COUNT "BONI" IS RUNNING FOR OFFICE

IS A DAINTY "CUSS" AND HAS A HIRED MAN ALONG TO KISS THE BABIES AND DO THE HANDSHAKING.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

Paris, April 12.—Count Boni De Castellane, ex-husband of Anna Gould, now Duchess De Tallyrand, running for re-election to the chamber of deputies from the Basses-Alpes district, hates the "common people" so, declared his opponent today, that he makes his stump speeches through his valet.

This statement is only one of a number of uppercuts of a political sort which Justin Perchod, editor of "Le Radical," has landed on Deputy De Castellane. Perchod is a protégé of ex-Prime Minister Clemenceau, Senator from the adjoining district to Boni's and he is running at Clemenceau's request, in an endeavor to oust the count.

Perchod says Boni owes so much election money now that in certain districts personal injury would be done him if he were to show himself. He says that before borrowing money enough to pay off some of these debts, he could not go among his constituents for fear of being manhandled. His first election cost Anna Gould $35,000, avows Perchod. Where will he get the coin to buy his re-election? It is said he has already been turned down by the Baroness Vaughan, widow of the late King Leopold of Belgium, whose hand rumor says he sought. The circumscription from which hails as deputy is one of the poorest in France. The peasants sleep on a pile of hay. Hotels are so poor that Boni takes bedding with him when he travels there. Boni chose this corner because a village there happens to have the name of Castellane and Perchod says the natives were made to believe Boni's family named it. The people dislike him because he sends his valet to do the baby kissing and handshaking.

Perchod avers that the news of Boni's divorce from Anna Gould, who was better liked than her ex-husband, has reached the district now and that will tell against him at the polls.

OREGON TO BE GRIDIRONED WITH RAILROADS

(Corvallis Gazette Times.)

The latest reports are that the Hill interests will cover this state with a network of electric lines. A railroad man speaking of Hill's intentions is credited with saying:

"Hill is mapping out a railroad system over the state of Oregon that will prove surprising when worked out and it is apparent that it will be carried out as fast as money and men can do it. The Hill system will not be satisfied with a line into central Oregon through the Deschutes valley or down the Willamette valley, nor a line from Ontario to Albany or Coos Bay, but will want a network of feeders throughout the state. These feeders will in most instances be electric lines. They will radiate in every direction. Branch electric lines will be built from the main line down the valley and some of these will extend to the coast. Others will head for the interior where it is possible

"I feel certain that much of the future railroad map has already been drawn and quite likely some of the plans will be here within the next six weeks as already announced.

Eugene's Comment. In touching on the prospect of Hill's activity in Oregon the Eugene Register very pertinently says editorially:

"Hill has been rightly named the greatest railroad builder in the world. His methods are different and more effective than that of any railroad operator known to the business. His movements are not always understood by the public, but they always work out to the advantage of the country through which he builds, and to the lasting benefit of the territory served by him.

"Here in Oregon, it has been apparent for some time that Hill was getting a strong foothold, but now, and in just what manner, it was hard to divine. Time has served to demonstrate that public surmise was correct, and that Hill is, eventually, to gridiron this state with a complete network of steam and electric roads.

"Hill, oftimes, builds feeders first and main lines afterward, the feeders, such as the Oregon Electric, being constructed by outside parties, and later taken over by the Hill interests. In this way Hill gets together the odds and ends out of which great, new systems are builded before the public or competing lines are aware of what has been done.

"The Hill lines are bound to revolutionize Oregon traffic, when all the lines he already controls and is yet to build in this state are in operation as one system.

"Oregon, and especially that portion embraced in the Willamette valley, does not yet fully appreciate the magnitude of Hill's movements in this state, but the time is not far distant when we shall awake to the knowledge of the fact that Hill roads are ramifying the state in every direction and contributing a most powerful influence toward rapid development of the commonwealth.

RUMOR SAYS "FLINT INSTEAD OF BALLINGER"

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—It is being persistently rumored here today that Senator Frank Flint, of California, is to be secretary of the interior, to succeed R. A. Ballinger.

According to the report Ballinger is to retire from office as soon as the attacks against him cease. Then, according to the rumored program, Flint, it is said, will immediately resign from the senate and become the head of the department.

When Flint was asked regarding the report he declined to confirm or deny it. He merely smiled broadly. Ballinger has been quoted time and again as having said that he would quit the interior department as soon as the present controversy regarding him subsided. This lends color to the report.

Flint has announced that he will not run again for the senate. He gives as a reason that the California primary makes politics "too expensive."

SEATTLE POLICE KILL NEGRO HIGHWAYMAN

Seattle, Wash., April 12.—In a running battle with three policemen, at 4 o'clock this morning, an unknown negro highwayman was riddled with bullets, and lies on a slab at the morgue, while the officers escaped unscathed.

The battle followed the attempted holdup of a Japanese by the negro on Maynard avenue. The Japanese started to run and the holdup man fired two shots, both missing.

The firing attracted Patrolmen Christensens and Donlan, who were in the neighborhood, about a block apart.

The negro ran, and the battle began. Sergeant Hooker, who was on his way home, heard the shots, and joined in the chase. He got within ten feet of the fleeing bandit, when the negro turned and fired, the bullet grazing Hooker's cheek. He fired after the man, but the negro dodged, turning at intervals and replying to the officer's bullets. He turned once too often, however, and a bullet from Hooker's gun dropped him.

The patrolmen were close behind, and fired at the same moment. When the man was picked up there were three bullet holes through his breast, one of them having pierced his heart.

WONDERFUL FINE CROP CONDITIONS

Several rides across Marion county convinces the editor of this paper that this spring has been very favorable to crops in the Willamette valley. The spring has come on slowly and yet without frost and the grass, grain and fruit crops were never in better condition at the beginning of spring. They have not made as much growth above ground as below but with the present favorable start and the usual valley weather, there will be great crops in store. It is not likely that there will be any need for prayers for rain this year.

WIRELESS MESSAGE FROM SEA

Wrecking Steamer, Santa Cruz, at Sea, April 12.—The steamer Georgia went on a reef early yesterday a quarter of a mile off the wreck of the steamer Yucatan. The Santa Cruz went to the rescue and succeeded in floating her at high tide, and brought her alongside the partly submerged Yucatan. Her bottom is badly damaged and it is requiring constant pumping to keep her afloat. The cargo, mail and passengers, were transferred to the Santa Cruz. The steamship City of Seattle, 30 miles west, was summoned by wireless to the wreck and the passengers and mail again transferred.

The City of Seattle is now on its way to Juneau with the passengers. The Georgia is still afloat.

New York, April 12.—Twelve thousand Armenians are starving, and many of them will die unless aid is sent them from the outside, according to a cablegram received here by the American Relief Association.

Money is needed to purchase food stuffs for the Armenians, until the latter part of June, when the harvest commences.

The association has sent out an appeal. In the request for donations it is stated that $2500 has been sent already to the relief of the people, and that $10,000 more is needed.
