RUSSIA AND ENGLAND ARE WITH TURKEY

COUNTRIES HAVE UNITED TO ARRANGE UNION OF BALKAN PROVINCES UNDER TURKISH LEADERSHIP TO HEAD OFF GERMANY.

Constantinople, April 13. — Warned by the British government that Turkey is in serious danger of losing its Arabian possessions, the Constantinople government is straining every nerve to get troops into the Yemen and restore the Sultan's prestige as quickly as possible.

England's interest in the outcome is very considerable. It is no longer any secret that it and Russia have been working together to arrange a Balkan union under the Turkish leadership, as a check upon Teutonic expansion into Southeastern Europe. So heavy a loss to Turkey as that of the Yemen would upset this plan just as it seems on the eve of fulfillment.

British official information, too, is recognized even here as a good deal more reliable than the Sultan's and the hint from London that the local Arabian governors are evidently afraid to report how bad matters are started a tremendous flurry in government circles in Constantinople. Repressive measures are being adopted with as little publicity as possible but it is reported that War Minister Chekret Pasha, the officer who captured Constantinople from Abdul Hamid at the time of the last reactionary uprising, may temporarily abandon his hostile preparations against Greece and take personal charge of the Yemen situation unless his subordinates show satisfactory results immediately.

Sheik Yahlia, one of the most powerful chieftains in Arabia, appears to be at the head of the uprising. He has won over practically all the leaders of the desert tribes and indications are that the disturbance is not merely one of the periods of local disorder with which Turkey has long been familiar, but something like a holy war, with a view to setting up an independent government in Arabia.

It is pretty strongly suspected that Izzet Holo, who spent years in vain attempts to establish an independent state in Syria, is the power behind Sheik Yahlia. He is in Egypt just now and both England and Turkey are keeping something more than a fatherly eye on him.

The Yemen has always been a source of exasperation to Turkish ministers, large parts of the province refusing to pay taxes for years together. The old custom was to round up the chieftains in batches whenever opportunity afforded and give them the choice between paying arrears or going to prison, with "extras" in the way of Oriental punishments.

The Young Turks have been too humane to resort to such extremities, however, and the whole country is consequently thorough out of hand.

Its loss would not amount to so much to Turkey financially as from a sentimental standpoint, the secession of millions of Mohammedan subjects being a blow which might threaten the sultan's position as "commander of the faithful." Religion plays so important a part in Mohammedan government that the result might be trouble everywhere that the "prophet" is acknowledged.

"DIRTY MONEY" WHEN "EARNED" IS CLEAN NOW

Los Angeles, Cal., April 13.—Miss Jeanne Uhalt today is plaintiff in a superior court action to break the will of the late "Tenderloin King," Bartolo Ballerino. In her suit, which was filed late yesterday, she asked letters of administration on the grounds that the instrument under which a compromise was effected between Ballerino's heirs and Della G. Quinn, a nurse, was not the actual will of the late "king."

Ballerino died last July. When his will was filed it was found Miss Quinn who attended him for several months prior to his death, was left the greater part of his fortune.

The relatives of Ballerino compromised with her.

Mrs. Uhalt, who was Ballerino's sister, claims that the will making Miss Quinn a beneficiary was not executed by him, nor signed by him in the presence of witnesses. She further claims a prior instrument left much of his fortune of $400,000 to her.

For several days after the filing of Ballerino's will, dozens of persons with shovels and picks overturned the soil on the grounds of his old home in the tenderloin section of the city, searching for gold he was reported to have buried there. Instructions to stop this activity was secured by his heirs. No gold was unearthed.

Funeral of Charles DeLaney.

The funeral of Chas. DeLaney which was held at his home at 385 Lincoln St. at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, was largely attended. The Rev. Paul S. Bandy was in charge of the services, at the house, assisted by his quartet. The Woodmen of the World of which he was an honored member, with their Uniform Degree team, officers and members, about two hundred strong, escorted the hearse in open order to the grave where they conducted the interment ceremonies. The Brotherhood of American Yeoman of which he also was a member, was largely in attendance.

Mr. DeLaney came to Salem about ten years ago, and has been employed in the Hansen planing mill most of the time since. He was an excellent mechanic, and faithful to the interests of his employer. An honest, up-right citizen, a loving husband and father. That he was loved by all who knew him was best evidenced by the many elaborate and beautiful floral pieces contributed and the attendance of friends and neighbors. He was forty-three years old and was married in 1890 to Miss Dora B. Rhode and to them were born two children Viola and Hazel, who, with their mother, mourn his untimely departure.

