GENERAL BRAYTON EXPIRES

WAS "THE MAN BEHIND" IN RHODE ISLAND POLITICS AND THOUGH BLIND, WAS REALLY THE BRAINS OF THE PARTY IN THE STATE. Providence, R. I., Sept. 23.—General Charles Brayton, known as the blind dictator of Rhode Island, veteran of the Civil war, and prominent for the last 30 years in Rhode Island politics, died suddenly here today from heart disease. General Brayton met with an accident three weeks ago and his leg was broken. This, it is believed, hastened his death. News of General Brayton's death caused a sensation through the state. Brayton has been known as "the man behind" in Republican politics. After losing his eyesight he held no public office, but it was his brain, it is said, that conceived and worked out most of the political coups of his party. General Brayton was 70 years old. He served through the Civil war as a colonel of heavy artillery and at its close was brevetted for valiant service.

Jones, filed with the Railroad Commission, of the alleged overcrowding of the trains on the Springfield division of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, of Portland, Manager Josselyn, of the company, informs the commission that the information furnished by Mr. Jones is erroneous, in that the service afforded by the company between Cazadero and Portland is sufficient to meet ordinary conditions, and that the over-crowded conditions complained of by Mr. Jones were such as could not be anticipated by the company or its employees, and were unavoidable under the circumstances.

ELLIS SPENDS DAY FIGHTING DANDELIONS

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Pendleton, Ore., Sept. 23.—Congressman Ellis, stand-patter, who is seeking re-nomination at the state wide primaries tomorrow, closed his campaign today in his front yard, spading dandelions. With his coat off and suspenders down, Oregon's representative in the second congressional district, wielded a spade in a manner that would have done credit to Senator LaFollette, the Wisconsin insurgent. "Yes, I think I'll be re-nominated," said Ellis, as he dexterously uprooted one of the weeds which threaten to overrun his lawn of which he is tremendously proud.

MORMON GIRL TO MARRY A JAP

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Oakland, Calif., Sept. 23.—Kunio Toda, ex-Japanese soldier and Rayda Reed, held yesterday while the police communicated with the girl's father in Utah, were released today. They will depart at once for Seattle where they will be married and will then go to Los Angeles to live. The girl's father is a Mormon. Two brief telegrams received by the police made them decide that they could not hold the couple longer. "I did not give consent. They ran away," read one telegram from the girl's father. The other said, "Girl of age. If any crime committed put them in jail." "I'd rather die than give up Kunio," said the girl when she was freed today. "Why shouldn't I marry him? I love him."

At Death's Door—Stacey Robinson, a well-known and popular young man of this city, is lying at death's door at the Salem hospital, and all hope of saving his life is despaired of. Recently he underwent an operation for the removal of a serious case of the piles, but the case had reached such an aggravated stage before medical relief was sought that the chances of saving his life are about one in one hundred.

Captain Carl Abrams He stands for clean politics and good government, regretting mud-slinging and personal abuse in a campaign, or the use of lies and misrepresentations for campaign purposes. Captain Abrams is well-known in Salem as a newspaper man. He is now manager of the Pacific Homestead, and will work for the interest and progress of the farming community. He believes in good roads, and working convicts to build public roads. He is a Spanish War veteran, fighting both the Spanish and Filipinos. He was for two years president of the Salem Young Men's Republican club and represents the clean young men of the county. He was born on a farm six miles from Salem, and has lived here all his life, so understands conditions and the needs of the community. He wears no collar, and will serve the people well and faithfully as a legislator. If you believe in the above, he asks your support at the primaries. (Paid advertisement.)

N. D. ELLIOTT DEFENDS COL. HOFER

HE IS A UNION PRINTER, HAS WORKED ON COL. HOFER'S PAPER, AND DENOUNCES THE ATTACK ON HIM AS MALICIOUS AND ABSOLUTELY FALSE—JOURNAL FOREMAN ENDORSES IT.

Salem, Or., Sept. 23, 1910. The dastardly attack made upon Col. E. Hofer, which apparently comes from the Typographical Union of Salem, is not only false and misleading, but absolutely malicious. It was gotten up for political purposes years ago, and is now reshaped for that purpose.

As one of the oldest members of the Salem Typographical Union, I know whereof I speak, and will say that in 1906 the composing room of the Journal employed a full force of union men, with Mr. J. S. Wyant as foreman, and he still holds the same position. Prior to 1896 Mr. Hofer's paper was not unionized. During the very hard times prior to 1896, girls were employed as compositors, and about that time members of the union went to Mr. Hofer and appealed to him to give union men work, and I was employed. I was always well treated. As times improved my wages were voluntarily raised, and it was not long until the entire office was unionized. Since that time the office has always paid the union scale and usually more, and the best recommendation for the office and for Mr. Hofer is that he has held his best employees continuously for many years. They get good wages, and they get their money every pay day, besides many concessions which very few printing offices grant their employees. I worked for Mr. Hofer for many years, and when I quit it was by mutual consent, and because I had an opportunity to go into business for myself. It has always been the rule of this office to assist an employee to a better place, if such could be obtained, and no self-respecting printer could honestly cast any reflection whatever upon Mr. Hofer's unionism or his fair treatment of all employees. N. D. ELLIOTT, Salem, Or.

As foreman of The Capital Journal office, I will add a note to the above communication, and state that I have been in the employ of Mr. Hofer for the past eight years, and his relations with the Typographical Union have always been very pleasant. The entire force at the present time, and for years past, has been strictly union.

I cannot state strongly enough my utter contempt for such methods as were used in this morning's Oregonian to blacken Mr. Hofer in the eyes of union men, for there is no more fair man to union labor in the state of Oregon today than Col. E. Hofer, of Salem. J. S. WYANT, Ex-President Capital Typographical Union No. 210.

I have been city editor of The Journal for nearly eight years, and know that Col. Hofer's relation with his employees has always been harmonious. He has employed in that time only union labor, and pays the scale or above it. J. H. CRADLEBAUGH, City Editor Journal

OLD MAN IS KILLED BY YOUNG GIRL

JOHN MAHAR, AGED 93, IS PUSHED FROM THE SIDEWALK BY ELIZABETH SCHEIDMANN, STRIKES HIS HEAD ON A STONE AND DIES.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Portland, Ore., Sept. 23.—Ninety-three year old John Mahar is dead and Miss Elizabeth Scheidemann, 17, who admits that she is responsible for his death, probably will be taken into custody pending an investigation by the coroner.

According to the girl, Mahar advanced upon her with an open knife threatening her and she pushed him off the sidewalk in self defense. He fell and his head struck a stone, fracturing the skull. Witnesses who saw the affair, corroborated the girl's story. Mahar, it is said, had been in ill humor all day. He with his wife ran a boarding house on East Sixth street, where Miss Scheidemann was employed as a chambermaid.
