Brings the Orders

Easy to write a pulling Munnimaker ad. Just remember this. What brings the orders is not the name of your business. It's the thing you offer to sell, or the thing you offer to do. Don't say "Carpentering and General Repairing." Be specific. Think up the things that people need. Say, "I can make your front fence look respectable. Your satisfaction and self-respect will more than pay for what it costs you." ."I can fix up your house so the weather won't get in. It won't cost much. Maybe only an hour's work or two." "That new kitchen shed, NOW is the time to plan it. Ring me up. There's a certain lot of god lumber in the market you can get much cheaper if you buy NOW." "Let me make those cellar stairs easy and SAFE for your wife and your mother. A little cost and a big satisfaction to you." Same rule holds good in every other business. Make a definite offer of one thing that people want. That's what brings them to the telephone. That's what brings YOU the business,
