

A NIGHT ON BROADWAY ENDS IN JAIL

Murray and Mack Company Runs Aground in Los Angeles—Leslie Arrested.

[United Press Leased Wire.] Oakland, Cal., July 28.—After two uncomfortable hours in jail, Walter M. Leslie, one of the partners of the Murray and Mack Company, is at liberty today, his wife having gained his release by having paid $442 to E. P. Foote, manager of the Grand Opera House at Los Angeles, who caused the arrest.

According to the story told by Foote at the police station here yesterday, Leslie was made treasurer of the "Night on Broadway" company, when it was organized in Los Angeles recently. Foote, Ollie Mack and Leslie were to be the backers of the new concern, and each was to put up $5000. Foote alleged that Leslie failed to put up his share of the money, and was spending that of his partners. Mrs. Leslie agreed to compromise for $442, and the Los Angeles "angel" agreed to the release of her husband on these terms.

In the meantime the chorus girls of the "Night on Broadway" company are in San Francisco hunting a meal ticket, while the managers are seeking transportation to Portland.

DISCOURAGING TO MODERN INDUSTRY

Such men as J. J. McDonald would soon discourage the hold-up business. He doesn't believe in it as a steady occupation for any man, and when a bold highwayman ordered him to throw out his money he read him a dissertation on the low-down character of his business, and besides, with some emphasis and language, the like whereof is not found in the hymnal, refused to be ordered around by a man ashamed to show his face in public. In fact McDonald, when informed by the man anxious for easy money that he would shoot, told him to shoot, and be—hanged—which, to say the least, was language calculated to touch the highwayman's nerves, and may have been the cause of the resultant bullet flying wide of the mark. Even at this stage of the proceedings McDonald, with that hard headedness peculiar to the people of the highlands, continued to argue the matter, putting a 40-90 Scotch tongue against a 22-calibre gun. He got away with it too, and sent the would-be bad man hot-foot for the tall timber, mask, gun and all. While McDonald jogged along home, ruminating on the wickedness of humanity and incidentally condemning the careless use of firearms, and at the same time feeling that warming glow in his bosom incident to the knowledge of duty well performed and the fact that he never gave up a cent.

TWENTY CENTS FOR HOP CROP

London Dispatches Indicate Not Less Than That This Season and Price May Be 25c.

European cables received here have caused bull leaders to declare their faith in 25-cent hops before picking time arrives.

Swann of London estimates the English crop at 220 to 250 hundred-weight, the lowest since 1890, when hops went to 40 cents. Ironmonger estimates the crop at 250, and cables "weather very unfavorable, mold increasing, lice persistent." Barth cables from Neurenburg, Germany, "Weather unfavorable, crop prospect gloomy, estimated less than half of last year."

Well-informed hop men claim that this year's crop in Oregon will not be more than 70,000 bales, as against 92,000 in 1908. In anticipation of big prices, farmers are spraying and as a result the quality this year is expected to be very high. Bull beaters claim that 20 cents has been paid in The Dalles country and that 21 cents has been refused for options in North Yakima within the past 48 hours.

BREEZE HAS ONE ON HIS DOG

Breeze Gibson came over from Eola a few days ago, and, as usual, his dog came with him. They generally travel together, and have a mutual understanding of each other. There was nothing unusual in their coming, but there was something out of the ordinary when the pair of them stopped for a few minutes Saturday afternoon on the Bush corner. The riveting machine used on the steel frame of the bank building suddenly got busy—and Breeze's dog, with a glad yelp, lit out across the street and set up a tremendous barking, at the same time doing some tail-wagging that nearly tumbled him off his feet. In a few minutes he raced across the street and invited, with sundry wags and divers loud-voiced calls, his elongated master to come with him.

Breeze only grinned. The dog quieted down until the riveting began again, when he made another run for the noise, and again came back after his master.

"What's the matter with your dog, Breeze?" inquired a bystander.

"That dawg," said Breeze, is the dawg-gondest dawg in Oregon. He's a half setter and half coon dawg, and, while he is just naturally crazy to hunt, he somehow can't seem to get himself down to business with the birds unless he finds 'em in a tree. The result is woodpeckers are his game, and a big yellow hammer sets him crazy. That riveting concern has fooled that dawg pretty bad, for he thinks he has the daddy of all the yellow hammers up in that building, and e wants me to go gunning for it.

"That's where I've got the joke on the dawg, and I ain't going to wise him up to it, either, for he's like some of the Oregon politicians, he thinks he knows more than his boss."

And then Breeze grinned when the "buzzer" started again, and the dog put out to "tree it."

STEAMER MARAMA WRECKED

Boat With Seven of Crew Lost. Other Survivors Reach Shore in Pitiable Condition.

Victoria, B. C., July 28.—The British steamer Marama, which has just arrived from Australian ports, brings news of the loss of the Norwegian bark Orleans with seven of her crew, while bound from the Seychele islands for Dunedin. After the crew of 14 had worked for five days at the pumps, the Orleans was abandoned 200 miles off the west coast of Tasmania.

For 12 days the survivors suffered terrible hardships in an open boat, finally reaching Macquarrie Heads, Tasmania, where Captain Lindstol reported the loss of seven shipmates, who embarked in a second lifeboat at the time the Orleans was abandoned. The boats kept company for 11 days, and then were separated by a storm.

The survivors were in a pitiable condition from exposure and hunger when they reached Macquarrie Heads.

TAFT IS FIRM IN DEMANDS

Committee Must Come to His Terms on Gloves and Lumber or Get No Sanction.

[United Press Leased Wire.] Washington, July 28.—President Taft plainly indicated to callers today that unless the tariff on lumber and gloves was reduced he would not sanction the report of the conference committee which is handling the tariff bill.

Taft will insist that the rate on lumber be made $1 or $1.25. He regards the efforts of the house conferees to maintain high rates on gloves as a plan to assist a coterie of glove-makers in New York state.

The conference committee today agreed on all but two of the Beveridge amendments to the internal revenue laws. The tax on tobacco, cigars and cigarettes will be increased.
