VOLUME OF MONEY AND PRICES.

The contention of the Bimetallists of 1896 has proven itself to have been founded on sound argument, so far as the volume of money affecting prices of products.

It is still increasing in production at a still more rapid rate. The above figures are taken from the latest edition of the New International Encyclopedia.

It is considered a standard authority on statistical matters. What the gold production reached for 1909 is not yet known. It will be compiled and made public in about sixty days, and will then be published.

The stand-pat protectionist newspapers and advocates of the Single Gold standard are not in a hurry to attribute the high cost of living to the real cause—the enormous increase in the output of gold—the sole measure of all other values.

Of course, the theory that it is the business of government to produce prosperity, that high prices and high wages are due to the protective tariff, gets a jolt when you admit that gold production is the great cause of the inflation of prices of products.

Increase the volume of money and its purchasing power decreases.

and vice versa, decrease the volume of money and the more it will buy. Hence, prices of living are higher whenever gold grows more plenti ful, and prices of living are reduced whenever gold grows scarcer. The insurgent leaders in congress are complaining at the high cost of living and attributing it to the inequitable adjustment of the tariff. The fact is, prices and wages are boosted by the increased volume of gold in the country far more than by any effect of the tariff. High prices that are brought about by legitimate means are all right, if equally distributed. But when high prices are the result of trusts and combinations and monopolies created by legislation, then great injustice results.

DON'T MAKE THE SUPREME COURT A POLITICAL BUZZSAW.

While there is a general tendency throughout the entire civilized world to drift to republican form of government and from that to cialistic form of one kind or another, yet there travels along with this remarkable movement a species of socialistic conservatism, which serves as an effective check to dangerous legislation. In illustration, we see Oregon's political life changed by the enactment of the Direct Primary law. This law unseats, to a certain extent, the old-time system over which the fight for spoils has always exceeded in intensity and interest the consideration of the principles involved. There are many who deprecate the advance of anything socialistic and cannot believe it possible that any socialistic propaganda contains elements of conservatism. That there is a strong sentiment in evidence against the personnel of the supreme court being changed merely goes to illustrate that although Oregon is suffering from acute political disease, yet there is a wholesome tendency to maintain and perpetuate whatever is good in our po-

To remove members of the supreme court to satisfy the display of the powers of liberty enjoyed by the common voters is neither common sense nor productive or good results. The sentiment is growing daily in favor of retaining satisfactory public servants. That servant who is a good man capable of filling the office, and one who fills it in the interests of the people, is in line for a life-time post

This particular sentiment is not so dearly cherished in behalf of many of the minor political offices.

Too many officials are permitting personal interests to interfere with public justice. Too many are building up personal popularity and using the office to personal advantage.

The only remedy in cases of these kinds is to replace that official with some one supposedly free from these obnoxious tendencies. But the supreme court of our state is an institution so nicely situated that it is practically free from unprofessional influence and is rapidly breaking itself free from even political interference. It is to be hoped that at least some of the present members of the supreme court may be re-elected and enough of them to still maintain the present high standard. The supreme court becomes a buzzsaw when fooled with by scheming politicians.

The rights of property, one of the great foundation stones of our government, is placed is jeopardy when tinkering, shallow-minded political gamesters whould forever reduce the dignity and weight of the supreme court to the level of minor and less authoritative institutions.

The so-called wild-cat tendencies of communistic government we see repeatedly held in check by remarkable conservative sentiments. While the socialistic advance of the Direct Primary might be construed into dangerous political action, yet the sentiment of the people is forever seen to mold results along conservative lines.
