Independence has voted bonds for a High School. That means that the little business city upon the river bank is going to take up progress on modern lines.

GOOD FOR JONATHAN.

Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., has not impinged himself much on the Oregon consciousness since he was made United States senator by the people, the first senator chosen under Statement No. 1, and the first popularly elected senator in the nation.

Oregon has not heard much of the senator at first hand; true, he entertained President Taft and made the local political machine look silly last summer, and he has backed some rather wide sweeping national reforms, but also he has played with the Aldrich crowd in the senate, and Oregon doesn't like the Aldrich crowd.

But Jonathan Bourne Jr. appears to be still standing where he was when he flooded the state with letters fighting for the primary system and initiative legislative policies.

In his circular, now being sent out to the papers and chief party politicians of the state, he does not mince words about the assembly plan, nor about the adherence he holds for the direct primary.

Some of his remarks are pertinent: "I find the same old conspirators engaged in the same old conspiracy to overthrow Oregon's system of popular government."

"This conspiracy comes under a new name, that of the 'assembly plan,' and 'plan' is the fitting term for it, as it is a design to restore, under a new name, the old three-shell game of politics, so prolific, in the no distant past, of political debauchery and of profit to political high-binders, party ringsters and special interests."

That is what The News has been saying for a year; it is glad that the senator of the state has discovered the same thing, and is spending money to inform the party, of whom he is the chief officeholder in the state.

Again the senator says: "The alleged purpose of the 'assembly' is to unify the Republican party, but every man familiar with Oregon had its origin in the methods pursued by managers of party conventions."

That is precisely what The News has said week after week, only it said it this way: that if the Simon-Fulton crowd succeeded in controlling the Republican party by the assembly plan that there would either be an independent and honest Republican elected, or a Democrat.

"There will be no difficulty in maintaining the prestige of the Republican party if the would-be leaders will observe the spirit of the primary law and accept the will of the people as made known at the ballot box."

Which is some more Bourne truth plainly spoken. Jonathan Bourne, or some other independent Republican, is going to lead the fight in Oregon against the Fulton-Simon machine.

Whoever leads the fight the people trust he will be equipped for the fray with political acumen, money enough to fight back against corporation campaign funds, and personal honesty enough to make good when the victory is his, and the people have awarded him for bearing the brunt of the conflict.

If Jonathan Bourne will send out a similar letter to every Republican voter in the state every month for the next year the independent honest Republicans in Oregon will probably be welded into a fighting organization against the "assembly" machine; it is merely incidental whether Jonathan is returned to the senate again or not. That is a detail to be settled later; just now it is a fight between the gang and the people.

REMARKABLE CURE IN LOS ANGELES

Case of Paralysis Shows Remarkably Rapid Improvement.

Treatment Was with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the Remedy That Has Cured Many Severe Nervous Disorders.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of severe nervous troubles is convincingly shown by the cure of Mrs. H. Gaudreau, of No. 537 West Thirty-sixth Place, Los Angeles, Cal. She says: "When I was fourteen years old, I had a severe attack of diphtheria. As I was recovering from the disease and got so I could walk just a little, I suddenly became weak and numb all over. I was perfectly helpless in bed for three months. I couldn't speak above a whisper and could eat nothing but liquid foods. I couldn't use my arms or legs, I was numb all over and had no feeling at all."

"The doctors told my mother that I was suffering from paralysis and that they thought I would never get well. They did not help me and as my mother had often read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills she decided to have me buy them. I hadn't taken many boxes before I could see that the pills were helping me a lot. In six or eight weeks' time I could sit up in bed and could use my arms a little. I used them all I could and as I grew stronger all the time, I got full use of them. I was longer in learning to walk but finally was able to do this too. I used the pills until completely cured and have had no signs of the trouble returning."

Those who are interested in the treatment which cured this case can obtain further information by writing for the booklet, "Nervous Disorders," which we send free on request. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain the elements necessary to make new blood and, as the nerves get their nourishment from the blood, have been found invaluable in a wide range of diseases of the blood and nerves, such as anemia, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fever, neuralgia, nervous debility, and even St. Vitus' dance and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

MAUD POWELL WASHINGTON PUTS ONE ON WILLAMETTE

Musical Europe and the centers of culture in South Africa have added to America's song in praising the "wonder woman" of the violin.

Maud Powell, the world's greatest woman violinist with few equals among her male colleagues, who will appear at the Grand Opera House tonight. In New York, the most exacting of critics, Henry T. Finck, who is a former Oregonian, writes: "When Maud Powell plays, one thinks not of howing and fingering, of staccato or legato, of harmonies or double-stops, or trills—though they be, as hers are, Melba-like in their perfection; one thinks only of the music. Like a great actor, she makes one forget the player in the art." Secure your seats in advance at the boxoffice.