CAUSES DEBILITY

Here Are Facts Backed Up by a Strong Guarantee.

Catarrh causes debility. In our opinion, most people suffering from general debility have catarrh. Such cases of debility cannot be completely cured by medicine not designed to eradicate catarrh. In every case where our remedy fails to give entire satisfaction we will not charge a cent for the medicine employed during the trial. Now, surely no one should hesitate to believe us or to put our claim to a practical test under such conditions. We will take all the risk; no one else can lose anything by the transaction.

We make these statements and this offer because we know and have time and again proved that Rexall Mucuo-Tone rarely fails to do as we claim. It is not a cure-all prescribed to cure every disease that flesh is heir to. It is intended for one purpose, i. e., to cure catarrh by assailing the diseased condition in a reasonable, scientific way, which is to employ agents that have been found to have the tonic and alterative power to correct faulty metabolism (tissue change) and to stimulate and help nature overcome the cause or causes of catarrh. This being done, appetite increases, nutrition improves, weight is gained, comfort of body is attained and life's work taken up with the zest natural to the perfectly healthy individual.

We want you to try Rexall Mucuo-Tone. Follow directions and take it regularly and consistently for a reasonable length of time. Then, if you are not satisfied, come back and tell us and the money you paid for the treatment will be returned without any argument whatever.

Rexall Mucuo-Tone comes in two sizes, 50c and $1.00 a bottle. Sold only at our store.—J. C. Perry.

EUGENE REVOLTING.

forthcoming to the people who are paying 31 1-2 mills on a 70 per cent valuation and who are now notified that they will hereafter be assessed at a full cash value. The time has come when the people want something for their money. Since conditions show so palpably that no beneficial results have been had from the already enormous sums of money spent by the city, the people are wondering where the money went that it brought so little return.

This demand to know where the money is going has resulted in forcing a resolution through the city council to expert the books. It has been said that some of the newly elected councilmen are to delay qualifying for office until the books are experted and a statement made of the financial conditions. Whether or not the people will be satisfied with the showing of the city's expenditures and will commend the action of the administration remains to be seen after the findings of the experts.

The most important question to be answered by the administration before the public bar is the undertaking to install an electric power plant on the McKonzie river east of Eugene. The project has been underway for a long time, thousands of dollars have been spent and the plant is yet far from completion. The estimated cost now appears to have been far below what it will actually cost to complete, the plant and serve the city with light and power. Competent engineers estimate that the city will have expended when the plant is ready for operation not less than $300,000, to say nothing of the enormous outlay for maintenance, depreciation, etc. This lighting scheme, conceived under the present administration, was supposed to be installed for something over $100,000. It is now seen that $300,000 will be nearer the actual cost of installation alone. After operation, the upkeep has to be figured out and the wear and tear on the machinery and wire lines. To release the city from the payment of some $1,300 per month to the local lighting corporation, and—so it is intimated—to give vent to some petty vengeance, the opposition municipal plant was proposed and put underway. Under present conditions the city gets a 24-hour service, has no responsibility, and no maintenance or depreciation to pay for.

When the new plant is once in operation the city has in addition to the first cost of the power plant, the maintenance thereof, which will prove an item of considerable magnitude. The whole scheme is so chimerical that one heavy tax-payer likens it to a man who wears a $10,000 button on a ten cent shirt. To save a city expense bill for lighting and pumping water for city mains of $1,300 per month the city is expending about $300,000, the interest on which would pay the present bills. Can the city afford to invest this enormous amount to save paying $1,300 per month to a local concern? That is a much mooted question being asked.

The whole plan of operation has been so questionable that opposition would naturally be expected. When the plan was first introduced it may be said that there was some influence felt from corporate headquarters, but that is past history. The present management has taken no hand in fostering opposition in any way. Yet, when the last election was held the administration trumped up the charge, for want of something better that the local corporation was fighting the administration.

In reality there was no issue. The administration dragged this mouldy corpse from the mummy to give some semblance to the election. That the people knew there was no real issue is easily seen in the election returns. Not even one-third of the voters got out to vote and no one cared very much who was elected. The "vindication" of the city administration showed its strength when one of its candidates was elected by three votes and another by six, with less than half of the wards voting. The election was of little consequence in the light of the oncoming demand for explanation from the administration.

