ROOSEVELT WRITES FIRST EDITORIAL ON THE JAPANESE

Good Health of Uncle Sam's Domain Demands Exclusion of Such Elements—Makes Out Argument for Upbuilding of Greater Navy at Early Day.

New York, May 6.—In the current number of the Outlook, out today, an editorial by Colonel Roosevelt, in part, follows:

There are certain elementary principles all of which should be kept in view if a nation wishes to act justly both by itself and others. It must insist upon what is necessary for its own healthy life, this even at the cost of a possible clash, but this insistence upon what is due itself should always be accompanied by all possible courtesy to and fair dealing with others. These are the principles upon which the people of the United States should act with regard to the question of immigration of Japanese into this country. The Japanese are a highly civilized people, of extraordinary military, artistic and industrial development. They are proud, warlike and sensitive. I believe our people have, what I personally certainly have, a profound and hearty admiration for them. But this admiration and respect is accompanied by the firm conviction that it isn't to the advantage of either people that emigrants from either country should settle in a mass in the other country. Japan would certainly object to incoming masses of American farmers, laborers and small traders. Indeed, the Japanese would object to this at least as strongly as the men of the Pacific coast and Rocky mountains object to the incoming mass of Japanese workmen, agriculturists, laborers and men engaged in small trades. The Japanese certainly object to Americans acquiring land in Japan, and Japanese who come to America should be of the same general class, that is, they should be travelers, students, teachers, scientific investigators, men engaged in international business and men sojourning in a land for pleasure or study. It is against the interests of both nations that such unrestricted emigration or settlement in mass should be allowed as regards to either nation. This is the cardinal fact in the situation and it should be recognized by both countries. But in achieving this policy we should bear steadily in mind it is our duty to combine maximum efficiency with minimum offensiveness. Only a national government can carry out such a policy effectively and the surest way to do harm is for state, municipal or other local governments to pass laws which would be ineffective to obtain the real object, yet would produce intense irritation.

The best of all possible ways in which to achieve this object is that which the governments of the two countries have now by common agreement adopted; for the Japanese government has of its own initiative and own accord undertaken to prevent the coming hither of any appreciable number of Japanese of the classes to which I referred.

The success of the policy must be gauged by the actual results; that is, by the extent to which it arrests the immigration of large bodies of Japanese. If the Japanese government proves unable to carry its policy through then undoubtedly this government by treaty or legislation must protect itself and secure the desired result on its own initiative, but in such case it would be doubly incumbent upon us to take action that would provoke the least possible friction and cause the least possible hard feeling.

The fact that all really patriotic, far-sighted Americans insist that hand-in-hand with the policy of good will toward foreign nations should go the policy of upbuilding our navy, is often interpreted by well meaning but short-sighted men as being a threat toward other nations or as being provocative of war. Of the two assumptions the first is utterly unwarranted, the second is the direct reverse of the truth. We have the right to say, for instance, what immigrants shall come to our shores, but we are powerless to enforce this right against any nation that chooses to disregard our wishes unless we continue to build and maintain a first-class fighting navy. We Americans are ourselves proud and high-spirited and we are not always by any means far-sighted. If our honor or interests were menaced by a foreign power this nation would fight wholly without regard to whether or not its own was efficient. In the event of a crisis arising peace advocates who object to our building up a navy would be absolutely powerless to prevent this country from going to war. A strong navy is the surest guarantee of peace that America can have the cheapest insurance against war that Uncle Sam can possibly buy.

ABDUCTED BOY BILLY WHITLA IDENTIFIES BOYLE

[United Press Leased Wire.] Mercer, Pa., May 6.—Billy Whitla, who was abducted at Sharon, Pa., recently and held for ransom by a man he identified as James H. Boyle, now on trial for the crime, today convinced the court that he understood the full import of an oath.

"Billy, do you know what becomes of people who do not tell the truth?" he was asked. "They go to hell," was the child's prompt reply.

When the boy was called to the stand in Boyle's trial today Attorney Coebran, employed by James P. Whitla's father, to assist the prosecution, stated that he would base his case mainly on the child's testimony. He proved an excellent witness, telling a straightforward story and refusing to allow the attorneys for the defense to confuse him when they asked their questions in cross-examination.

Billy related the incidents of the day he was kidnaped. He told how he was called from school, and when asked if he saw that man in the court room he pointed out Boyle and said: "Yes, there he is now."

As he pointed he grinned and Boyle grinned back.

Billy said the man wore some kind of whiskers when he took him away. He related the story as he had told it previously about the man giving him a note and sending him on a car to the hotel.

He also identified the letters he Acton is a former champion wrestler of the world, and has a nice string of victories behind him. He is a thorough expert of the art, and is quick and accurate in his decisions. Many other amateur wrestlers will be in attendance from different parts of the country, and a good deal of interest is being shown over the match.

Eddie O'Connell and Jos. La Salle wrote to his father and uncle while he was being held by the kidnapers. Attorney Miller for the defense limited his cross-examination to a few questions. On cross-examination Boyle reiterated his identification of Boyle and his statement about the whiskers.

Charles Flowers of Sharon was called to the stand and told of having met Boyle near the Whitla house one dark night before Billy was kidnaped.

Verne Smith of Sharon added his identification of Boyle to the testimony of the boy. He said that he saw Billy in a buggy with the man he recognized as Boyle, on the morning of the kidnaping.

UNITED PRESS MEN WERE IN THE CITY

Pacific Coast Manager W. W. Hawkins of San Francisco and Manager Bell of Portland were in the city Wednesday evening and made an official visit to The Capital Journal office, which receives the United Press leased wire report. They were shown the sights, including a visit to the state house, and heard the band concert. It was almost impossible to keep Manager Bell's eyes off the pretty creatures that are so numerous on Willson Avenue when the band begins to play. He got away on the 8:40 electric for Portland, but not without heart lacerations that have fascinated Jack Burke, Joe Walsh and every United Press representative that has ever come to the Capital City.

Manager Hawkins was much pleased with the Capital City and gave orders that at least one telegraphic news item from Salem go to all the United Press newspapers every day, a splendid recognition of the importance of this city as a news center. The U. P. serves about one hundred dailies on the Pacific coast and the Associated Press is its only competitor.

Service and Safety

Two elements of bank work stand out above all others—service and safety. When we come to consider corporations and the oppression they are said to work on the individual, we discover that the bank is distinctive—a thing apart. In no possible way can it corner the market. For even the money it holds and loans out belongs to the people and must be produced on demand. It may influence supply and demand through the granting of credit, but is itself influenced by supply and demand, and moreover by its own credit issues. It is peculiarly a servant. Not only is it the servant of all the people, but of the individual—your servant. Not only is it a peculiar corporation, but it serves all other corporations. In serving the individual, the ways are so numerous that we can briefly characterize them as needs and wants of men who trade.

Safety applies to everything connected with this bank. It has physical equipment which is safe. Its dealings with depositors demand safe methods. It makes safe loans. Its whole make-up is an organism, with well proportioned parts, is safe. And it not only strives to serve but strives to be safe.

These two elements are what have attracted our splendid list of customers. This bank has succeeded on its merits. It has succeeded through helpfulness alone. It offers to you the same service and safety it is giving to others. Will you give us the opportunity to "show" you?
