IT IS A MUTUAL ADMIRATION ASSEMBLAGE

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—Chief Forester Henry S. Graves today paid a tribute to Gifford Pinchot, declaring that his predecessor was the real founder of the national conservation movement.

"Our national forests," Graves said, "stand as the greatest practical demonstration of conservation and as a monument to Mr. Pinchot."

Graves further declared that the present lack of funds with which to carry on the work of conservation is seriously threatening the movement. Additional funds for forest protection are needed, he said, if the proportion of standing timber annually destroyed by fire does not increase.

Graves took issue with Chief Moore, of the Weather Bureau, who recently declared that the preservation of forests exerted a minimum effect upon water supplies. He also placed himself on record as favoring federal control of power sites, urging co-operation with power interests, in so far as possible, to attain that end.

BURGLARS ROBBED THE POSTOFFICE

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Vallejo, Calif., Sept. 8.—Crackmen opened the safe of the post-office at El Verano, Sonoma county, shortly before daybreak today, secured $600 in cash and stamps worth $500 and escaped.

The robbery was discovered when the office was opened today. A posse immediately took the trail and traced the robbers to within a few miles of Napa. It is believed they reached Napa and will try to make their way to San Francisco today.

A SCOTCH VERDICT IS EXPECTED

INDICATIONS ARE VOTE OF BALLINGER INVESTING COMMITTEE WILL BE A TIE—AND THE OLD SCOTCH VERDICT OF "NOT PROVEN" WILL BE ALL BALLINGER CAN HOPE FOR.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 8.—"As far as the real effect on the action of the committee and its findings," said Senator Sutherland of Utah, member of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee, "as with Representative McCall of Massachusetts, bolted yesterday before a vote was taken on the resolution censuring the secretary of the interior, 'the members might as well have framed their resolution on the street corner and told the nearest policeman.'"

Senator Sutherland admitted that the anti-Ballinger members stole a march on the friends of the secretary and that the action yesterday was a surprise.

Both Sutherland and McCall, in their statements, did not intimate that they considered the resolution unjust but it is believed that both will support Ballinger when the final vote is taken.

Both representative Denby and Representative Olmsted will be present at the meeting of the committee tomorrow. Senator Fletcher and Representative Graham are today formulating a report upholding the Glavis and Pinchot charges. It is said this document will be adopted as the minority report of the committee. The Ballingerites expect a tie vote tomorrow when the vote is taken.

Senators Root and Flint will be absent from the meeting but will have the privilege of concurring, and this, it is believed, will mean that the majority will favor Ballinger.

ROSELAIR SETTLED THE BILL

his second wife in a most brutal manner with a butcher knife, as the result of one of a long series of family quarrels at the breakfast table when, after he had demanded cream for his coffee and the wife had served him and was severely upbraided for giving him milk, she emptied the contents of the milk pan in his face. During his talk on the scaffold he repeated his protestations of innocence of the crime of murder, stating that in warding off the blow of the milk pan delivered by his wife, he inflicted a wound in her neck with the butcher knife so serious in nature that he afterwards killed her to put her out of her misery.

He denied the accusation of criminal associations with Marie Ericsson, the daughter of his first wife, which seemed to be the burden of his mental sufferings over his crime and the penalty he was compelled to meet, and said that if she had come to see him and talk the matter over with him, which she refused to do, he would have convinced her that he was not in the wrong.

Roselair remained utterly composed during the march to his death from his cell to the execution chamber and kept up a continual string of conversation with his guards concerning the sanitary conditions of the prison. He walked boldly upon the scaffold and when asked if he had anything to say to the people who had gathered to witness his execution he said "sure," and proceeded to talk in a rambling and incoherent manner, repeating the history of his crime over and over and declaring that he never intended to injure his wife in the least, that he loved her devotedly and everything would have been well had she not committed the assault upon him with the pan of skimmed milk. Among those who witnessed the execution was Sheriff Hancock, of Hillsboro, who interviewed Roselair previously to the time of the hanging and endeavored to secure from him a full confession of his guilt but Roselair was firm in his declarations of accidental homicide and clung to it to the last.

