The vulnerable points will be over the gun rooms, ammunition hoists and funnels, where an explosive dropped accurately might destroy the vessel.

The men who have volunteered for the hazardous duty will be alternately in the sky ships and in the man o' war. After they have taken shots at the airship with guns ranging from 6-pounders to 12-inch rifles they will mount in the airships and attempt to drop bombs on vital spots in the warship's deck.

While not actually becoming targets for shells and bombs, there is enough risk for the men to make the work anything but child's play.
