For Autumn Wear

H.W. & N.S. Meyers
GOOD GOODS

The stock is larger and qualities better. We've labored hard for six months bringing together these grand assortments which are the products of the best mills and makers from two continents. You can't overlook the quality when purchasing here, because we've tended to that several months ago, and you are sure to get value for every dollar you spend.

Ladies' and Misses' Tailored Suits

Pronounced by leaders of fashion as correct. The coats and the skirts are plain gored and pleated styles; they're correct in style, of course, and perfectly tailored; these makers know their business well enough not to spoil good fabrics, fine linings and bindings by designing and tailoring that are wrong. The color assortment includes all the wanted shades that are in vogue this Fall. The materials are the new mannish mixtures and every dollar you put into one of these suits you will get out in wear.

Extra! Extra!

Ladies' all wool black broadcloth, half lined gray satin, seams piped with satin; full length, semi-fitting. Ladies' fine all wool tan Mohogan covert semi-fitting half satin lined, full length. Two of the greatest coat values on the Pacific coast. (You'll pay $2.50 to $5 more for cheaper coats.)

You're Going to Have This Coming Fall

a chance to buy and wear the best clothes in the world; the kind of clothes that all well dressed men are always glad to buy.

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes

are to be the feature of our line the coming season, and we want every man of you to know it early, and keep it in mind for the time when you next think of buying clothes. We are making a specialty of these clothes because we want you to get the greatest possible value for your money, and value means the sort of quality HART, SCHAFFNER & MARX put into their goods. They're all wool in every thread of the fabrics; they represent the products of the best weavers in the world, and they offer a greater variety for your selection than you'll find in any half dozen other makes put together. But all wool, vitally important as it is to your interests as a wearer, is not the only thing we know about HART, SCHAFFNER & MARX quality. These clothes are designed right; the whole question of fit depends on that; and it's important to you to know that you can be correctly fitted without trouble here. There's a lot of inferior, cotton mixed clothing in the market; pretty poor stuff, some of it; it looks pretty good, enough so to enable dealers to charge a good price for it; it isn't, as a rule, worth what it costs.

DRESS GOODS

ough materials and cheviot serges as much in favor; broadcloths are strong for Fall. The Dry Goods Economist of New York, the leading paper devoted to mercantile lines, has this to say: "Serges in natural finish, piece dyed, worsteds and serges having a cheviot finish are in first place."

We have here a great variety; the fabrics are correct here; experience in buying, keeping posted on the styles, will always be pre-eminent here. Don't buy satin finished clothes. They are all last season's fabrics and are out. The old reliable store will protect you.

the declamation of Peter Roth in the national Swiss dialect gave a great deal of pleasure to all present, and touched the hearts of many. The day closed with singing a "Drei Mal Hoch" to President Hofer, of the Salem societies by the Portland singers.

The Helvetia Saenger Club. This splendid musical organization appeared for the first time in Salem, and certainly the Portland Swiss and Tyrolese colony have reason to be very proud of their accomplished singers. They sang "Das Lied der Lieder" and other Swiss national airs, and responded to several encores. The Helvetia quartet also sang several numbers, to the great delight of the immense audience, who would not let them go. Later in the afternoon an orchestra appeared, and dancing was indulged in until the evening came on and the guests departed with many farewells and affectionate partings. The last hours were marked by bands of singers in various parts of the grove singing the folk songs of the fatherland.

Motorman Thompson was crossing Commercial street with his car, and was running very slow, when he saw a bicycle rider bearing down on him, coming from the south. Just as the rider and wheel struck the front end of his car Motorman Thompson reversed his motors, bringing his car to a dead standstill before the wheelman had hardly time to strike it. The wheel and man slid under the front end of the standing car, but before the motorman could ascertain whether he was hurt or not, he had extricated himself and machine and rode off.
