This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

LUCKY JACK BACKED UP ON HIS BET

Made a Mistake When He Took His Machine for a Crawfish and Himself for a Lobster.

For the first time probably in his whole career, "Lucky" Jack Peterson, the auto maniac, was thrown down by Dame Fortune, who just stood by and grinned at him yesterday afternoon when he put up a $50 bill against the same amount posted by two other auto drivers—Edmunson and Hoyt—with the understanding that he was to make the eighteen miles between this city and Dallas in one hour flat and run his machine backward the entire distance.

Never before in the history of Salem sports has there been just this kind of a freak wager posted. "Lucky" Jack, accompanied by Chas. Stage, left the corner of Court and Commercial streets about 4 o'clock for Dallas at a $50 winning pace, according to the terms of the bet, the big machine throwing up clouds of mud and smoke to the amusement of the large crowd of spectators that had gathered at the starting point to see the "backward" race against time get off.

Over the big steel bridge Peterson plotted his snorting car and out onto the county road straight for Dallas. After striking the road, Peterson opened up his machine a few more notches and sailed along at a dangerous rate of speed with the heavy car swaying from side to side in an extremely ticklish manner, caused by the unusual hind-foremost driving. Had Peterson stayed in the road and let the telephone poles alone, and had his auto machinery remained intact, he would have made the run in less than an hour, but he had not proceeded three miles from this city when the clutch gave out on the machine, and after smashing his tail light and mud guard on a telegraph pole and running into the ditch the contestant, was compelled to give up the race and the $50 to Edmunson and Hoyt, much to his chagrin and disgust.

Those who saw the car go bowling along the Polk county road backward expected to see the morgue wagon tearing along behind before long, or hear of the machine running off some bank into the Willamette river; but Jack's luck did not desert him completely, and he is yet able to "head in" on other propositions just a trifle more favorable.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA AND NEURASTHENIA

Weakness of the Nervous System Often Dependent Upon Long Continued Indigestion.

Neurasthenia, also known as "nervous exhaustion," "nervous debility" and "nervous prostration," is a disease which in these modern, strenuous times is becoming more and more prevalent. It is a condition in which there is more or less marked and persistent loss of energy, together with considerable irregularity.

Persons who suffer from this trouble are easily excited and irritated, cannot do as much work as formerly, and in attempting any mental effort, quickly become confused, and are unable to concentrate the attention. They also complain of insomnia, nervous indigestion, depression of spirits, and palpitation of the heart.

There is a general muscular weakness; the person cannot walk very far, and tires quickly on attempting physical exertion. There is ringing in the ears; blurring of eyesight; headache and vertigo; specks floating before the eyes, and a general restlessness. The ability to sustain prolonged intellectual effort is interfered with, and the patient imagines he is losing his memory.

Neurasthenics continually watch for new symptoms, unconsciously exaggerate the old one, attaching undue importance to them. Causeless fear is often suffered from; a dread of some impending danger; extreme pessimism; dark forebodings, and hysteria. Sleep is not refreshing, and the person feels much more tired in the morning than at night. Horrible dreams and nightmares are usually complained of.

But by far the most prominent manifestation of Neurasthenia is Nervous Dyspepsia. In nearly every case this disturbance of the stomach dominates the complaint. Cause and effect may be transposed, and dyspepsia may be the result of neurasthenia, but oftener indigestion is the original cause of the nervous condition. The nerves are simply "starved" because the stomach does not digest the food properly, and food which the blood absorbs from the stomach for their sustenance and deprivation thereof is sure to cause nerve weakness.

The use of "nerve tonics" is this condition is a mistake; they merely stimulate, but do not rebuild nerve tissues. Completely digested food is the only true nerve builder and strengthener; and in the treatment of nervous exhaustion, one should first cure the nervous dyspepsia that is usually the origin of the trouble by taking STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS in doses of one or two after each meal, or whenever needed, and the long train of nervous symptoms will be cured along with the nervous dyspepsia.

This celebrated remedy is without a peer in the treatment of nervous indigestion and in fact indigestion of any kind. They digest all the food with great thoroughness, and facilitate its absorption by the blood which carries it to the weakened, diseased nerves and builds them up, so that every symptom of nervous exhaustion is gotten rid of.
