It's Easy

To see at a glance that there's style about some men while distinguishing them among their fellows; they go about their business in the usual way, and they may be just usual men; but there's something about their looks that's different.

Hart, Schaffner & Marx

dress a man but why, there's a finish, a class to these clothes which you don't get in any other. We want you to look that way; and we've got the clothes here that will do it—tailored perfect tailoring, and style that's distinctive. Do you want it?

AIRSHIP FLUTTERS OVER CITY

Everybody and His Wife Out to View the Skyship This Morning and to Say: "What Is It?"

There was a general craning of necks and bending of elbows, not for drinking purposes, but to shade the eyes, this morning about 7:30, while the Salemite up at that unearthly hour gazed heavenwards in the vain endeavor to make out just what kind of a machine was negotiating the sky about half a mile up. Some declared it was a genuine flying machine, and it certainly resembled the pictures of some of those air-splitters. It seemed to be pointed south and when first seen was almost over the junction of Chemeketa and Commercial streets. It traveled slowly east, going sidewise, like a hog to war. The reporter, having other fish to fry, could not watch it, and anyway he hates to bend his head back and crook his arm when there is nothing nearer his mouth than a kite. The opinion was expressed that it was an airship, a kite, a balloon, and anything else that could fly. One man thought it was a prohibition argument that had broke its moorings prematurely. Another thought it might be Mr. Bailey's candidacy for the governorship, or the fruit inspector scaling the sky for San Jose scale instead of looking out the state house window. A married lady said "It looked to her like the price of butter," and a wasp-waisted damsel, with eyes like trout pools beneath the overhanging alders, said: "Isn't it just too sweet? I'll bet it's the dear little flag Mr. Peary nailed to the north pole, and it's coming home to disprove that awful Dr. Cook."

Bob Hendricks, slowly extracted a pad from his breast pocket and added it to the data he is gathering for the census. Col. Olmstead said it was a "For Sale" notice and indicated the price of property in the near future. Mrs. Culbertson stopped writing an ad long enough to take a look and said she would mark it down half, and besides these there were hundreds of other suggestions, even to asking the men that mentioned it what they had been drinking.

The real truth of the matter is, it is the Journal subscription list that is going up out of sight.

Attention—All sir knights of the Maccabees are requested to attend the funeral of Sir Knight R. D. Holman, which will take place at 11 o'clock Friday morning. All visiting sir knights are also requested to be present.

Here's a Good Booster—C. M. Eppley, president of the Business Men's League, expresses himself as being highly in favor of Salem people generally visiting the Portland Livestock exhibit, and also going on the Falls City excursion. "If we are to build up our trade and our city," said he, "we must dot it by reaching after trade, rubbing up against our neighbors and getting acquainted with them. We must make their interests our interests, and the time to begin is right now."

Richard D. Holman Dead—Richard D. Holman, one of Salem's oldest and most highly respected citizens, passed away at 7 o'clock last night at his home at 234 Front street, after a prolonged illness, being unconscious since last Friday as the result of a severe attack of paralysis. Richard Holman was born in Exeter, Ontario, Canada, on January 14, 1844. He was one of a family of 15 children, ten of whom survive: John B. Albany; William L. San Francisco; James and Samuel, Chicago; George W. Ontario; Mrs. J. C. Booth, Los Angeles; Mrs. Lizette Trippe and Mrs. Eliza Kellar, Saginaw, Mich.; Mrs. William Drew, London, Canada; Mrs. Marie Owen, Chicago. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Carrie Holman, and the five children. They are: Frank E., Silverton; Richard W., Portland; Lizzie V. Herron, Woodburn; Bertha M. Hurst, St. Louis, Mo.; John W., Salem. The funeral will be held from the home on Friday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. Barr G. Lee officiating. Interment in City View cemetery.

THE OMAHA STRIKERS SMASH CAR WINDOWS

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE] Omaha, Neb., Sept. 23.—Street cars, manned by strike-breakers, were attacked last night by a mob of 3000 union sympathizers, when the first attempt was made to run the cars after nightfall. The windows of a number of cars were smashed, and several car men were taken from their platforms and badly beaten. After three hours of hard work, the police succeeded in dispersing the rioters, not, however, until 12 men had been badly bruised, two seriously injured and one shot through the legs.

During the rioting a number of shots were fired, but, with the exception of one man, no one was struck by the missiles.

For a time it was thought that the strike would be quickly settled, but today the prospects for the ending of the strike are small.

WILLED HIS SPLEEN TO DOCTOR FRIENDS

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE] Los Angeles, Sept. 22.—Determined that humanity shall benefit by his sufferings, Henry H. Hooper, of Whittier, who died of an ailment of the spleen, willed that organ to five medical friends for experimental purposes. This strange bequest became known today, following the probating of Hooper's will. The first clause of the will reads as follows: "In order that at my death, should there be any trace of my present ailment, enlargement of the spleen, I give and bequeath to Doctors W. H. Stokes, F. H. Hadley, J. F. Bold and H. P. Wolstein, of Whittier, and Dr. Theodore G. Davis, of Los Angeles, the before mentioned spleen and any other of my internal organism. If they should like to study the existing ailment, with the object of learning, if possible, some treatment that would cure the complaint."

DIED

DAY—At the family home in Yew Park at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, September 23, 1909, James R. Day, of dropsy. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn his death. The children are: Fred, George and Will, of Salem; Will, of California; Frank, of North Yakima, and Minnie, of St. Cloud, Minn. Funeral announcements will appear later.

ISHAM.—At his home near Salem, Wednesday, September 22, 1909, J. F. Isham.

He was a pioneer, having lived in this section of the valley for many years. His wife and several children survive him.

A. W. Prescott, private secretary to Senator Bourne, has returned Salem for a short visit.
