EDITOR BEATEN TO DEATH

General Harman O. Jeffries Offended at Article in Newspaper, Murders Editor Chandler.

Panama, Aug. 26.—William Nicholas Chandler, editor of the Panama "Press," is dead here today, as the result of a beating alleged to have been administered to him by General Harman O. Jeffries, who figured prominently in the Panama revolution.

Chandler, in a copy of the "Press," wrote an article which General Jeffries believed reflected on the honor of Mrs. Claude E. Guyant, his sister-in-law, and he walked into the newspaper office shortly after noon yesterday and demanded to see the editor.

Jeffries was admitted to Chandler's office, although newspaper men who received him had been informed that Jeffries was in an ugly mood.

The famous revolutionist lost no time in stating his errand to Chandler.

"What does this mean?" he shouted at the editor, pointing to the article in the paper.

"It means exactly what it says," responded Chandler.

Without a word Jeffries is then reported to have jumped at Chandler, and the two men grappled.

Chandler freed himself from Jeffries' grasp, and is alleged to have backed away.

At this juncture, it is alleged, that the revolutionist drew a revolver, and when the newspaper man saw the weapon he is said to have made a leap for his adversary.

Jeffries is then reported to have stepped back and struck Chandler on the head with the butt of his revolver.

This blow is said to have dazed Chandler, and Jeffries is alleged to have rained blow after blow on the editor's head, until he sank to the floor dead.

Mrs. Guyant is the wife of the United States deputy consul-general here, with whom she is alleged to have eloped in June, and is a sister-in-law of Jeffries. Jeffries is under arrest.

It is estimated that the number of dead is close to 9000 men.

THEY FELL QUARTER OF A MILE

Rescuers today are making frantic efforts to release 30 miners who are imprisoned 1500 feet below the surface in the Lapox mine, at Matehuala.

According to today's advices 15 men were instantly killed at the bottom of the shaft yesterday, the cable to the cage broke, and it descended upon the miners at the bottom of the mine, crushing them into unrecognizable masses.

When the cable broke 30 men were in the cage, and they were dashed 1500 feet below on the heads of the dead men. While it is certain that most of the men who were in the cage were killed, the rescuers are working in the hope that some of them may have escaped death.

The cage is pinned by tons of wreckage, and it is not believed that the imprisoned men can be reached before night.

That some of the men are still alive is manifested by the fact that the groans of the injured can be distinctly heard by the rescuers.

MISSLET LETTER FINDS LOST BROTHER

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 26.—Through a misdirected letter, meant for Ira Branch, of Yaquina, Oregon, but which was delivered to Ira Branch, of Tacoma, aged brothers, who have not heard from each other since the Civil War, nearly 50 years ago, were reunited, and the search conducted by Ira Branch, Sr., through all these years has at last been successful.

Ira Branch, the Tacoma man, is a salesman, employed by the Basinal Music Company, and it developed that the Ira Branch of Oregon is his cousin, being the son of Luther Branch, the brother who has been missing since the war. The Tacoma man's father, Ira Branch, Sr., is the man who for 50 years has been trying to find a trace of his soldier brother. He is now living in Hartford, Mich.

The letter through which the two brothers were put in communication came to Ira Branch, of Tacoma, while his cousin from Oregon was visiting in this city. The Oregon address was the clue which the Tacoma man followed to establish the identity of the man who bore his name, and this week the Tacoma man received a letter from Oregon answering his questions and fully established the fact that Luther Branch, the aged Oregon man, is his uncle and a brother of his father, Ira Branch, Sr., of Mich'gan.
