The aroma-tight can protects it against impurities and deterioration—never sold in bulk.

Your grocer will grind it—better if ground at home—not too fine.

Here's a charming bit of obituary sentiment from a Kansas newspaper: "He had been married 40 years, and was prepared to die."

Formation and Line of March.

Everything is now ready for the big parade with which Salem's three day Cherry Carnival will open tomorrow morning. Good weather is promised by the weather bureau, and that is all that is needed to make the event the greatest ever pulled off in Salem.

The parade will form on Front street, near State. The formation and route will be as follows: South on Front street to Ferry, Ferry east to Commercial, north on Commercial to State street, thence east on State to Winter. Counter-march west on State to Church, north on Church to Chemeketa, west on Chemeketa to Commercial, south on Commercial to State, thence east on State to Liberty street, north on Liberty and a return to the starting point.

The lineup of the parade will be about as follows:
 The Court Trumpeters.
 King Lambert and Court.
 The Nubians.
 Salem Military Band.
 Knights of Honor.
 Queen's Escorts.
 Queen of the Cherry City.
 Salem Canoe Club.
 Modern Woodmen Band.
 Modern Woodmen Float.
 Chinese Dragon.
 Oriental Section.
 Lady Rider.
 Fairmount Park Float.
 Decorated Autos.
 Decorated Carriages.
 The Butterfly.
 Made-in-Salem Floats.

There will be a fine turn out of decorated autos and carriages, and the array of lady riders will be the largest, and it is perhaps superfluous to add, the handsomest assemblage of horsewomen ever seen in the valley.

An Old Quirt—
 Ab. Magers has on exhibition at the wholesale liquor establishment an Indian quirt, which was picked up by George Alberts, an old pioneer, immediately after the battle when General Cutler was killed. The old pony persuader shows signs of hard use. It composed of an old stick, cracked with age, and on one end two leather thongs are fastened through a hole, and on the other another leather tied in the shape of a loop to go over the wrist.
