of 15 voices, which has been formed but two weeks, and which made its first public appearance at the services last Sunday.

Valentine Party.

The Ladies of the Maccabees entertained the Sir Knights and friends in Holman hall Wednesday evening. The entertainment was in the nature of a Valentine party. Red hearts and Cupids figured in the decorations. An interesting program of musical and literary numbers was given and refreshments served afterwards. A large number was present.

Miss Marie Drofna, Leading Lady With Charles B. Hanford.

Class Party.

The boys of the senior class of the high school entertained the girls of their class at the home of Edgar Martin, on Cottage street. They enjoyed the time with an informal social time.

Hanford in Salem.

The appearance of Charles B. Hanford in the production of Shakespeare's "The Winter's Tale," which comes to the Grand opera house next Tuesday, February 16, is an event which lovers of the English bard, and also of the eminent actor will not fail to attend. This is the eighth Shakespearean play which Mr. Hanford has appeared in in Salem, his first appearance being in 1902, and a pleasing announcement is that Miss Marie Drofna is taking the leading lady's part this year.

The average number of deaths through railway accidents in Holland is one a year.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

Baker Stock Company at Bungalow Theatre in Portland to Present Great Play.

Baker stock company will present one of the most fascinating and interesting plays ever written for all week commencing Sunday matinee, February 14, tomorrow.

"In the Bishop's Carriage" made a hit from the first time the public found it. Originally it was a short magazine article, but was found so interesting and popular that the story was extended and made into a play. In its dramatized form the story became even more popular and the fame of the piece as an entertainment extended from one end of the continent to the other. The central character is Nan Olden, a professional pickpocket, known professionally as "Nan the Nipper." She is about to be arrested when she dodges into the bishop's carriage, and he, thinking she is insane, takes her home. She is discovered as a criminal by a lawyer and rides away in an automobile after pal, Tom Dorgan, has been discovered. The second act shows the home of the lawyer where Nan and Tom come to rob it. At the last minute, Nan turns in the police alarm call herself and when the officers arrive, they arrest Tom and send him to prison. The lawyer undertakes to reform Nan, and succeeds. She goes into vaudeville and becomes a favorite. Just as the lawyer is about to marry Nan, Tom escapes from prison and comes to her room, where he threatens her if she does not return to him. Tom is again caught by the police and carted to jail. The last act shows the interior of the police station, where all the characters are assembled. "In the Bishop's Carriage" is a great attraction and especially for a stock house.

THE WINTER'S TALE.

A record of Shakespearean successes such as no other actor living can claim renders Charles B. Hanford a figure of interest to the present generation, apart from the enjoyment of his art. Mr. Hanford has each season made a special production of one of the classic masterpieces, never hesitating at the cost when the text suggests sumptuous and spectacular effect. The play selected for exploitation this season is "The Winter's Tale." Presentations of the play have been hampered in many cases by the fact that the brief but most effectively comic part of Autolyens requires the services of an actor whose experience and capability should not be less than those of the star himself. Mr. Hanford solves this difficulty by playing both Autolyens and Leontes, an arrangement which the fact that the characters are strongly contrasted as well as separated by the arrangement of scenes makes highly advantageous. The role of Hermione will be assumed by Miss Marie Drofna whose felicity in the interpretation of characters of this kind has won a host of admirers. Her absence from the stage last season owing to illness has made her recent appearances the occasions of the utmost enthusiasm.

Mr. Hanford comes to the Grand opera house on Tuesday, February 16, on which occasion he will present "The Winter's Tale." Seats on sale at box office Tuesday, February 16, 9 a. m.

THE KERRY GOW.

This evening at the Grand opera house Arthur Cunningham, who in the past few seasons has won an enviable reputation for his singing of the baritone roles with the best organizations in the country, will demonstrate thoroughly that he is also an actor of no mean ability and has been selected by Joseph Murphy, the veteran actor, as his successor in his famous Irish play "The Kerry Gow." It will be in this popular play that Mr. Cunningham will be seen in this city. Mr. Cunningham is ably supported by a large company and complete scenic production.
