ANOTHER BIG BOMB EXPLODES

IS FOUND UNDER OTIS' HOUSE BY POLICEMEN WHO CARRY IT INTO THE STREET—THEY FLED ON SEEING ALARM CLOCK WAS WORKING.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 1.—A bomb found beneath the home of General Harrison Gray Otis, publisher of the Times, in Wilshire Boulevard, exploded in the street near the house late this afternoon.

The explosion tore a great hole in the street, and shattered a score of windows.

No one was hurt.

The bomb was found by the police. It was similar to that found beneath the Zeehandelaar home this morning.

When the officers carried it to the street they noted that the clock attached was running. They dropped it in the street and fled.

Two minutes later the machine exploded with a detonation that terrified the entire fashionable West Lake district.

A guard has been thrown about the Otis home.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

The Times building was a four-story brick and stone structure at the intersection of First street and Broadway. It was completely razed by the explosion and fire.

According to the statement of Managing Editor Andrews, the loss will exceed $500,000.

The city council this morning, in executive session, appropriated $25,000 to be used to investigate the explosion that wrecked the Times building this morning. Resolutions were passed demanding a thorough sifting of the affair.

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—The Evening Post, commenting editorially on the Los Angeles dynamiting, today says:

All newspaperdom was thrilled and shocked today with the horror of the holocaust which followed the dynamiting of the Times building in Los Angeles. The loss of property is but a detail, as the owner is a wealthy corporation, and its plant is well insured, but not all the money nor the sympathy in the world can relight one of the 20 human candles whose lights were blown out by the chilling blast of exploded nitroglycerine.

Appalled by the effect, a million tongues are asking today concerning the cause, the human cause, which plotted and planned the explosion. In its fight with organized labor, the Times is a world figure, and, as loss for a lurid theory, this crime will be laid by many at labor's door. The most plausible explanation seems to be that this is the work of misguided fanatics, and these have misled the men they sought to strike, only to kill and maim scores with whom they had no quarrel.

Two suspects are already under arrest. The Post trusts that the real perpetrators of this outrage will be discovered, that the world may know what forces were responsible for a deed that will forever blot a page of the industrial history of Southern California.

In the loss of life, the outrage is greater than the Haymarket riots in Chicago, and the case may become as celebrated.

The October St. Nicholas.

Boys will run for first chance at the October St. Nicholas when they know that Mr. Walter Camp, who knows more about foot-ball than any man in America, writes in that issue "The New Rules in Foot-ball"; and further, that Edward H. Coy, Captain of the Yale Foot-ball Team of 1909—by many thought to be the greatest foot-ball player who has ever carried a ball, has also an article in which he discusses "Foot-ball—A Game for Gentlemen."

Walter Camp explains the New Rules in detail and the effects which they are likely to have upon the play and players, while Edward H. Coy pleads for a fair and patient test of football under the new rules, as "a game for gentlemen." This article of "Ted" Coy's will be followed by others in this November and December St. Nicholas, in which he will suggest certain special plays for boys to "try out," and offer suggestions and side lights upon the strategy of the new game.

Short stories and long, and many sketches of interest, make the October St. Nicholas a splendid end-of-the-year issue. Then, too, it contains another article by Francis Arnold Collins on "How to Make and Fly Model Aeroplanes", with plenty of pictures, while "Nature and Science" offers a long and interesting article, with many illustrations, on "Balloons and Airships", made by man in fancy and fact.