"You have got the cap too tight. It is smothering my nose and I cannot breathe," he complained to the guards when they were adjusting the black cap over his face and the noose preparatory to springing the trap. Harrell, who is to hang tomorrow noon for the murder of the Newell brothers, by whom he was executed herding sheep in 1883 county, is of a different and desperate class of criminal to Roselair. He takes his approaching doom as a matter of fact and pre-ordained consequence and seems to regard the coming tragedy as an incident in which he to figure as a necessary and material factor, apparently indifferent as to his fate, and regarded Roselair in the light

THE WHOLE OF OREGON GROWING

MR. AND MRS. A. F. HOFER MAKE TRIP THROUGH SOUTHERN OREGON—SIGNS OF PROSPERITY SEEN EVERYWHERE, AND KIND WORDS HEARD FOR SALEM ON EVERY HAND.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hofer returned this morning from a few days' trip through Southern Oregon. Mr. Hofer visited the various commercial clubs and saw a great deal of the development work going on throughout the southern part of the state. He says things are growing at a wonderfully rapid pace in that section as a result of promotion activities, and the general upward movement of the commonwealth. Most of the smaller cities are paving miles of streets, erecting new business blocks and large numbers of new residences. Nowhere were conditions found more favorable than at Salem, and in most instances they do not compare favorably with the Capital City. A part of Secretary Hofer's mission on this trip was to cultivate the various commercial organizations and his old newspaper friends, in the interest of good will and promotion of the mutual interests of the various communities. He says the many good words heard for Salem on every hand, compared with former years, is remarkable. In fact, Salem is now one of the towns that is being praised by practically everybody.

of supreme contempt as the killer of a defenseless woman.

P. M. Cory, brother-in-law to the two Newell boys, the victims of Harrell, and William Barker, of Lakeview, Lake county, came all the way to Salem to witness the Harrell execution tomorrow, and, incidentally, witnessed the Roselair execution today. Father Francis, of the Catholic church, of Grants Pass, who administered the last sacrament to James A. Finch, some time ago, also attended to the spiritual comforts of Roselair during his last moments of life and is acting in the same capacity for Harrell.

MEDFORD AND BAKER CITY ASK FOR RATES

START BATTLE BEFORE RAILROAD COMMISSION IN EFFORT TO MAKE THEMSELVES JOBBING CENTERS—FIGHT LIKE THAT WON BY SPOKANE.

The enterprising cities of Medford, in the southernmost, and Baker in the easternmost portions of the state, through their commercial organizations, have started a fight before the railroad commission for distributive rates that is of considerable importance to the other cities of the state, including Salem. The fight is similar to that made a year or so ago by the city of Spokane before the interstate commerce commission.

Each of the Oregon cities named has filed complaint with the railroad commission alleging unjust treatment and illegal discriminations and demanding that they be given such rates as will enable them to make themselves a jobbing center. Should they be successful the immediate result will be to put them uppermost as rivals in the field that belongs to Portland, or what might belong to Salem at some future time.

Both Medford and Baker are situated in well developed regions, and each has a future. The commercial organizations that have started the fight mean business, and will push the matter to the end. The railroad companies complained against which are the Southern Pacific Company and the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, have filed answers to the complaints, and the railroad commission will make a thorough investigation of the merits of the demands at an early date.

Along with the demand for distributive rates a request has also been made for commodity rates on a large list of articles. This will put the cities on an even more equitable basis, and Portland will stand further chance of losing her commercial supremacy in Oregon.

SHELL BURST WHILE AT TARGET PRACTICE

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—Military authorities at the Presidio are at a loss to explain the accidental bursting of a shell during target practice yesterday which injured one trooper and narrowly missed fifty more. The topic has been discussed officially and otherwise all day and no decision reached. It is the consensus of opinion that the fault lies with the construction of the half-ton missile rather than in the way it was fired. Gunner Howard Culbertson was slightly wounded.
