

EDISON

We do not live by bread alone. Even a busy man gets bored sometimes. What we all want is a congenial method of relaxation—something that will amuse us. The less effort required to secure the amusement, the better. For such a purpose the Edison Phonograph is ideal. It is right there and always ready—the ever-present entertainer.

It is just as good for entertaining your friends as it is for entertaining yourself, even though they do not like the same things you do. The marvelous versatility of the Edison Phonograph is only equaled by its marvelous ingenuity. Hear it at many times over with the money you have paid for tickets for concerts, theatres, vaudeville shows and other amusement not nearly so satisfactory as the entertainment that comes out of the horn of an Edison Phonograph.

You never heard Harry Lauder as well as he sings on an Edison Amberol Record. You never heard Slezak, Martin or Constantino to such good advantage as you hear them on the Edison Phonograph. You never have had in any one evening such a program as you can have any evening, at home, with an Edison Phonograph.

If you care for amusement at all—and who does not?—then this is absolutely the best bargain in amusement the world offers—the Edison Phonograph, invented and produced by Thomas A. Edison, Victor Herbert's music reproduced for the Edison Phonograph by Victor Herbert's own orchestra, all of the great singers, all of the great musicians, all in your own home at any time, for the exclusive amusement of your own family and your own guests.

Edison Phonographs can be had from $12.50 to $200.00. Edison Amberol Records (play twice as long) $3.50. Edison Standard Records $1.00. Edison Grand Opera Records 75c and 1.00.

There are Edison dealers everywhere. Go to the nearest and hear the Edison Phonograph play both Edison Standard and Amberol Records and get complete catalogs from your dealer or from us.

SOME FAMILIAR NEWPORT CHARACTERS

Written for The Capital Journal by Joseph Patterson.

Far above the ordinary are the many interesting characters who dwell in the districts of Yaquina Bay. These men in time will become a part of the legends of Western Oregon and their histories will be recorded long after the names of men of prominence and affluence at the present time have faded from sight in the oblivion of time.

Among these is old man Buzzard, who, at the age of 85, guards the woods at the edge of Newport which are owned by the Southern Pacific company. Here, in a little cabin on a small clearing made free of charge by some unknown men, who incidentally sold the wood which they had accumulated while clearing, at the end of a two-mile trail through a dense forest lives the gray headed man.

The first time he was visited, he was found seated by his dog calmly smoking his pipe, doubtless absorbed in the reverie of his past long life of patient toil, which was gradually drawing to a close in a lonely spot away from the haunts of man.

Thus, in the capacity of watchman, he was still able to earn and probably receiving remuneration for the first time without giving in exchange hours of hard labor.

His sincere welcome, spoken in a voice as soft as a Persian's, was immediately a bond of friendship; and his eyes lighted up in the prospect of a chat with somebody from town, which was another world to him. Being allowed to choose the topics of the conversation that followed the greeting, he proceeded to explain the responsibility of his duties, and then gradually drifted back to his early life, which he had spent on a farm in a state many miles away and ending with a direct question to his guest inquiring if anything of importance had happened lately.

When the time to part with his visitor arrived he turned, and, holding out a thin but rough old hand, he said: "Goodbye, Boy. When are you coming back?" The answer was lost in the farewell barking of the dog.

on Glory's Honor roll, having been in everything requiring courage from the Civil War to the newspaper business. His other name is "Geo. F." For twenty years he was Newport's Justice of the Peace, and his name was a terror to the near criminal.

Besides fighting several oral duels, Dad established his fame as a marksman in a private shooting match with one, not the first one, George Washington, whom he challenged for a shoot on the outcome of which one thousand dollars was wagered. The target was an official card, such as is used by "Doc" Carver, "Cap" Hardy and Police Gazette "Wonders," placed at a distance of one hundred yards from the contestants.

After the first shot, however, Dad discovered that the contest was a "put up" game; for he caught the man in charge of the targets punching false holes through his competitor's cards; and, if it hadn't been his off day for shooting, Dad would have landed him before his ammunition supply gave out.

Another citizen whom Newport people are proud to mention as a friend, is Henry Malu. Henry was with us 90 years, and still would be if it was not for this: Two years ago, he invited his old cronies to a Thanksgiving dinner, but, on the day before, mistaking the date, he cooked the turkey and cranberries and sweet potatoes and then sat down awaiting the arrival of his guests.

Henry's wrath warmed as the good things cooled; and, unwilling to wait any longer he hurried off downtown. The first guest he met was "Dad" Sylvester. "Look here, George," said Henry, "why didn't you boys show up at my Thanksgiving dinner?"

"Bless you, Henry," answered George. "This ain't Thanksgiving; it's tomorrow!"

With that Henry stamped his foot and grew so angry that he said he would not live in such a slow town any longer. The next day he was up bright and early, and, placing his belongings in a satchel, he left for Albany, where he now resides.

In conclusion comes "Wild Bill" last but not least. His real name is William, and he hails from the Siletz Indian Reservation, where he has a homestead.

Bill speaks Indian with a decided German accent, carried a half-dozen six shooters and can give "pointer" to the "Wild Man of Borneo" if he ever comes to this town. At this writing he is unmarried.

has had one frightful drawback—malaria trouble—that has brought suffering and death to thousands. The germs cause chills, fever and ague, biliousness, jaundice, lassitude, weakness and general debility. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malaria troubles. "Three bottles completely cured me of a very severe attack of malaria," writes Wm. A. Fretwell of Lucama, N. C. "and I've had good health ever since." Cure stomach, liver and kidney troubles, and prevent typhoid. Guaranteed by J. C. Perry.

HALLEY'S COMET

A few notes taken from a French paper on an exceedingly interesting subject just at present may not be amiss.

Halley's Comet, which is interesting so many people, will reach its closest point to the earth on May 18th. On this date the tail will point directly toward the earth, as the tail always points away from the sun and the comet will be between the earth and the sun. The most beautiful view of the comet, however, will be for several days just before or just after May 18th. The earth is going at about 72,000 miles an hour and the comet is travelling at about 100,000 miles an hour, and on the night of May 18th these two bodies will rush past each other at a speed of about 180,000 miles an hour.

The tail of the comet is supposed to be about 15,000,000 miles long and as the comet will be about 15,000,000 miles from the earth, we will probably pass through whatever there is of this tail. According to the best report, while this tail is millions of miles long, if it could be gathered up it could be put in a small sized room.

Other than the light which may be seen at night, its effect on the earth will not be noticed.

THE RIGHT OF WAY.

Probably the smallest audience that has assembled at the Grand Opera House during the present season was that which greeted the rendition of the five act drama, "The Right of Way," under the personal direction of Theodore Roberts, Monday night. Those who failed to attend, without doubt, missed the treat of the season, as the play, like the novel, is one of the best before the public at the present time. Hallett Thompson, as Chas. Steele, was a whole show in himself and the love scene in the last act was one of the most beautiful that has ever been rendered at the local opera house. The company was well balanced and each one seemed to be admirably fitted to the part they played, and we venture the assertion that if the "Right of Way" was to be repeated again, the opera house would be crowded to the walls.

Threatening feverishness with children is quickly and safely calmed by Preventics. These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets should always be at hand—for promptness is all-important.
