PORTUGAL'S KING GOES TO ENGLAND

London, Oct. 20.—Don Manuel, deposed king of Portugal, Queen Mother Amelle and suite sailed on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert last night and today are on their way to the Duke of Orleans' estate in Worcestershire, where the de-throned "boy king" and his mother, together with several noble friends, will rest for a time.

Together with Manuel and his mother aboard the yacht were the Portuguese ambassador, Marquis Soveral, and the Spanish ambassador, Senor Urrulla. As the yachts anchors let go there was no farewell salute.

As Manuel stepped ashore, he looked pale and worried. The events of recent weeks had clearly been a severe strain on him. Reports are current regarding Manuel today. That he is badly in need of money and probably will continue to find himself in increasingly straightened circumstances is undisputed. There would be small surprise in leading circles if the deposed ruler at once sought marriage in a rich American family with a view to retrieving his fallen fortunes.

Reports that the king invested much money in England before fleeing from Portugal are believed to be erroneous. The queen mother herself is wealthy but as she is extravagant there seems little chance of Manuel getting material assistance from her.

For Manuel to marry into a royal family is now practically out of the question. Should he be so unwise as to wed a woman outside of royalty any small chance he may now have of regaining the Portuguese throne would be gone forever. Therefore the problem of Manuel's marriage, if the report that he contemplates one be true, is of consuming interest and importance to the deposed ruler and his friends.

Manuel's social status in England is the cause of considerable worry in certain circles. He has no official standing but as a private citizen he probably will be regarded in the light of a royal personage by other persons of royal blood. Manuel's case presents a true paradox and, according to what is believed to be authoritative information, he will hereafter be treated by the nobilities of Europe as "royal, yet indeed, not royal."

Members of the foreign office are unanimous in the belief that England should harbor Manuel. Though England is clearly unable to avoid furnishing him a haven of safety, she will nevertheless insist that he do no plotting while within the British realm. The government believes that Manuel himself will behave, but what the queen mother will do is regarded as problematical. Amelle has always been ambitious and designing, and will continue to urge Manuel to regain his throne, it is believed.

swept us over Georgian bay just after we had thrown out most of our ballast.

"Then we tried to land with the drag rope but failed. At 11 o'clock last night our pilot became desperate. We had no ballast; did not know where we were and had been in the air more than 28 hours. It was pitch dark and we decided to take a chance. We ripped open the gas bag and dropped with frightful velocity to earth, which was much further away than we had calculated. We landed in the lake, which was lucky, for had we struck on land, we would both have been killed.

"We floundered about in the water for two hours, finally being washed to a small uninhabited island in the center of the lake. There we spent the night and this morning were taken off by two Indian hunters whom we hailed from the mainland.

"At times during our trip we sailed along at the rate of 60 miles an hour."

"The Hamburg III made the best record of any of the balloons so far heard from. It traveled 775 miles, 60 miles farther than the Germanis.

which came down yesterday at Poggamasing, Ontario. The Isle de France landed within a short distance of the Germania. The "Million Population" balloon of St. Louis made the poorest showing, traveling only 217 miles before alighting at Racine, Wisconsin.

Quebec, Que., Oct. 20.—A balloon believed to be one of the entrants in the international race, which left St. Louis Monday, passed Kiskatinik, Ontario, late yesterday, traveling eastward. This point is 1,200 miles from St. Louis and if the balloon was a racer, it had broken all existing records for distance. The balloon carried a passenger, according to appearances.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEAMS PLAY GOOD BASEBALL.

Last night the Sunday School Baseball league practice games preparatory to the coming tournament. The Christian team defeated the Methodists by a score of 7 to 5. Also the Congregationalists defeated the Presbyterians 14 to 13. A great deal of school spirit was displayed. The first double header game will be played next Wednesday night—Baptists vs. Methodists; and Presbyterians vs. Christians. No admission is to be charged to these games.

Mr. and Mrs. Martinette came out to dinner, and my wife abused me for not paying them more attention, saying:

"This is the finish. I will stand it no longer. I will leave tomorrow, and you will not hear from me again."

"Before this she told me that the man she would go to would be better able to support her.

"I went to the office next morning, and, returning home between 5 and 6 o'clock, found that she had gone. I tried to think how to cover up her absence so there would be no scandal.

"I wrote to the guild that she had gone. I also told my friends the same thing. Afterward I realized that this would be an insufficient reason for her not to return, and so told them all that she was dead." I do not remember telling where she died, except saying that it was in California.

"When asked where my son lived I gave his address. I then advertised in the Era that she was dead, thinking it would prevent people asking me a lot of questions. Whatever I told others regarding her death was absolutely wrong, and was done to prevent scandal.

"I do not know what my wife took with her when she went. She often told me she wanted nothing from me. I did not pawn her jewelry, but I did take money accruing from several checks she had signed. We had a joint bank account, and I always carried checks signed with her name, so that I could get money when I wanted it."
