The man who does things has that much more time left to do other things.

CONTRACTOR KEHRBERGER READY TO GO AHEAD

In ten days from the start Contractor August Kehrberger finished the west side of South Commercial street with concrete. It is believed to be a good job by the experts who watched him put it down, very closely. Jim Martin says Michigan avenue, Chicago, has been paved three times, and the last time with the same specifications as South Commercial street, and he thinks it will stand the traffic. The street car company is not ready to go ahead with its tracks and the mayor has ordered suspension of the work for this winter, unless they can get ready, when the contractor is ready to put in the east side of the street, and can do it in ten days, if he gets the chance. There was a slight mistake in the width of the parking at the corner of Commercial and Mission streets. It was two feet too far in the street, but this error was made by some one in the engineering department, or was caused by the ordinance not being clear. The street is left not over 16 feet wide between the rails and the curb.

DON'T LIKE THE STYLE.

(Continued from page one.) carefully guarded, but the main facts of the case, so far as could be learned today are: Last Friday evening the older students of the high school gave a reception to the new students of the school in the assembly room of the high school building. When the reception was over and the students, who participated in the reception were departing homeward, several of the guests of honor were set upon by a number of sophomore students, who were armed with scissors, sheep shears, etc., and their hair was clipped from their heads in "large and irregular chunks." The parents of the victims took exception to this form of entertainment of their boys, and made complaint to the school authorities with the result that the offending parties, or those of the crowd who were identified, have been notified to appear before Superintendent Powers and defend themselves against the charges preferred against them.

SHERWOOD, WASHINGTON COUNTY, PROGRESSIVE

There are a number of new buildings going up here, among the largest skating rink and dance hall in the county. Fred Eppler conducts the bank and electric light plant, and gives the city good service in both capacities. Colfelt & Holzagle are conducting a large general merchandise business, and seem to be progressive merchants. E. G. Hagel has the livery and feed stable, and is one of the charter members of the McKinley Republican club. Holzagle & Fletcher are the village blacksmiths and do a general horse shoeing and repair business. W. J. Edwards has a pool room and soft drink parlor. Dr. A. I. Saylor does a large general practice in this city and county.

STREET CAR SMASHES.

(Continued from page one.) and Dr. Morse immediately summoned. He was unable to determine at one just how serious the injuries were. Later, it seemed that Mrs. Buckner was not seriously injured while the baby will probably be all right. Mr. Buckner, in speaking of the accident, said, "How on earth did I escape without a scratch?" Glass was flying all around him and the steering wheel was literally demolished in his hands. The motor man on the street car did his utmost to prevent an accident but the time was too short for any action. Watch out for the man who has for his motto, "Self preservation is the first law of nature." Dr. Thomas V. B. Embree, of Dallas, died at his home in that city Wednesday. He was a pioneer of 1844, and an Indian War veteran, and was 74 years old.
