TOLSTOI HATED POMP AND CEREMONY BUT WILL BE BURIED WITH LOTS OF IT

HE DIED EXCOMMUNICATE AND NO CHURCH CEREMONY WILL BE HELD AT THE GRAVE

Peasants Gather at Poverty Oak Where Body Will Be Buried ---All Russia Mourns the Passing of the Greatest of All Modern Russians---Nobles and Peasants Alike Send Messages of Condolence---Thousands Will View Remains and Troops Will Cordon the Casket---Funeral Tomorrow.

Yasnaya, Poliana, Russia, Nov. 21.—With pomp and ceremony, the body of Count Leo Tolstoy, who died early Sunday morning, was brought home today for burial tomorrow at the foot of Poverty Oak, where his peasants have congregated awaiting the last services.

No church ceremony will be performed. The high officials of the Greek church in Russia prepared to extend absolution to Tolstoy before his death but it is said the count was induced by anti-church advisers to reject the proffer, and died excommunicate.

In view of this, troops will attend the civil obsequies. The military will cordon the costly casket in which the remains of the illustrious dead will be viewed by thousands, ostensibly as a mark of respect to the deceased, but in reality to preserve order should the peasantry become indignant over the failure of the church to rescind the edict of excommunication after death. It is not likely that the church will do this, as Abbot Varsofoni waited until Tolstoy's death in the hope that before the end the count would seek reconciliation with the church. The church then decided, it is believed, not to act after death.

Before the body was removed to Poverty Oak, the Countess Tolstoy sat beside it, kissing repeatedly the brow of the great Russian, and wailing: "The light of the world has gone out." She swooned when informed that no requiem mass would be sung.

Messages of consolation from all parts of the world poured in today. Hundreds came from nobles and officials of Russia, and thousands from peasants in all parts of the czar's broad domains.

The eyes of Tolstoy had hardly closed before a wrangle over the ownership of rights to his literary works began. Already there is talk of legal complications between Mitchkoff, Tolstoy's representative in Great Britain and the family regarding possession of the writer's Object to Lower Rates.

San Francisco, Nov. 21.—Arguments for an injunction restraining the Interstate Commerce Commission from enforcing the reduced freight rates on 22 Western railroads were begun today by Attorney Durbow, for the Southern Pacific.

He asserted that the commission had exceeded its authority in making rates that are confiscatory. He said that the enforcing of the rates would mean a loss of millions yearly to the roads.

Attorneys for the other roads will follow Durbow, and then representatives of the government will present their argument.

manuscripts, including an unpublished novel. Tcherkoff, an ardent disciple of Tolstoy, holds the manuscripts, which the count bound him on oath to give to the world.

In 1895 Tolstoy renounced all property rights in the copyrights, his lands and money. He wished the books given to the peoples of all lands without profit to himself. His family objected, declaring that the plan would only pauperize the count and enrich the publishing house that handled the books. The quarrel over Tolstoy's act is said to have culminated in his determination to leave home and take the journey which terminated in his untimely death.

Boast Leads to Arrest.

Marysville, Mo., Nov. 21.—Hezekiah Roscoe, farmer, was arrested here this afternoon in connection with the investigation of the murder and incineration of the Hubbell family at Barnard. One of the principal circumstances that brought about his arrest was a boast by Roscoe that he had won a large fortune while playing poker.

The authorities are seeking to trace the persons with whom Roscoe claims to have gambled.

HOPE FOR CRIPPEN VANISHES

Secretary Churchill Refuses to Interfere---Crippen Will Go to the Gallows for the Murder of His Wife, Wednesday.

HE BREAKS DOWN AND SOBS

Says His Poverty, Which Prevented Him Getting Medical Testimony, Was the Cause of His Conviction—Says: "I Shall Die Firmly Convinced That Eventually Proofs of My Innocence Will Come to Light"—He Expected Sentence Commuted

London, Nov. 21.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen will be hanged November 23 for the murder of his actress wife, Belle Elmore-Crippen. Winston Churchill, secretary for home affairs, announced today that there would be no further intervention on his part. The last hope of Crippen for a reprieve or commutation of the death sentence vanished when Churchill refused to intervene.

When Crippen was informed of Churchill's decision, he broke down and wept bitterly.

"My poverty was all that prevented my acquittal," he said. "If I could have secured proper medical testimony I could have shown that the body found in my home was not that of my wife."

After a period of hysterical crying, Crippen raised his head from his arms, on which he had pillowed it.

"I am ready for the end," he said. "I shall die firmly convinced that eventually proofs of my innocence will come to light." After this he again gave way to protracted sobbing.

Crippen, in a lengthy statement given to the press Sunday, said: "Until the court of appeals refused to grant me a new trial, I had hopes of getting clear and building up a new home with Ethel Leneve, without whom life is not worth living."

According to the statement made by the sheriff the total amount extended on the roll is $448,924.55. The penalty and interest charged is $2,254.31 and the sheriff's assessment, $2,558.85, making a total of $453,738.01.

MEXICAN TROOPS FIRE ON REBELS DEAD ARE LYING ON EVERY STREET

Fighting in Many Towns Troops Being Mobilized Rebels Bold and Active

Dispatches Are Censored, But Reports of Fighting in Many Towns Are Confirmed---Several Hundred Are Killed in Zacatecas, and Fierce Fighting Occurs in Many Towns---Rebels Gathering Everywhere in Gangs of From One to Three Thousand---Diaz Will Have to Fight for His Life.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Mexico City, via Vera Cruz, Nov. 21.—Mexico City today is on the eve of a great revolution, and even the censored press dispatches from the interior cities fail to hide the gravity of the situation, caused by President Diaz and his advisers.

Revolt, fanned by promises of American aid from the border, made by agitators to arouse the people against the Diaz administration, is spreading throughout the republic. Revolutionary bands are gathering in the vicinity of a number of cities, and await only the direction of leaders before combining for an attack.

Government troops are being mobilized in the cities that are not deemed loyal to Diaz, and in the event of a revolution, bloody conflicts are expected.

Rumors that the capital itself would be attacked and that clashes between government forces and the insurgents already had resulted in victories for the revolutionaries are current here. Reports of spasmodic outbreaks in all parts of Mexico are reaching government headquarters, each dispatch telling of bands of insurrectionists numbering from 1000 to 3000.

Outbreaks Well Planned. Detailed accounts of battles at Guerrero, Santa Cruz, Zacatecas, Puebla and other outlying towns were received and orders for the Mexican army to take the field are momentarily expected. It is believed that the outbreaks are part of a well planned movement to work the anti-Diaz faction up to a pitch of frenzy before the revolution is openly declared.

American interests are seriously threatened, it is believed, as one of the principal causes of the rebellion is the alleged actions of President Diaz in selling mines and other property to Americans, and then pocketing the proceeds. The invasion of American settlements is looked upon with little favor by Mexican cattle men, and 300 of this class are said to be among the forces of the Francisco Madero, the revolutionary leader.

One American Murdered. The killing of John Lockhart, an American, who was shot from ambush at Palmarita, in Durango, is another matter that likely will attract the attention of the authorities at Washington, it is believed.

Regiments of Mexican troops are now stationed at Matamoras, Neva Laredo, Jaures and Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, on the border. A heavy guard is patrolling Mexico City, but it is considered hardly probable that the revolutionists will attempt to capture the arsenal.
