Ball Game Tonight—
 If the Salem baseball fans will take a little walk out to the Willamette field tonight about 6:30, they will see some very fast ball played, as the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company boys have been playing close to winning ball of late, and they are determined to take the foxy Bookkeepers off their high bench, or throw a toe plate. The Bookkeepers have been successful so far in winning every game played, although they never walked away with a large score, and this big lead they have over the balance of the teams, will make them smoke up hereafter. The Bookkeepers have engaged a new twirler, and a man who the Salem fans all know to be a hard one to get around, he being G. A. Forbes, secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city. Forbes is a good pitcher, and will be a great help to the Bookkeepers. The Portland Railway, Light & Power Company's team still have their lately-engaged pitcher, Huffman, who held the street car men to the grit in fine shape the last time they played. In all probability Lee Abbey, an old baseball fan, and a man who knows the game, will umpire tonight.

Wanted, 40 Girls—
 The committee on arrangements for the Cherry Fair want 40 young women to take part in the parade on horseback. It is understood that a handsome ladies' saddle for "clothes pln" use has been donated by F. E. Shafer, the Salem horse costumer, which will be given as a prize to some one of the lady riders. It is also understood that this prize is to go to some girl rider living outside of Salem. There will also be a handsome bride (don't start, girls, it isn't "bridal"), not for any of the girl riders, but for the horse that some one of them riders. As the contestants will probably all be from either Polk, Marion or Linn county, it's a dead cinch that some mighty pretty girl is going to hold that saddle down.