The "vindication" of the city administration is also seen in the people voting down the $150,000 bond issue recently asked for by overwhelming large numbers. The city administration had "up their sleeve" another bond issue of $100,000 to spring on the people, providing the $150,000 issue carried. The first issue of $150,000 was to take up the outstanding city warrants, now far beyond charter limitations and being peddled about at a four per cent discount. The second issue of $100,000 was to buy new filters and make long needed extensions for the city water system. The first issue was so promptly knocked in the head, that the second proposed issue never saw daylight. The temerity of the taxpayers can be seen when they voted down at the same time, an additional, and generally favored, issue of $20,000 for a new city hall site.

While all agree the city is greatly in need of a new city hall, yet the people will not allow the present administration to buy it for them. Under existing conditions the taxpayers will neither vote for what the administration wants nor for what they want themselves.

The commission form of government is another "snake in the grass" for the administration. People are eager for the acceptance of this new system, believing it can't be worse than what they have now. The commission form will doubtless be forced into effect, through the administration council, in the near future.

A mass meeting of the taxpayers has been called for to put these questions square up to the administration. Considerable interest is being developed and it is expected the meeting will prove a lively session.

with thousands of dollars spent by her ambitious merchants for promotional purposes, drinks, and offers to the new comers, unwholesome water pumped into service mains, while two good filters stand idly by.

The law requiring assessors to assess at full cash value has been inoperative in Lane county, and other counties, because the law carried no penalty. This defect in the law has been remedied and the discretion permitted assessors under the old law becomes fixed and certain under the amended law. Assessors now are required to assess, as near as possible, the full cash value.

The general effect of assessment of this new manner of assessment will be to reduce the county and school taxes, but the city's taxes will not be lowered any. The legal limit of ten mills, now fixed by law, will not be reduced under the new form of assessment. There is no question but the taxes for the city of Eugene the coming year will be higher if anything, than any taxes heretofore paid in the history of the city.

In illustration of the effect of assessing at full value is seen in the case of a man heretofore paying on $1,900, now assessed at $8,000, over four times the old assessment. This heavy increase, bound to come from this new method, will reduce the levy, but not more than five mills, if that much. Eugene sees no early prospects for lower taxes until such time as the town opens more commercially to progressive enterprises and demands retrenchment in its civic policies. Eugene's warrants are sold at a discount.

The great trouble with Eugene, is undertaking to live like a city while still wearing the stagnation clothes of a church and school town. Eugene sacrifices many things found to produce revenue in other live towns in order to secure the so-called moral atmosphere for her state schools. The maintenance of this false value of her schools is expensive for the city, since it shuts out enterprises which would bring heavy returns to the city, reducing the present high taxes materially.

And the worst of it all is, that while Eugene keeps out of her town, heavily licensed and well regulated saloons for instance, in order to keep a pure moral atmosphere, the consumption of booze goes on just the same under the auspices of the blind-pig. So that, even after shutting out these revenues for moral reasons, the real effects sought for are not in evidence.

Eugene labors under a mistaken impression that a school town cannot be a desirable place for students if open to licensed saloons. But the moral standard of Salem, for instance, with her model saloons, is equally as high as that of Eugene, and Salem has one of the foremost schools in the state. The fact that Salem has saloons has never interfered a particle with the steady growth of the Willamette University, which this year has its heaviest enrollment. One can mention hundreds of school towns throughout the country whose moral standards have not been impaired because of saloons.

If students want booze in Salem it can be bought by the glass. In Eugene it must be taken in quantity, by the bottle or barrel. Is it better to have a student take a drink in an open saloon in plain view of the public, or have him, with his crowd of friends, open a keg in a restaurant box or a case in the basement of a frat house? Is a revelry behind closed doors better than a drink at a public bar? Eugene will sometime come to see the extreme fallacy of her civic moral regulations.

In addition to these Puritan liquor laws she closes the simple and innocent moving-picture shows on Sunday. Her latest drastic effort to close cigar stands she had to repeal. It was more than the people would stand. On Sunday, Eugene is a dreary place, and Monday is none too lively.

The dry law was passed in 1906, closing twelve or thirteen saloons. At that time Eugene had three drug stores. Today, Eugene has no saloons but has six drug stores. Boot-legging is on the ascendancy.

The Sound Sleep of Good Health. The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Souther, Eau Claire, Wis., says:—"For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of palms across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was very much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals, and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me." J. C. Perry.
