

ZEPPELIN'S AIRSHIP NOT BADLY DAMAGED

Berlin, June 1.—Mechanics who are repairing Count Zeppelin's wrecked airship, Zeppelin II, near Gottengen today, stated that the damage to the craft is not so great as was first believed. Although it will take some time to make the necessary repairs it is believed that the ship can be sent to Zeppelin's shops at Friedrichshafen by Thursday.

When the craft is in the shops Zeppelin's entire force will be set to work repairing the bow plates of aluminum which were torn out by contact with a tree yesterday when the count's long flight was ended by accident. It is probable that it will be several weeks before the airship is in shape to make another flight. Count Zeppelin is not in the least discouraged by yesterday's mishap. He points out that it is no argument against aerial navigation as even a watercraft might be wrecked while attempting a difficult landing in a strong wind. The airship was forced into collision with a tree while the aviator was attempting to land for fuel for his engines.

Uses Great Illustrations. Dr. McInturf, in his wonderful sermon last night, used some great illustrations, as when he quoted from Daniel Webster that the thought of eternity was the greatest thought that ever came to his mind. He denounced sin as being the direct cause of bringing every disease into the world, and that it opened every penitentiary and asylum, and dug every grave. He said all that was good of every religion was found between the covers of the Bible, and that this was true of Christian Science. "In trying to save your soul don't leave the plank you are swimming with and get into a boat that has a hole in the bottom. Too many churches people join are like the boat with a hole in the bottom."
